Wisconsin Professor Warns Us of Yellow Man Ruling in Every City.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BOISE (Idaho) Jan. 27.—The anti-alien bill, introduced in the House of Representatives by Anderson and McMullen of Lincoln county, which, it was claimed on the floor of the Assembly, seeks to bar Japanese from acquiring title to valuable lands within the borders of the State of Idaho, was passed by the House by an unanimous vote today.

In view of the fact that this measure is patterned after the California act which raised an issue between the United States and Japan, the action of the House is looked upon as of unusual significance.

During the debate on final passage pointed reference was made to the activities of aliens in the United States in the attempt to bring about a violation of the neutrality of this country. Members urged unequivocally for American and American rights over those of foreign birth who do not, while in this country and enjoying the privileges and benefits, become naturalized citizens.

BRITISH SHARE IN ANNIVERSARY

How They "Celebrated" the Kaiser's Birthday on the Somme.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Jan. 27, 6:27 p.m.—The British army, says a Reuter's correspondent at British headquarters in France, shared in the Emperor's birthday in the Somme in characteristic fashion.

"While the frozen snow," says the correspondent, "was beginning to glisten like crystals in the broadening dawn, the British guns thundered out a message, not of greeting, but of death. A whirlwind bombardment rolled shrilly down the long northern and eastern lines. The troops suddenly sprang from the British trenches and went across No Man's Land with that deliberate precision which has formed such a feature of these recent operations.

"The enemy seems to have made but a poor fight of it. Although it is too early yet to get full details of the affair, heavy losses were inflicted upon the enemy and about 350 of them surrendered to the British. It is understood the British casualties were very light. The machine gun fire of the enemy was kept under control well by the British gunners.

"While the general features of the attack were similar to several recent operations, much gratification was expressed by officers at the evidence of spirit by the troops, who were unaffected by the terribly severe frost. 'Many unhappy returns of the day,' has been the trench slogan all along the British front."

From a drawing by a Times staff artist from a photograph of a prison scene in London when the Pankhursts and their allies were on hunger strike to get "votes for women" in England. A scene something like it was enacted in New York yesterday, according to an Associated Press dispatch, when the authorities forcibly fed Mrs. Byrne, convicted of offenses against the law in circulation of birth control literature. Mrs. Byrne's is the first known "hunger strike" of a woman in the United States and the New York authorities are dealing with it quite as the British authorities dealt with the Pankhursts and their hunger strikes in London.

COURT HOLDS CAMPBELL GOVERNOR OF ARIZONA.

Republican will Take Office Tomorrow, Replacing Hunt, Who has been in Physical Possession — One Judge of Supreme Body Dissents—Canvass of Vote is Still in Progress.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHOENIX, Jan. 27.—Tom Campbell will take office Monday morning as Governor of Arizona, George W. P. Hunt, who has held physical possession since the first of the year, will retire to await the conclusion of a contest recount now in progress in the Superior Court of Maricopa county.

Gov. Hunt stated this evening that he would surrender the office without further contest and that he would not be at the Capitol Monday.

The Supreme Court of Arizona late this afternoon declared Campbell de facto Governor, though it failed to issue a mandatory writ. This action, it was stated, would be taken if Hunt refused to surrender possession. The decision, a lengthy one, was written by Chief Justice Alfred Franklin, concurred in by Justice Ross. Justice Cunningham dissented. The last two main propositions were before the court, whether Campbell was entitled to office through the possession of a certificate issued by the Secretary of State, and whether he had failed to qualify for the place by surrender of the office of State Tax Commissioner by him, held to December 31. In the former the court held that the secretary had to declare the result of the election as certified to him.

PLURALITY OF THIRTY.

According to the figures of that date, Campbell had a plurality of thirty over Hunt. Campbell is held to have unqualifiedly accepted the new office, by his action in vacating his former place, having taken oath of office as Governor and offered himself for the duties of the new position. The decision recites:

"The canvass and certificate of the Secretary of State are no evidence of who was in truth elected, but they are prima facie evidence of the result and they constitute the highest evidence of the prima facie title that the law requires." It is specifically denied that the decision determines who is elected Governor.

The concluding paragraph of the court's opinion, which was written by Chief Justice Franklin, says: "Finally I am of the opinion that plaintiff is entitled to the writ prayed, but that it is unnecessary to issue it instantly. I am convinced that upon being made acquainted with his duty under the law, as uttered by this court, the defendant will gracefully yield a temporary possession to depend upon a judicial determination of the ultimate right. This is but that deference and respect due from the supreme power in one department of the government and which this court has and will show to the highest authority in another and co-ordinate branch thereof. The distinguished citizen, in high station, now in possession of the office, in good faith, is convinced of his duty under the Constitution and laws, to retain the possession of the place, subject to the judicial remedies; and this is not an improper temper under the circumstances, to the end that he may lose no rights by a voluntary surrender on the ground of estoppel or otherwise. If upon judgment or otherwise the defendant is successful in the contest, the power of the law will promptly reinstate him; if not, that same power will recognize the plaintiff, if successful, as the lawful officer and submerge his de facto chair, which now attaches into that of the de jure Governor, having the ultimate lawful right and just title to the office.

"If it should become necessary, however, a showing may be made to that effect and the writ prayed, will then issue as a matter of course."

Justice Cunningham, in dissenting, states his opinion that a change at this time would involve greater injustice from issuing the writ than from refusal. The necessities of the case, he believes, do not require peremptory action on the facts presented. The issue certainly involves trial of right to possession and he infers that the plaintiff should wait for full determination of the contest action. Also it is contended that Campbell's office as tax commissioner did not become vacant January 1, and it is reasoned that Campbell still remains tax commissioner de jure.

The matter of the Governorship has been before the Supreme Court for twenty-three days, during which time public business has been transacted without funds, and no final legislative action has been possible. The Legislature has been ready to recognize Campbell, though the Democrats are in the majority in the body, but no move toward this has been made.

Gov. Campbell is overwhelmed with congratulations. He said: "Never have I had any doubt of the decision of the court, for I have been convinced of the right of my cause."

It is expected that Monday will be given over to the full induction of Campbell in the office he was refused on January 1, and that his message to the Legislature will be delivered in the afternoon.

THREE BURN TO DEATH IN A CAR COLLISION.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

CLEVELAND, Jan. 27.—Four persons were killed, three being burned to death, and eighteen persons were injured, several seriously, today when an interurban passenger car and an electric package car collided near here on the Cleveland, Columbus and Southwestern electric line.

The accident occurred on a double curve in a stretch of woods. Both cars were traveling at high speed. Occupants of near-by farmhouses dragged the passengers from the wrecked car.

All the victims were in the passenger car, the cre wof the freight escaping injury. The overturned stoves in the front vestibules of the two coaches set fire to the wreckage. Three of the victims pinned underneath the cars were burned to death while their would-be rescuers stood helplessly by.

WATERBURY (Ct.) Jan. 27.—Forty persons were injured, some of them seriously, when a freight engine ran into the rear car of the Boston-to-New York Express on the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad here tonight. The coach was overturned and barely escaped a plunge down a thirty-foot embankment.

Birth Control Propagandist Serving Thirty-day Sentence Offers no Resistance When Prison Officials See that She Receives Proper Nourishment.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Mrs. Ethel Byrne, who began a "hunger strike" when she was sentenced to thirty days in the penitentiary on Blackwell's Island last Monday, for birth control propaganda, was subjected to forcible feeding late today for the second time since she began her prison term.

A bulletin issued by the physician in charge, declared Mrs. Byrne "offered no resistance" and indicated that she was willing to receive food "but made no effort to take it of her own accord."

The food, administered through a mouth tube, consisted of a pint of milk, two eggs and some brandy. One sixteenth of a grain of strychnine also was given the patient.

Concerning Mrs. Byrne's condition, the bulletin said she was "generally improved." She had taken no exercise today and her face and hands were washed for her.

The decision to feed Mrs. Byrne forcibly, was reached last night after the physicians had come to regard her condition as dangerous. At that time she was given eggs and milk through a mouth tube.

Her sister, Mrs. Margaret Sanger, who also is facing trial on a charge of spreading birth control propaganda, issued a statement early today that Mrs. Byrne had become unconscious and was in a precarious condition.

Repeated apneals from Mrs. Sanger for permission to visit her sister were denied by the authorities. Mrs. Byrne's lawyer also was refused a permit to see her. Later, he issued a statement in which he characterized as "untrue" the statement of the prison officials that Mrs. Byrne took food without resistance.

HOPE TO PASS BILL.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The annual fortifications appropriation bill was taken up in the House today, and the leaders expect to pass it Monday. Representative Sherley, in charge of the measure, explained it in detail, saying it was part of the general preparedness programme undertaken at the last session and urging that Congress carry the programme to completion.

COMMENT ON THE SITUATION.

Emperor William of Germany repeated on his fifty-eighth birthday anniversary Saturday his promise previously made to the German army that Germany would enforce peace with the sword. His message was sent to Berlin from the German Great Headquarters in reply to birthday congratulations, according to German newspapers. The Emperor's declaration was made in the face of expectations in some of the Entente capitals that he would make a notable peace move in an address he was expected to deliver at a meeting of Teutonic state, military and naval leaders assembled at the headquarters to celebrate the anniversary. The vicinity of Hill 304, in the Verdun sector, and the Riga region of the northern Russo-German front continue to be the chief centers of military activity. After subjecting the German defense works at Esparges and Hill 304 to an intense bombardment, the French took the trenches recently occupied by the Germans, but, according to the Berlin War Office, the attack failed with heavy losses.

Reports from the border indicate the Mexican bandits who took refuge on American soil have been driven across the border by American troops. Accounts differ as to the personnel of the invaders, one account stating that the Mexicans were in reality Carranza troops. Nothing is known as yet as to the extent of the casualties.

Adobe Houses Used as Refuge on American Soil Burned by Soldiers.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ARIVACA (Ariz.) Jan. 27.—The Mexican bandits who have been keeping up a running gun fight with American troopers and cowboys at Ruby, Ariz., were driven across the international boundary today by Americans. The Mexicans took refuge in adobe houses, but were routed out by troopers and the houses burned. The Mexicans have fled to the hills.

No Americans were killed or wounded, but a bloody blanket found in an adobe house, the Mexicans used as a fort indicated the American shots took effect. There were other evidences of Mexicans being wounded.

The fighting ended about noon today.

When Troop F, Utah Cavalry, under command of Capt. Bassett, arrived at Ruby tonight to relieve Troop E, Utah Cavalry, Lieut. C. H. Arms reported all quiet along the border.

ORIGIN OF FIGHT.

The fight started Friday morning when American cowboys saw Mexicans rounding up cattle on the American side of the boundary line, according to Americans arriving here tonight. Fifteen troopers and several cowboys, it is asserted, returned the fire of about twenty Mexicans, who kept up the fight until they were safe behind rocks on the Mexican side of the line.

Fighting was resumed by the Mexicans at daybreak today, after a lull during the night, returning cowboys said tonight. The fifteen American troopers had been joined by eighteen more at midnight, and when the firing began, the Americans started a concerted rush at the Mexicans.

The invaders were driven across the line, and, according to statements made tonight, the Americans followed them. Another lull occurred when the Mexicans took up positions in several abandoned adobe houses about one mile south of the international boundary line.

ANOTHER RUSH MADE.

Another rush on the part of the Americans, it was stated, caused the Mexicans to flee and take up positions in the distant hills. The Americans searched the houses and found evidence of bloodshed in several of them.

The American troopers returned to the United States side of the line, after destroying the adobe huts.

MEXICAN LOSS UNKNOWN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TUCSON (Ariz.) Jan. 27.—The fighting at Stone House, on the border between Mexicans and United States cavalrymen, stopped at noon today, according to reports here tonight, with no casualties reported on the American side, and the Mexican losses unknown.

Mexican Consul Delgado, at Nogales, telephoned to Sheriff Rye Miles of Pima county here today that he believed the Mexicans were Carranza soldiers.

The scene of the fighting is in a remote section, and very hard to get into communication with.

Lying in the rocks close to the international line, five miles south of Ruby, Ariz., forty members of Troop E, First Utah Cavalry, were keeping up an incessant fire at Mexican soldiers across the line today. The Mexicans were returning the shots.

The Mexican soldiers opened fire on the American cowboys, who were trying to round up a herd of cattle on the American side, it is alleged. The cowboys, although outnumbered, returned the fire and sent for reinforcements from among the Utah command.

American civilians were kept back from the scene of fighting by Lieut. Arms.

A party of civilians headed by N. C. Bernard, rancher and County Supervisor, left Arivaca at dawn for the scene of the fighting.

Sheriff Miles sent Deputy Sid Simpson, who killed a Mexican at Nogales last spring, who was trying to hold him for $10,000 ransom, and County Ranger Burts to represent him at the scene of the fighting.

DELGADO ARRIVES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NOGALES (Ariz.) Jan. 27.—Mexican Consul Delgado arrived here from Tucson by automobile tonight. Mr. Delgado stated that he is communicating with Gen. Calles and Gov. Flores in an effort to secure an order withdrawing the Mexican troops from the district opposite Ruby, in order to prevent further firing across the line.

F Troop of the First Utah Cavalry, sixty men in all, is on the way from here to the Arivaca district south of Ruby, Ariz., on the border, to reinforce Utah cavalrymen who have been exchanging fire at long range across the border with Mex-

The most perfect boy, physically, in the United States Navy, according to Surgeon J. C. Thompson, U.S.N., San Diego, is 18 years of age and hails from Calipatria. He enlisted last week in San Diego and was in Los Angeles yesterday aboard the steamer Yale, on his way to San Francisco.

MOST PERFECT BOY IS OF IMPERIAL VALLEY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 27.—William Jennings Young of Calipatria, Imperial Valley, 18 years old, is declared by Surgeon G. C. Thompson of the recruiting office, U.S.N., here, to be the most perfect specimen of boyhood ever passed by him for the navy. The boy was born in Cleveland, Okla., January 30, 1899, and attributes his wonderful strength and health to the fact that he has slept out of doors under the stars all his life and abstained from the use of coffee, tea and alcoholic liquors. He went to work on a ranch in Brawley when 12 years old and has been working outdoors ever since.

Young's measurements are: Height 5 ft. 7½ in., chest 34½ in., chest expansion 3½ in., weight 141½ pounds, neck 14½ in., across shoulder 18 in., forearm 9¾ in., biceps 10½ in., wrist 6½ in., waist 27 in., hips 35 in., thigh 20 in., calf 14½ in., ankle 9¼ in.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 27.—New Orleans will be a dry town tomorrow. Local saloon men today admitted that they had been ordered by the police to stay closed tomorrow. One patrolman, in explaining Commissioner of Public Safety and Acting Chief of Police Newman's order, said:

ASK NEW TRIAL IN WILD-HORSE CASE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OMAHA (Neb.) Jan. 27.—Four of nine men convicted recently in Federal Court here of use of the mails to defraud in the sale of imaginary wild horses, alleged to range the government reservation in Coconino county, Arizona, today filed motion for a new trial, advancing among six other reasons that the jury was prejudiced by newspaper accounts of the trial, which they were allowed to read, and that one juror was "interested and biased." It is also alleged the presiding judge, J. W. Woodrough, erred fourteen times in admission of government evidence and that the prosecution was guilty of "misconduct" in arresting Charles Acker of Minneapolis, who testified he came here at his wife's request to "help out" one of the defendants.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

FINDLAY (O.) Jan. 27.—The Ohio Oil Company today called a meeting of stockholders here next Wednesday morning with the announcement that the par value of stock will be increased from $25 to $100 a share. The company is capitalized at $15,000,000, and the change will make it $60,000,000. The company was organized three years ago and a short time later was purchased by the Standard Oil Company. The company surplus at the present time is announced as $75,000,000.

The Expected.

DRY CITY AGITATED

Violation of Liquor Law Alleged.

Highest Officials of Washington State Metropolis in the Toils, Give Bond.

Acceptance of Bribes and Conspiracy Charges Also Against Detectives.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SEATTLE, Jan. 27.—After almost six weeks of night and day work, the Federal grand jury impaneled to ferret out the secret of bootlegging and illicit liquor traffic in violation of interstate commerce today brought in twenty indictments, including Mayor Hiram Charles Gill, Chief of Police Charles L. Beckingham, former Sheriff Robert T. Hodge, E. D. Baker of the Jesse Moore Hunt Company, San Francisco; the Jesse Moore Hunt Company, a corporation; E. J. Margett and Logan and Fred Billingsley, leaders of rival bootlegging factions.

Undoubtedly the surprise of the jury's work was the indictment of Baker, the Jesse Moore Hunt Company, and Margett. It was they who furnished the grand jury with most of the evidence upon which it based its findings, and they who confidently expected an immunity bath if any whitewash was to be used by the government.

ROW OF FACTIONS.

The wholesale indictment of higher-ups may be attributed to a falling out between the Margett and Billingsley factions. The doublecross has been pinned to each by the other, and the Billingsleys claim that they received the worst betrayal of all at the hands of the San Francisco liquor dealers. At any rate, it is said history will show that the Billingsleys, convinced of their desertion by the men they believed would protect them, returned State's evidence, and gave testimony to the extent that the Federal dragnet caught a Mayor, an ex-sheriff, a Chief of Police, several detectives and a small army of lesser fry.

Because the work of the grand jury was proceeding along too easy-going lines, the government sent Clarence L. Reames, District Attorney at Portland, to act as special prosecutor with Dist.-Atty. Clay Allen. With the arrival of Reames rumor that three or four higher-ups were to be traded for a lot of inconsequential lawbreakers was dissipated, Mr. Reames announcing that "the United States government does not have to make terms with any man."

He proceeded along that line and left Seattle today for home, carrying back the accomplishment of his personal efforts.

Both Billingsley and Margett formerly did business with the Jesse Moore Hunt Company. When the grand jury began to show signs of life Margett hastened to San Francisco and told Baker that unless he and the company "came through," the grand jury would "get both of us." Mr. Hunt was consulted and as a result the company agreed to tell what it knew of liquor shipments to Seattle if, in return, the company and its representatives were not to be prosecuted" for anything they told."

AGREEMENT IS MADE.

This agreement was made and then Mr. Hunt and his San Francisco managers availed themselves of the "anything" agreement by telling everything they knew, and their books implicated practically everybody indicted.

Mayor Gill and his Chief of Police are brought into the scandal by reason of the fact that a certain letter written by Logan Billingsley to the Jesse Moore Hunt Company was interpreted to the grand jury by Billingsley as mentioning Mayor Gill in a deal the Billingsleys hod for protection. This the Mayor denies and just to show how he considers the matter he announced today, at the time he furnished bond, that he would be a candidate for re-election next year. He will seek another vindication, he says.

One thing the government has accepted in this inquiry is the fact that wholesale shipments of whisky into Seattle have ceased and the curbstone quotation on whisky, not bonded, today is $5 a quart.

CHARGE AGAINST GILL.

That Mayor Gill, following the police raid of the Night and Day Drug Store, gained possession of substantially the same evidence against the Billingsleys that fell into the hands of the government, resulting in the Federal indictments, but returned it when passed a bribe of $4000, is one of the sensational charges Uncle Sam directs against Gill.

The alleged bribe, it is charged, induced Gill to return this evidence to the Billingsleys in the face of a subpoena for it issued by Prosecuting Attorney Alfred H. Lundin. Efforts by the Federal authorities to obtain the papers also proved futile, it is charged.

The government alleges that the bribe was paid the Mayor by Logan Billingsley, in the former's office and that on the same day Gill

CONVENTION TOLD HOW TO WIN WORLD MARKET.

Nation's Business Leaders Formulate Programme for After War.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 27.—A merchant marine, a flexible tariff, generous credits to foreign lands, careful commercial treaties, legalized co-operation for overseas trade—these are the mainstays on which America must rely in preparing for the competition of Europe in the world's markets after peace comes. Such is the opinion of the 1200 delegates to the national foreign trade convention.

All the ideas that have been contributed during the sessions were put through the separator this morning by a general committee and an epitome was prepared showing the body of opinion formulated during the three days' conference. It was read by James A. Farrell, chairman of the council, and was unanimously adopted.

The programme, which closely follows the forecast in these dispatches of two days ago, sets up the following points of particular importance as bearing on the future of America's foreign trade. On them the emphasis is laid:

POINTS OF EMPHASIS.

(1.) Co-operation in export sales—All doubt as to the application of the anti-trust laws to exports should be removed. Congress should promptly enact the Webb bill, pending in the Senate, to the end that American exporters, while marketing abroad the products of American agriculture and industry, may have the advantages of co-operative action in their efforts to meet foreign combinations.

(2.) Merchant marine — The Federal Shipping Board should develop a sound national shipping policy aimed to attain the following: The increase of national income by affording greater facilities for exports and imports; the development, under the American flag, of transportation service with foreign countries and with the possessions of the United States; aid to national defense and maintenance of foreign commerce whether the United States be belligerent or neutral.

The government should remedy any disadvantages imposed by legislation that makes it difficult for American bottoms to meet the competition of other shipping.

THE TARIFF.

(3.) Tariff—The United States tariff system should possess adequate resources for the encouragement and protection of the foreign trade of the United States. To secure to the United States the continuance of the "favored nation" treatment which our commerce enjoyed before the war and to protect American exports against discrimination in foreign markets, Congress should adopt the principle of a flexible or "bargaining tariff."

(4.) Treaties — Commercial treaties under which the world's trade was conducted prior to August, 1914, have been ruptured by the war. The United States will inevitably be obliged to negotiate new treaties to conform to the basis fixed by other nations to govern their relations with each other. The possible effects of European discriminations and preferential or discriminatory tariffs that may be imposed upon American trade should be given careful consideration by Congress and the government, including the Tariff Commission. The State Department through its treaty bureau should consult with commercial organizations and individual business men.

(5.) Government aid—To meet world competition, American business, using the term in its broadest implication, must be relieved of disadvantages imposed by legislation and protected by governmental action from possible discrimination in foreign markets.

Government agencies can assist American enterprise by collecting and disseminating information on foreign markets and suggesting improved financing, selling and purchasing methods.

But success is to be attained only by the courage, intelligence and efficiency of the merchants, manufacturers and bankers themselves, their ability to co-operate with each other and with the government departments created to serve them.

CREDITS.

(6.) Credits—The reports of the banking group called for the extension to the fullest extent of credit to foreign nations. Such loans should be based upon the wealth of the borrowing nations and be paid in American dollars, in the United States. The bankers of America might advantageously furnish a portion of the exchange required by European countries to enable them to continue their purchases in this country, giving continued business in materials and supplies to the American manufacturers which is not a consequence if all exchange is provided through collateral loans.

In dwelling upon investments abroad as a stabilizer of foreign trade, the banking group report said:

"Our people should not invest in countries abroad with the idea that the government was not prepared to support them in every legitimate way, but the bankers ought not to go into foreign business with their clients' money and expect the government to collect debts. Government support does not necessarily mean government collection."

COAST CABLE SERVICE.

D. F. Webster, of San Francisco, in a brief address called attention to the defective cable service from the Pacific Coast, and recommended an investigation of conditions looking toward the improvement of the cable system or the extension of wireless communication.

At this point an unscheduled address was made by John Clausen of San Francisco, commenting upon the exchange problem in a telegram read earlier in the meeting. Mr. Clausen said that if this country is able to finance its imports and exports in dollars, it will be able to maintain the price of dollars at a premium. He said that the exchange value of the dollar could be increased, in dealings with Spain, if the trade balances between Spain and the United States could be liquidated over the trade balances of South American countries.

Mr. Clausen put in a plea for the education of young men for foreign trade. He said that the greatest prosperity can be brought about it this country has men properly educated for business from their youth.

CAPT. DOLLAR ON U-BOAT.

Capt. Robert Dollar was seen before his departure for home. He said: "The Germans are not masters of the sea. Some folks think that the submarines are getting results, but they are not. They are simply playing to the galleries. He's like a man who might come to Pittsburgh and run amuck, then break out some place else, but he's not capturing the town."

Among the interesting personages from the Golden Gate was Mrs. Man Quong Fong, whose husband was a delegate from the Chinese Chamber of Commerce in San Francisco. They were both born in California, and are proud of their native State. The delegates all left for home tonight.

FIRE DELAYS PROCEEDINGS.

The proceedings of the final day were somewhat delayed by a $2,000,000 fire in the heart of Pittsburgh's business section, that wiped out half a block of office buildings, shops and movie theaters. But the closing reports were put through rapidly and the convention adjourned on schedule time. The place of meeting for next year has not been decided, but San Francisco is considered the strongest bidder.

JANITORS MEET TO DECIDE STRIKE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PLEAD GUILTY.

Twenty-seven Men Acknowledge Selling Their Votes.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CINCINNATI (O.) Jan. 27.—Twenty-seven men arrested on indictments returned by the Federal grand jury which investigated alleged frauds at the last Presidential election, pleaded guilty to vote selling when arraigned in the United States District Court here today. Three others indicted on the same charges pleaded not guilty. These three and the twenty-seven who pleaded guilty and whose sentence was deferred by Judge Howard Hollister, were ordered committed to the Dayton jail.

Three other men indicted on the charge of vote buying were arrested today. Of the ninety-nine men indicted by the grand jury, fifty-three now have been brought into court. Nearly all of the men who pleaded guilty to vote selling were residents of low-price lodging-houses. Each admitted that he had sold his vote on the last Presidential election day for $1. In several instances they gave the name of the man alleged to have paid for their votes.

THE SUPREMACY OF "THE TIMES"

It's Lead as an Advertising Medium in the Year 1916

Concurrent with other important events in Southern California, the closing of the old year marks a big lead in the volume of paid advertising printed in The Times over all its rivals.

Again, careful investors and buyers of newspaper publicity in this section of the country during the past year have demonstrated their faith in The Times by inserting more separate advertisements and more liberal space in its advertising columns than in those of any other newspaper.

The merchant who uses pages to exploit his goods and the individual who offers to sell, or wants to purchase anything, are agreed as to the certain results accruing from advertising in The Times. It is as indispensable to one as to the other, proving it to be the most efficient advertising medium in California.

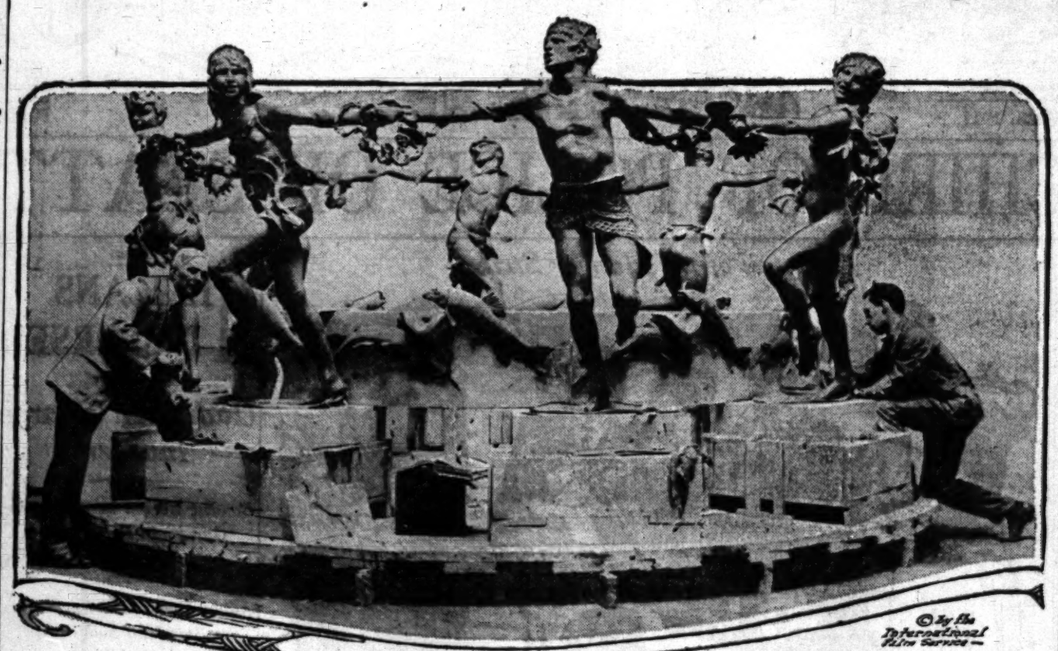
The following tabulated statement indicates concisely the preeminence of The Times in Los Angeles:

ADVERTISING IN LOS ANGELES NEWSPAPERS FOR 1916.

	Lines.
THE TIMES	12,146,574
Second morning newspaper	9,906,288
Third morning newspaper	7,596,536
First evening newspaper	6,995,368
Second evening newspaper	6,746,082
Third evening newspaper	3,028,494

Further evidence of The Times being the logical and economical medium in reaching the masses is the fact that it continues to print more "liner" or "want" advertising than any other two newspapers on the Pacific Coast. An incomparable record, proving beyond all controversy its peerless supremacy in the advertising field.

Indianapolis to Have Fountain of Original Design.



A thing of beauty is a joy forever.

A fountain like no other fountain or other piece of sculpture anywhere—a fountain that will stand as a type of original American art—has been designed by and is nearing completion at the studios of A. Stirling Calder, No. 51 West Tenth street, New York. The fountain will be erected next October in the center of University Square, Indianapolis. It is a gift to his city by the late Richard Depew. The subject of the unique work of art is "Youth." It is expressed by the figures of eight dancing children—five boys and three girls—facing outward and encircling in a ring a central basin 13 feet in diameter. Each of the figures stands 5 feet 6 inches high—purposely tall for children in order to express the sculptural detail of an outdoor monument. Vines, wreaths shells, reeds, grape clusters and flowers furnish the attire of the figures and kindred tokens of carnival spirit hang from their outstretched arms and clasped hands, accenting the motion of the dance. A water lily pad furnishes a base for each figure. On a pedestal in the middle of the inner basin is the heroic figure of a young Naiad, directing the dance with cymbals. This figure dominates the group. Inspired by the Naiad the children yield themselves to the ecstasy of the dance. The Naiad figure is 7 feet 6 inches high. Water will fall from the inner basin through spouts between the dancers, and in each of these streams a pair of lively fish will sport. Warm-tinted Stony Creek granite has been used to emphasize the theme of youth.

WILSON'S BIRTHDAY MESSAGE NOT GIVEN OUT.

Occasion is Fittingly Celebrated in Berlin in Keeping with War Conditions—Wilhelm Reiterates Country will Obtain Peace by the Sword.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Congratulations of President Wilson to Emperor William of Germany went forward today. The State Department did not make public the text of the President's congratulations to the Emperor. It has adopted the policy of not making public such messages during the war.

CELEBRATION IN BERLIN.

[BY WIRELESS AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Jan. 27 (via Tuckerton, N. J.)—The birthday of Emperor William was observed today with manifestations in keeping with war conditions.

The Empress and Prince Henry of Prussia and his eldest son, Prince Waldemar, attended the celebration at German great headquarters.

The Emperor issued an order of general amnesty. Celebrations were held in all the schools, high schools and universities.

EMPEROR STANDS PAT.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Telegraphing from the German great headquarters to the Berlin Academy of Sciences in reply to birthday congratulations, Emperor William reiterated today the assertion that the German people will obtain peace by the sword, says a Reuter dispatch from Amsterdam, which declares this information was obtained from German newspapers. The Emperor's message as quoted read:

"The unshakable will to victory of the German people, which are prepared for every sacrifice of blood and treasure, will, I trust God, preserve the Fatherland from the ruin contemplated by its enemies and will force by the sword the peace necessary for the blessed development of the people."

HENRY LANE WILSON RESIGNS OFFICE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 27.—Henry Lane Wilson, in a letter to William Howard Taft, president of the National Association of the League to Enforce Peace, today announced his resignation as president of the Indiana branch of the league. Mr. Wilson stated that his retirement is due to the belief that some of the leaders are trying to divert it from its original purpose and adopt as a programme of action the plan for a world alliance, put forward by President Wilson in his address to the United States Senate this week.

"As the new doctrines announced by the President have not been rejected by those in authority in the League to Enforce Peace, and as there are indications of feverish activity in fashioning and forming the league's tendencies conformably with the programme which the President has dramatically announced, I feel obliged to sever my connection with its affairs," said Mr. Wilson in his letter.

LONDON PATENT BUSINESS INCREASES.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Applications for patents, which during the early part of the war dropped from a daily average of 120 to 60, are now considerably on the increase, and whereas British traders formerly turned down every crank or inventor with a new idea the tendency is now to at least consider any feasible proposal in view of a prospective commercial trade war and the necessity of speeding up manufacturing generally. The patents office is busy granting patents for labor saving devices, while patents for tools in munition manufacture previously purchased in America have been freely applied for.

CHECKERBOARD OF WAR ON ITS CONTINUATION.

Belligerents Make Ready to Resume Operations on Larger Scale.

BY HARRY CARR.

WITH infinite sorrow we read the dispatches now coming from the war front in Europe.

It is plain that the belligerents are preparing to resume the fighting on a scale bigger than ever. The last hope of an early peace evaporated when the British labor unions voted overwhelmingly against the German peace proposals.

However costly it may be to go on with the fighting, it would be more costly from the standpoint of the Allies not to go on. To make peace on conditions as they now stand would be to acknowledge a German world victory that would lower the prestige of every Allied government to the danger point.

The Allies doubtless feel that they did not get a fair chance to bring their great resources to bear in the last offensive.

WHY IT FAILED.

The big smash failed because the Saloniki expedition could not get into motion. The real cause of the allied defeat was the failure of Venizelos, the Greek politician, to do what he promised England to do. The Allies relied upon him to bring Greece into the war on the side of the Entente. But before Saloniki could plunge into the campaign, the Greeks turned against Venizelos. They accused him of having taken British money and called him a traitor. With one grand flop Greek sentiment went over to the other side. In the face of Greek hostility, it was, of course, impossible to advance from Saloniki and leave that base unprotected. So the whole campaign fizzled out and Rumania was destroyed.

The late dispatches indicate that the Allies are again at work on Greece, a recent statement being that they were thinking of unrooting King Constantine and placing the Italian Duke of Aosta on the throne.

The purpose of this, of course, is quite as much to bolster up Italy's rapidly-flagging interest in the war as to insure the safety of the Saloniki expedition.

ITALY'S GROUCH.

There is no doubt that Italy has a grouch and is sorry she came into the war. She has lost her African colonies and, with the downfall of Rumania, her influence has waned in the Balkans. A few weeks ago she was loudly and openly protesting because the Allies hadn't promised her enough loot from the spoils in case the Entente won the war. The tentative choice of the Duke of Aosta as King of Greece would seem to indicate that Italy is to be taken care of at the expense of Greece.

Meanwhile, the unsettled conditions in Greece continue to be the greatest obstacle to a possible joint offensive by the Allies. Any real attempt on the part of the Entente to cut the Constantinople-to-Vienna railroad is impossible until Greece is settled.

The Allies are undoubtedly getting ready for a spring offensive, which is likely to be the deciding point of the war. If this one fails it is difficult to see how there can be another one. This spring will see the high tide of the war.

In view of this coming offensive, it looks as though the Germans had given up any idea of continuing the thrust toward Odessa on the Rumanian front with any great fury. From German sources it is stated that 4,000,000 German soldiers have been allowed to go home on furlough since the fall of Bucharest.

OFFENSIVE AT RIGA.

The German offensive now in progress on the Riga front is probably intended only to relieve the pressure on the Rumanian front. There seems to be no serious effort to try to take Petrograd.

Following the retreat of the Rumanian army, the Russians made extensive preparations for a stand on the banks of the River Pruth. Russian reinforcements in formidable strength were rushed to that point. By the offensive on the Riga front, the Germans compelled the Russians to hold back the reinforcements. At least two army corps and probably three en route the Pruth, were shifted back to the Riga front.

Meanwhile, another German offensive has begun northwest of Verdun. It is not clear how serious a movement this will develop into.

On the west front conditions have gone back almost to the place where they were last year.

The British and French armies are preparing for another huge offensive next spring. As before, the Germans seek to break through the Allied lines in the vicinity of Verdun in order to break up the plans for this terrific thrust and compel the Allies to go into action before they are ready.

Should they succeed, they would certainly make a smear of the Allied spring advance. The Germans should they break through, would be behind the line of the French advance. After that, the more successful the British-French advance were in Flanders the more would Paris become exposed to a German offensive. In other words, the danger of the Allies would increase in direct proportion to the success of their own offensive. The further they penetrated the German lines in Flanders, the more would they expose the French rear and Paris to the Germans at Verdun.

It has been predicted by many army men that the next Allied advance on the west front would open a wider attack. Many believe that an advance from the region of the Somme will be supported by a French offensive far to the south—from some point around Muelhausen. It seems to me that this is most improbable. But at any rate, a German offensive around Verdun would be the natural answer to such a plan on the part of the French.

Everything makes me believe that the Germans are making no very desperate effort to gain ground on the east front; that they are resting up their troops in preparation for the crowning struggle of the war.

SAYS WILSON GIVES EUROPE DEMOCRACY.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Dr. W. H. P. Faunce, president of Brown University, speaking before the Republican Club here today, declared that President Wilson's recent address to the Senate on foreign affair was a "frank presentation of the ideals of our fathers" which "has forced the proclamation of democratic principles in every court of Europe."

"Certain passages like 'Peace without victory' we may reject," said President Faunce, "but that address has forced the proclamation of democratic principles in every court in Europe—the consent of the governed, the equality of nations, liberty of work and worship for all, freedom of the weak from the oppression of the strong and release from ever-increasing competitive armaments. These principles are the bedrock of American life and are now being discussed with incredulity or with joy throughout the civilized world and when once fully discussed they cannot be finally rejected.

"We must give to Europe more than munitions, we must give principles and ideals—political idealism has always been America's gift to the world."

MRS. BUTLER DENIES TALE OF SPANELL.

DECLARES HUSBAND NEVER INSULTED WOMAN.

Says She was in the Room When Prisoner's Wife Entered and Nothing Occurred as He Alleged. Sheriff Tells of Utterance in the Jail.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN ANGELO (Tex.) Jan. 27.—In an effort to impeach the testimony of Harry J. Spanell, being tried here on a charge of killing his wife, Crystal Holland Spanell, at Alpine, Tex., the State today called Mrs. Margaret Howell Butler, widow of Lieut.-Col. M. C. Butler. Spanell also is under indictment for the killing of Butler, who with Mrs. Spanell, was shot to death in Spanell's automobile on the night of July 20, last.

Mrs. Butler's testimony, given over the constant objection of defense counsel, was a repetition of her previous testimony that Mrs. Spanell had accompanied Col. Butler and herself to the Butler room in the Hotel Holland at Alpine a short time before the shooting and that Mrs. Spanell had not been insulted there and that there had been no quarrel.

Spanell, testifying Thursday in his own behalf, said his wife had been insulted by Butler in this room; that the shooting had followed his demand for an explanation from Butler, and that the shot which killed Mrs. Spanell was fired by Butler in an ensuing altercation.

Sheriff Allen Watson of Brewster county, testifying this afternoon regarding a reply which he said was made to him in the Alpine (Tex.) jail, when he asked:

"My God, Harry, what have you done?" stated that Harry J. Spanell replied:

"I have killed Col. Butler and my wife, I am ruined. I am ruined. They made me do it."

MUSIC REVEALS AID TO PENMANSHIP

PHONOGRAPH TAKES DRUDGERY OUT OF EXERCISES.

Usefulness Described by Instructor, Who Tells of Advantages of Applying Harmony to Schoolroom Task—Fox Trot has Advantages.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BOSTON, Jan. 27.—The successful use of phonographic music as an aid to writing instructions was described by L. M. Rand, an instructor in the English High School, to the New England Penmanship Association today. Music acts as a speed guide for the writer, he said, as a metronome beats time for a beginner in music.

"Teaching penmanship in the Dorchester Evening High School has been very successful under this method," he said. "The music takes off the fatigue and the drudgery of writing letters and combinations of letters, and stimulates the mind in a tedious job. It helps to create a correct and uniform speed, furnishing an exact count for the operation of letters and thus furnishing rhythm.

"Letters and numbers, particularly capitals, are adapted to this. For some letters, written in four movements, we play a fox trot. The Minister of waltz music furnishes an excellent rhythmic guide."

"ALLIES REACH RHINE? NO CHANCE"—VON STEIN

German War Minister Tells of Vast Scale of Teuton Preparations.

BY CYRIL BROWN.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERLIN, Jan. 27.—Energy, energy, is the key of the world's war problem in its last phase, according to the Prussian War Minister, General of Artillery Von Stein, one of the few German generals who have escaped American interviewers.

"Everything depends now on which side develops the greatest energy," he philosophized quietly and confidently regarding the war's outcome.

Standing against sixfold odds alone with his corps Von Stein caught the full shock of the whole English army after a seven-days' drumfire had played the overture to the Somme battle. Of him staff officers and line officers between Bapaume and Peronne still speak reverently as one of the outstanding heroes of that bacchanale of blood. He has no peace hallucinations.

AS TO PEACE TALK.

"The Crown Prince Rupprecht told me recently on the Somme that he did not take much stock in peace talk—not with the Minister at present at the head of the Entente's"—I offered tentatively.

"That's 'erledigt'—settled—now," he snapped quietly and thoughtfully. In short, what the Germans call "markige" phrases. "I don't break my head over peace, because that isn't my business. For the soldier what matters in the first line is to seek the decision on the battlefield. There is too much talk about peace. I consider it superfluous. For peace can only be made when the outcome of the war is clear. What is the use of racking one's brains on both sides about the peace question? Whoever wins the decisive victory will dictate peace.

"As a soldier I don't rack my brains about peace speculations. The war will go on because every man must still believe in and hope for final victory. No doubt about it. We must fight on and fight the war out to a finish without flinching. It must go on to a victorious end. That is the spirit of the whole army. And it is what I want, too."

Referring to the Kaiser's recent army order and the appeal to the nation evoked by the statement of the Entente's peace conditions, Gen. Von Stein added:

"The Kaiser's words touched the whole army and express its spirit. The army would not understand if we do not want to fight it out to the bitter end.

"All German industry and the greater part of her civil life is now being absorbed by, and organized only for war."

I mentioned the remark of a high staff officer that at the retarded tempo of the Somme offensive it would take the English at least 10 years to reach the Rhine.

"There is no chance even of that," he said. "The war will not last so long."

While speaking disparagingly of his English foes, Von Stein remarked significantly: "I consider the French better soldiers than the English." He cautiously refused in principle to express any judgment of English leadership, high or low, saying, "I will express no verdict as to their leadership because one does not know all the facts—we could only see behind their line."

BATTLES COMPARED.

Asked if he thought the battles of the future would bear the characteristic stamp of the Somme battle, Von Stein replied thoughtfully:

"I take a standpoint different from that maintained by many others, namely, that this form of fighting is not a model for the future, that the character of the Somme battle was conditioned by the momentary superiority of artillery and that you cannot draw any conclusions from the Somme battle for the future."

"Can the German defense in the west be strengthened and improved as fast or faster than the French and English preparations for attack can the German defense keep pace with the possible future advances of the offensive?" I suggested.

"I cannot express judgment as to that because I do not know what the enemy are doing behind the front in the way of preparations. We cannot know all the enemy are doing, but one thing is certain, we made all our preparations on a greater scale than for the previous battle," the War Minister answered.

GERMANY THANKS AMERICA FOR AID.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27. — The American Relief Committee announced today that it had received a letter from James W. Gerard, the American Ambassador at Berlin, acknowledging the receipt of 12,000 marks sent by the committee and stating that the Germans are grateful for the sympathy and help received from America. Mr. Gerard has undertaken to distribute among the German widows and orphans of the war all the funds raised by the American Relief Committee. Concerning the work thus far accomplished, he wrote:

"Already the news that so much has been done in America has resulted in a new feeling of understanding and appreciation here."

The committee announced that it had received $42,360 from its branch in St. Louis.

FUTURE EUROPEAN TRADE HINGES UPON TARIFF

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Readjustment of trade between this country and France after the war will largely depend upon tariff legislation both here and abroad, according to findings of the American industrial commission which was sent to France by the American Manufacturers' Export Association. These conclusions were set forth in the fifth installment of the commission's report, devoted to credits and tariff and made public here today.

"It will merit study on the part of the Tariff Commission whether in all instances high rates of duty should be charged on luxuries, regardless of the country of origin," the report says. "Questions of trade policy are here involved that might possibly overrule the sumptuary principles heretofore applied in the tariff law."

The French repeatedly express regret, the report says, that almost all articles exported to France to America the duties exceedingly high. It was explained to them that in "our tariff legislation luxuries are selected as properly paying the highest revenue." The chief exports of France to this country, it is pointed out, are luxuries.

The French consider our rates on their products excessive, the report asserts, but when they "the insistence of our special tariff agents upon the right to look into private books, the labor, cost of raw materials, etc., is particularly resented."

"It was sometimes suggested by the United States might to some extent adopt specific duties to avoid contentious questions," the report says, and points out that "while this is almost the only country that does not enjoy the most favored nation treatment" on the part of France

HOW RASPU... IN A PR...

Tragic End of the Mystic M... Throne in Russia—A...

PETROGRAD, Jan. 3.—Rasputin, the famous mystery monk of Petrograd—the Siberian peasant who became the powerful scene-shifter in the high political drama of holy Russia—is dead.

One may say "dead" advisedly and with emphasis. Three times before this modern Richelieu, this malign influence in the orbit of a great nation, has been reported slain by the hand of an assassin.

But each time he has borne a charm. Each time he has come to life again. His somber influence in Russian high circles has renewed its sway and he has gone on his sinister way with increased strength — a power of evil; also a hidden hand, against whose Mephistophelian subtleties human effort seemed to spend itself in vain.

When first the news came there was doubt. But he is dead now—done to death by patrician hands.

And this was the way of it.

On the night of Friday, December 29, a motor car stopped before the door of a house in Gorokhovaya street—Rasputin's house, where the once Siberian peasant now lived in luxury.

That was the first step in the drama.

HIS LAST JOURNEY.

In a few minutes Rasputin himself came out and entered the car. He did not know it, but he had started on his last earthly journey.

When the car stopped again it was before the door of a palace on the banks of the Moika Canal.

There lived Prince Yusupoff Sumarokoff-Elston, who is the husband of Princess Irene of Russia, eldest daughter of Grand Duke Alexander.

From that house Rasputin was never to reappear alive.

Came Saturday morning, December 30. At 3 o'clock a policeman on the frozen Moika heard the sound of shots. So also did a policeman on duty in Offitserskaya street.

"Only a mad dog was being shot," said the princely domestics.

As a piece of irony possibly it was true enough.

But there is a stately garden to the Yusupoff palace; it spreads away from Offitserskaya street to the bank of the canal.

Truly, the body of a dead dog was shown in the garden snows in proof that the princely domestics were virtuous and truthful citizens. But that dog must have been a curious creature, for—it had uttered human cries.

And the policeman heard them. Indeed, he that was on duty in Offitserskaya street even asked what had happened, but was given no immediate reassuring comfort for his official and inquisitive soul.

Presently a motor car drove into the garden. Another followed it, and came to a pause before the Yusupoff door.

Then from the palace door stepped a man in uniform. Our trusty Offitserskaya-street policeman being still at hand, the uniformed stranger said to him:

"I am a member of the Duma," (Russian Parliament.)

"I HAVE JUST KILLED—"

With that he gave his name, and our worthy constable realised himself in the presence of one of the Deputies of the Right.

"You are a patriot—?" the stranger added, tentatively.

"Yes," answered the policeman.

"Then listen," concluded the stranger, grimly. "I have just killed—."

Here was the dog story contradicted. But this was a drama of mystics as well as of mysteries. Who could know what truly had happened?

As yet no dead man was visible. But there were traces of blood in the garden snow, and—well, there was the dead dog. It was solemnly taken by the law, and with it a patch of the blood-stained snow.

Some minutes later the tragedy moved again. Once more a door of the palace opened. Something was borne out from it; a body—Rasputin's, perhaps—wrapped in a fur rug. As soon as it was placed in a waiting motor car the stranger in uniform followed it. So did another man of noble birth.

One sat beside the fur-wrapped fullness; the other seated himself by the side of the silent chauffeur. And, with a whirr, the car was off.

So was the second stage of the drama enacted.

Presently, all these happenings were in the collected knowledge of the Petrograd police. But the scene changes to the mouth of the ice-bound Neva.

REVELATIONS OF THE NEVA.

What happened among the Neva floods can only be surmised. No one was there to witness the coming or the going of any motor car.

But in a branch of the river, near the Petrovsky Island, a newly-made hole was found in the ice.

Again, there were traces of blood. Footprints told their tale in the snow of snow around the silent, mysterious and sinister hole.

And not very far away, near the bank by the Petrovsky bridge, a man's goloshes were found. They must have been dropped unnoticed. And on them were dark, suspicious stains, like blood.

These things were the discoveries later Saturday and Sunday.

But this time all Petrograd was not with the tragedy. Yet, almost all the world knew that the man who had been killed in the quiet snowy watches of the night was—

"GREGORY, THE RAKE"

Not even the papers made direct mention of his name.

Such was the high place that he held, and the power that he held, that it was not allowed.

All that followed the shots in the snow-white night was a series of surmises. In one of them, soon after the dead body had gone from the Yusupoff palace, young Prince Yusupoff himself went to the Minister of War, and for what, at that unlikely hour? He is only twenty-nine, has been married to Princess Irene only three years.

Some while later he left Petrograd for whoever might want him might find him on his Crimean estate. But suddenly he returned to the capital, and in the same hour, a certain man of high rank had his name

HOW RASPUTIN MET HIS DEATH IN A PRINCELY RUSSIAN HOUSE.

Tragic End of the Mystic Monk who for Years was Reputed to be the Power Behind the Throne in Russia—All Indications are That He was Lured to His Doom by Paid Assassins.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 3.—Rasputin, the famous mystery monk of Petrograd—the Siberian peasant who became the powerful scenemaker in the high political drama of holy Russia—is dead.

One may say "dead" advisedly and with emphasis. Three times before this modern Richelieu, this malign influence in the orbit of a great nation, has been reported slain by the hand of an assassin.

But each time he has borne a charmed life. Each time he has come to power again. His somber influence in Petrograd high circles has renewed its sway and he has gone on his sinister way with increased strength — a power of evil; also a hidden hand, against whose Mephistophelian subtleties human effort seemed to spend itself in vain.

When first the news came there was no doubt. But he is dead now—done to death by patrician hands.

And this was the way of it.

On the night of Friday, December 29, a motor car stopped before the door of a house in Corokhovaya street—Rasputin's house, where the arch-Siberian peasant now lived in state.

That was the first step in the drama.

HIS LAST JOURNEY.

A few minutes Rasputin himself came out and entered the car. He did not know it, but he had started on his last earthly journey.

When the car stopped again it was before the door of a palace on the banks of the Moika Canal.

There lived Prince Yusupoff Sumarokoff-Elston, who is the husband of Princess Irene of Russia, eldest daughter of Grand Duke Alexander. From that house Rasputin was never to reappear alive.

On Saturday morning, December 30, at 3 o'clock a policeman on the Moika heard the sound of shots. He also did a policeman on the Offitserskaya street.

Only a mad dog was being shot," said the princely domestics.

It was a piece of irony possibly it was not enough.

But there is a stately garden to the Yusupoff palace; it spreads away from the Offitserskaya street to the banks of the canal.

There, huddled, the body of a dead dog was found in the garden snows in proof that the princely domestics were honest and truthful citizens. But the dog must have been a curious beast, for—it had uttered human cries.

And the policeman heard them. Indeed, he that was on duty in Offitserskaya street even asked what had caused, but was given no immediate reassuring comfort for his official and inquisitive soul.

Presently a motor car drove into the garden. Another followed it, and came to a pause before the Yusupoff door.

Men from the palace door stepped forth in uniform. Our trusty Offitserskaya-street policeman being still there, the uniformed stranger said:

"I am a member of the Duma," (the Parliament.)

"I HAVE JUST KILLED—"

With that he gave his name, and the worthy constable realised himself in the presence of one of the lights of the Right.

"You are a patriot—?" the stranger added, tentatively.

"Yes," answered the policeman.

"Then listen," concluded the other, grimly. "I have just killed—"

And thus was the dog story contradicted. But this was a drama of mystery as well as of mysteries. No one could know what truly had happened?

There was no dead man was visible. But there were traces of blood in the fresh snow, and—well, there was the dead dog. It was solemnly taken up by the law, and with it a patch of the blood-stained snow.

Some minutes later the tragedy began again. Once more a door of the palace opened. Something was brought out from it; a body—Rasputin perhaps—wrapped in a fur motor car the stranger in followed it. So did another car-load of noble birth.

They set beside the fur-wrapped form the other seated himself at the side of the silent chauffeur. And with a whirr, the car was off.

This was the second stage of the drama enacted.

Presently, all these happenings in the collected knowledge of the Petrograd police. But the scene came to the mouth of the ice-bound Neva.

REVELATIONS OF THE NEVA.

What happened among the Neva ice can only be surmised. No one was there to witness the coming and going of any motor car.

But, by the bridge of a branch of the river, near Kamenostrovsky Island, a newly-made hole was found in the ice.

Around there were traces of blood. These seemed to tell their tale in the form of snow around the silent, dark and sinister hole.

Not very far away, near the bridge by the Petrovsky bridge, a galosh were found. They had been dropped unnoticed. Its contents were dark, suspicious stains of blood.

Such things were the discoveries of Saturday and Sunday.

In the time all Petrograd was agog with the tragedy. Yet, although all the world knew that the monk had been killed in the early watches of the night was the papers made direct mention of his name.

It was the high place that he held, and the power that he held, that was not silenced.

And followed the shots in the night was a series of events, in one of them, soon after the dead body had gone from the Yusupoff palace, young Prince Yusupoff went to the Minister of the Interior.

"I did it, and for what, at that unearthly hour?" He is only twenty-nine, has been married to Princess Irene only three years.

And while later he left Petrograd for whither might want him might be found on his Crimean estate. But he returned to the capital by the same hour, a certain group of high rank had his name linked with the dark, mysterious events of the tragic Friday night.

Meanwhile divers were at work under the waters of the uncommunicative icehole.

And on Monday morning they brought up the body of Gregory Rasputin from the Neva's chilly bed. In his head, chest and side were bullet wounds.

It was the third and last act of the tragedy.

"GREGORY THE RAKE."

Among all decent men the old Latin law rules, De mortuis nil nisi bonum (do not speak ill of the dead.) But Gregory Rasputin was not a decent man, and, though he be dead, the naked truth of him must be told. He was an illiterate Siberian peasant.

True, he was none the worse for that. But in himself the man was a moral leper, a religio-sensuous maniac, with hypnotic contagion and a power of communicating his leprosy to others.

It would be a libel upon Russia to say that his like could not be found outside the Tsar's dominions. Holy Russia is mystical Russia. And it is that air of mysticism that has made of Rasputin a thing of evil wonder to all the outer world.

For who was this figure as a man? In the language beloved of correspondents, "it is no exaggeration to say that the whole of Russia breathes more freely for the removal of a most baleful influence recognized as one of the pivots of the Germanophile forces." So writes one of Rasputin, and he adds:

"This mediaeval nightmare is now dissipated, and no purpose would be served by recapitulating its immoral horrors.

"One may leave history to marvel at the power wielded by the uneducated Siberian peasant, with his notorious depravity, whose name is execrated throughout the length and breadth of the Russian empire."

That was Rasputin. His "notorious depravity" did not stop short of the highest flights. His power over women was the key to it all. With the women behind him, he could do anything. So well could he do it that he was able to overshadow, for the time, even the Grand Duke Nicholas himself.

WHAT WERE THEY?

And did not the Grand Duke Nicholas formerly command the Russian armies?

Germany knew how to make use of him.

Tomsk, in Siberia, it was that gave Rasputin to the world. Neither soberness nor industry seemed particularly anxious to make his acquaintance in youth. Congenial company, indeed, called him "Grishka, the thief."

Not much more could have been wanted in the way of a doubtful certificate. Nor was Rasputin singled out for a gift of beauty. Your true churchman, with his soul in his calling, like Cardinal Newman, has a fine, ascetic face. But not so your Rasputin. A voluptuous pair of eyes and a pockmarked face!

Then, how was it that, with neither physical nor intellectual beauty to recommend him, Gregory Rasputin reached to high power? How came it, in short, that he was presently to become that sinister Muscovite figure, the Russian Richelieu?

A RUSSIAN RICHELIEU.

So little grace had his youth that he then seemed destined to spend his days in a penitentiary.

Well, that elusive, freakish thing, Luck, which plays capricious tricks with all of us, chanced to come upon him when Russia and Japan were at deadly grips.

Suddenly, a telegram was received in Petrograd, addressed to high government quarters. It was signed "Novykh"—Rasputin's true name. It prophesied great things for Russia in the war. As a prophecy it was only equalled by its grammar.

Yet, in the language of the American street, "it got home." Persons of high estate in the empire were impressed by it. Luck, by this chance stroke, sent encouragement Rasputin's way, and he sent more messages—all as cracked in grammar and as sorry in prophecy as the first.

And, presently, at the end of the war, he was invited to Petrograd.

Before long he was an idol of Russian society. Women, young and old, flocked to him. All of them vowed by him, hypnotized by the serpent fascination of his spells.

A sort of religion, as often in such abnormal crazes, was their basis. The Siberian peasant, whom his fellows had christened "Gregory Rasputin," otherwise "Gregory, the rake," founded a new creed in a new, religious, aristocratic academy.

"To live is to love. Every evil deed is immediately punished in this world, so that unless a man sins he has nothing for which to be forgiven. Therefore, to sin is the path to grace."

THAT WAS RASPUTINISM.

That was his teaching. That was Rasputinism.

And any self-respecting husband and father, if he had any care for his own peace as a man of the world, would take precious good care that his wife and daughters were not inoculated with the miasma chief of its virus.

These outgrowths of his depravity were events about the year 1912, and Rasputin thrived upon them. In the Tobolsk government he had already had good practice, winning for himself a reputation for sanctity, especially among the peasant women, who crowded to him for advice.

Now, in Petrograd, he was about 30. Gradually he was becoming a Richelieu, growing in power at court; and with his mystical religion, high politics became steadily and subtly intermingled. What that meant in a world which had become accustomed to ministerial intrigues, agents provocateurs, such as Azeff was, and bribery scandals, the veriest tyro in statecraft can understand.

Soon there were anti-Rasputins. Responsible men saw the danger of his growing influence, all unreformed and irresponsible as it was. There could have been no worse state adviser.

QUESTIONS IN THE DUMA.

In the Russian press men discussed "Rasputin." Questions came at last to be put about him in the Duma. What meant his interference in affairs of state? But fines upon offenders multiplied until he was a bold man who dared in the press to make an open attack. For weeks

PROF. JOHN H. AUSTIN

Hair Specialist of Chicago, Who Is Now at Hamburger's Says:

It is the birthright of every man and woman to have thick, glossy, luxuriant hair.

If your scalp itches
If you have dandruff
If your hair is falling out
If your hair is dry and brittle
If your hair is excessively oily

—the cause must be determined first; then it is a simple matted to effect a cure.

PROF. JOHN H. AUSTIN

Will determine by the use of a very powerful compound microscope the precise nature of your hair troubles.

According to Prof. Austin, there are something like 60 different conditions of the scalp and hair. Some are contagious, others develop from neglect. Practically all of them are curable in the early stages.

Prof. Austin says the use of dandruff cures, mange cures, vaseline, and hair tonics is like taking medicine without knowing what you are trying to cure. The particular trouble with which your scalp is afflicted must be known before it can be intelligently treated.

It doesn't cost a penny for the examination, and it puts you under no obligation to follow his advice if you don't want to do so.

Prof. Austin has devoted thirty-eight years to studying the hair and scalp. Surely it will be worth the few minutes it takes to let him turn the microscope on your hair. Women need not take down their hair.

During the past two years Prof. Austin has made thousands of free microscopic examinations of the hair and scalps of Hamburger patrons—and they enthusiastically appreciate this free service.

He will make FREE MICROSCOPIC EXAMINATIONS of the hair and scalp all this week in his private office on the Second Floor, Hamburger's. Hours, 10 to 12 a. m. and 2 to 4 p. m.

case are said to have been arrested, and, according to the papers, the conduct of the investigation has been entrusted to Gen. Kurloff, the confidential adviser of Minister of the Interior Protopopoff.

The papers are full of reminiscences of Rasputin, mostly of an unsavory and unedifying character, but all testifying to the enormous influence he wielded.

The body is to be buried either near Petrograd, or else in Rasputin's native village in Western Siberia.

An unconfirmed report from Moscow states that a fund for disabled soldiers has been opened in the name of Prince Yusupoff Sumarokoff Elsten.

The young Prince Yusupoff, son of the former Governor-General of Moscow, is about 29 years old, and is married to the Grand Duchess Irene, daughter of the Grand Duke Alexander Mikhallovitch and of the Grand Duchess Xenia, sister of the Emperor. He was educated at a private school in Petrograd, and also at Oxford, and a few years ago was a popular figure in London society. On the death of his elder brother he became sole heir to vast Yusupoff estates.

The recipients are William Scheuermann, Rolf Brand, Prof. George Wegener and Herr Katsch. Aside from one or two authors and special writers, they are the first newspaper men to be so distinguished.

BRITISH FAVOR RAISING OF PIGS.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The raising of pigs in small suburban gardens, which has been so severely tabooed by the sanitary authorities, is likely to become an accomplished fact in the near future. Baron Rhondda, president of the local government board, and Mr. Prothero, president of the Board of Agriculture, in a special memorandum, indicate that the best way to increase the nation's food supply is the keeping og pigs, poultry and rabbits and that a regulation is about to be made giving power to sanitary authorities to grant permission for the keeping of pigs.

MEXICANS TRAINING ALL SCHOOLBOYS.

[A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 25.—Many a Mexican schoolboy has blisters on his hands as a result of the military training all scholars are compelled to undergo, for the instruction is not confined to drill and manual of arms, but includes a thorough course in pick and shovel work in the trenches. The Campos de Anzures, or plains lying near the castle of Chapultepec, are criss-crossed with a thorough system of trenches and fortifications constructed by the cadets. On these plains are staged sham battles at regular intervals. The boys are instructed by army officers and often are maneuvered with regular troops.

SWEDISH BANKS ARE CONSOLIDATED.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

STOCKHOLM (Sweden) Jan. 15.—Boras Private Bank has been consolidated with the Bank of Southern Sweden, a further move in what appears to be an almost epidemic strengthening of Sweden's banking facilities, which began two or three months ago with various consolidations and capital increases. The new organization will have a capital of 30,000,000 crowns and a reserve exceeding 18,000,000.

RAILROAD WORKERS THREATEN STRIKE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—A recently-formed organization of employees in the maintenance department of the Illinois Central Railroad has threatened a strike to cover the entire system if demands for an increase in wages and a standard wage scale are not granted, it was learned today.

Labor leaders asserted that they have strength enough to cause about 10,000 men to stop work if the demands are not granted.

Following a conference with officials of the road, C. H. Markham, president of the company, made public a statement which in substance said that the road does not intend to give sanction to the organization or to meet its demands in any for its passage, Representative McMullen of Bonneville county declared that the main purpose of it was to prevent Japanese from gaining title to valuable sugar beet and other lands located in his county. The Japanese were hit hard.

Anderson of Canyon asserted that the bill was American in every particular. Majority Leader Moody referred pointedly to the California situation on the same subject and said his sympathies were with the Californians in their fight against Japanese occupancy. There was applause when the Speaker announced after the roll call that the bill had passed by an unanimous vote.

PROFESSOR'S WARNING.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Jan. 27.—Japanese garrisons ruling every important American city is the menace the United States faces if the country continues to think more of its "pork barrel" than adequate appropriations for its army and navy, in the opinion of Dr. Stanley K. Hornbeck, professor of political science at the University of Wisconsin and one of the best-known authorities and writers on that subject in the nation. He gave a lecture today at the meeting of the Western Oriental Society at the University of Chicago. He was for many years a teacher in a Chinese university.

"If we feel that we cannot afford an army and navy adequate to guarantee the peace and future of our republic, while we continue to waste millions in 'pork barrel' methods," he said, "we will find ourselves where China is now—with Japanese police ruling our big centers and virtually dictating the policy of the nation. We must have adequate defense or our sovereignty is gone. The people of California are better able to judge of Oriental immigration than are New York editors. It is a personal question primarily and as a matter of national policy secondarily. Our fault is that we have no policy with regard to the Orient."

AGITATION IN OREGON.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Jan. 27.—Oregon will never become the cause of scrambling the diplomatic relations of Japan and the United States as California did through discriminatory land legislation, if the Chamber of Commerce is able to block the alien land bill, which is pending in the Legislature at this time.

"Do not disturb pleasant and promising commercial relations by an act that is not warranted at the present time and has no need in the protection of the interests of the State of Oregon," is the admonition with which the chamber opens a presentation of the case, which was sent today to the members of the Legislature, urging that the proposed alien land bill be not passed.

It is modeled upon the same lines as the alien land bill which stirred up international difficulties when California passed it, and later had to be repealed, and is on the same lines as the alien land bill which the Washington Legislature rejected at its last session. The bill is known as Senate bill No. 61, and is introduced by Senator Wilbur of Hood River. It is intended to restrict further the holding of land in Oregon by Chinese, Japanese or Hindoo people.

The presentation from the Chamber of Commerce says, in part:

"We respectfully submit that there is no demand for such action by the Legislature, that the best interests of Oregon are not menaced in any manner by property holdings of Chinese, Japanese and Hindoos in the State, and, further, that agitation of this subject at the present time and enactment of such a law as that proposed in Senate bill No. 61, would have the effect of seriously disturbing the very friendly and promising commercial relations existing between this State and the Oriental countries.

"On the other hand, Oregon must have, in the future, if it progresses with other Pacific States, an enormous commerce in the Orient. At the present time Oregon is viewed with the utmost friendliness by the Oriental peoples because of its attitude in respect to them.

"The best authority at hand indicates that there are but 3600 Japanese in the State of Oregon, a negligible percentage of the total population, with the tendency to decrease rather than increase, and the operations of this limited number are not of a character that should alarm the people of Oregon."

PLEADS GUILTY OF DOUBLE MURDER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 27.—John M. Couch, charged with killing Miss Nellie M. Dunn and Rowland Williams of Oklahoma City, today pleaded guilty when arraigned before a justice of the peace.

Miss Dunn, who was a sister-in-law of Couch, recently was killed at the school where she was a teacher, and Williams, a music instructor, was killed a few minutes later at his studio.

In a letter today to the County Attorney, Mrs. Couch, divorced wife of the prisoner, appealed to the official to see that the law is fully vindicated and that can only be vindicated by Mr. Couch suffering the extreme penalty of the law. The extreme penalty in Oklahoma is death.

The executive council last Wednesday voted to commute the sentence.

Secretary of Treasury Tells Former President of Atlantic Transport Line He Wished Denman of San Francisco Selected Chairman of Shipping Board.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Jan. 27.—Because Bernard N. Baker, former president of the Atlantic Transport Line, would not agree to let William Gibbs McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury and son-in-law of the President, run the Shipping Board, he was forced to resign from the board. It had been expected that Mr. Baker, as the best qualified expert in practical experiences on the board, would be made chairman. Strength was lent to this expectation because Mr. Baker was permitted to name every member of the board except one—William Denman of San Francisco.

On Thursday McAdoo sent for Mr. Baker and informed him that he wished Mr. Denman selected as chairman of the board, since the administration wished to have a man from the Pacific Coast at the head of the organization. Just why he wished the Pacific Coast to be thus recognized he did not explain, but the President has been quite frank in talks with Senators urging the water power and oil bills. He has admitted half a dozen times that he wished to discharge the debt of the administration to the West. It might be observed here that certainly the water power bill will not pass, and the oil bill is very doubtful, so that there is no chance of paying any political debt there.

BAKER ASTOUNDED.

Utterly astounded, Mr. Baker said he would have to have a night to think it over. Having written the bill as desired by the administration and worked harder than any other one man to get the measure through Congress, he naturally thought he was going to have a voice in the direction of the $50,000,000 government enterprise.

"He didn't know McAdoo was really going to be on the board," grinned a Democrat Senator who had heard the story. "He thought he was going to be something more than a puppet."

Mr. McAdoo made it clear to Mr. Baker that the President was supporting him in this insistence on dictating the board's moves, so, not knowing where the dictation would end, and not desiring to be responsible for something he had no real control over, Mr. Baker had no alternative but to resign.

Senators in discussing the affair tonight recalled that it was Mr. Baker who, when Secretary McAdoo had been accused of a design to buy the interned German liners during the session at which the first ship purchase bill failed, testified exonerating the Cabinet member.

TESTIMONY RECALLED.

His testimony was recalled, particularly because of the sad circumstance that although Mr. Baker's wife died that morning he forced himself to testify later in the day before the lobby committee appointed to ferret out the charges made by Senators Burton and Briston.

Mr. Baker was overcome while on the stand and had to be allowed a few moments to recover.

Dry City Agitated.

entered into the now famous compromise with the Billingsleys, by which all of the city cases against them were dropped.

That Gill on the afternoon he is alleged to have accepted. Logan's money agreed to afford Billingsley liquor shipments protection and to lend the influence of his official position as head of the police department to the promotion of their illicit whisky traffic, is another startling government charge.

According to the testimony of Logan Billingsley, when he and Gill met in the Mayor's office Gill signified to Billingsley that he (Gill) knew of police graft.

"The trouble is you ought to pay your fare to the right conductor," Gill is alleged to have declared.

Billingsley alleges he immediately seized the opportunity to suggest that he pay the Mayor graft money in monthly installments for protection, and that the Mayor replied he did not care to do business on that basis.

"I want mine in a lump sum," Gill is alleged to have stated.

After a few more words the bribe is alleged to have been passed, Logan handing over $4000 in a huge roll, consisting of $100 bills, which he alleges the Mayor promptly grabbed and put in his pockets.

Police Chief Charles L. Beckingham is alleged to have received a number of large bribes from Fred Billingsley, as one of the financial agents of the whisky ring, and to have accepted this money for acts to be performed in furtherance of the conspiracy charged.

OTHER CHARGES.

On one occasion, Beckingham stands charged with having taken $600 in return for an alleged attempt by him to aid the syndicate in acquiring sixty cases of whisky. The liquor was stored in the Star Carriage Works, First Avenue South and Stacy street.

The Police Chief also is accused of accepting a bribe of $500 in Fred Billingsley's rooms in a local apartment-house in return for effecting the arrest of E. J. Margett, the release of two of the ring's drivers, then under arrest, and surrender by the police of one of the Billingsleys' automobile trucks.

Sweeping through both city and county offices, the Federal investigation resulted in the indictment by the grand jury of former Sheriff Robert T. Hodge, twice a candidate for Governor, on a charge of promising the liquor syndicate protection and accepting $1000 for his alleged part in the monster conspiracy.

The sensational charges against Hodge deal in starling detail with the mysterious manner in which Billingsley whisky in large quantities strangely disappeared after it had been taken in custody by the Sheriff's office.

Hodge is declared by Federal officials to be involved in the graft not only through the evidence supplied the grand jury by the Billingsleys, but also through the testimony of a large number of other witnesses, said to include several deputies who held office under him during his last administration.

CAREER OF GILL.

Mayor Gill has had a stormy career in the past seven years. In March, 1910, after he had been in city politics twelve years, most of that time Councilman, Gill was elected Mayor of Seattle. Almost immediately his administration was assailed for alleged toleration of vice and in the spring of 1911 Gill was removed from office by the recall, with women voting for the first time. Subsequently, Charles Wappenstein, Gill's Chief of Police, was sentenced to the State penitentiary for accepting a bribe. Gill ran for Mayor in 1912, asking vindication, and was defeated, but in 1914 he was elected Mayor by an enormous majority, running as a Good Government candidate and being supported by many persons who were prominent in the movement that recalled him. Gill was re-elected Mayor in March, 1916. When the prohibition law was adopted Gill promised that it would be rigidly enforced, and raids upon bars at which liquor was sold in violation of law resulted in demolition of fittings valued at nearly $100,000 and seizure and demolition of vast supplies of liquor. Gill has been a champion of the prohibition law, writing and speaking in its favor and receiving much commendation from prohibition leaders. Only last week the State officers of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union sent Gill a letter expressing their confidence in him.

FRIEND OF GILL.

Beckingham was appointed Chief of Police from private life and is a close personal friend of Gill.

Robert T. Hodge, three times Sheriff of King county, was Progressive candidate for Governor in 1912, and spoke from the same platform with Theodore Roosevelt, who praised his ability as a campaign orator. Hodge sought the Republican nomination for Governor last fall, but was defeated in the primaries.

Logan and Fred Billingsley came to Seattle early last year and opened a drug store. They are said to be well known in West Virginia and Oklahoma. Their drug store was demolished by the police and stores of liquor owned by them were seized and destroyed. A street fight outside of the Billingsley warehouse in Seattle last summer resulted in two policemen and a Billingsley watchman being shot dead.

If convicted of a felony the Mayor would be removed automatically.

REAMES'S STATEMENT.

PORTLAND (Or.) Jan. 27.—United States District Attorney Clarence L. Reames of Oregon, who is acting as special prosecutor in the cases at Seattle wherein indictments were returned against the Mayor and others, returned to his home here today after having presented the government's case before the grand jury.

"We have our evidence all compiled," said Mr. Reames, "and our witnesses can be reached on short notice. The indictments speak for themselves and I can at present say nothing further as to the strength of our cases."

Mr. Reames will return to Seattle next Monday.

UNION DESPOTS DROP THE MASK

Desperate Drive to Throttle Industry is Planned.

Legalize Picketing, Boycotts, Sabotage, New Demand.

Human Parasites Introduce Bill in Legislature.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 27.—Union-labor despots from coast to coast have united in a desperate effort to force through the Legislature of California an anti-injunction bill, which would legalize picketing, boycotting, sabotage, sympathetic boycotts, restraint of trade, destruction of property, sympathetic strikes and almost every other known form of wanton destruction of property and violation of labor and property rights practiced by these human parasites to throttle independent labor and independent industry in California.

This act was introduced in the State Senate yesterday by Senator Flaherty of San Francisco, a relict of the Ruef-Schmitz regime in that city who now forms a part of the invisible government by which the State is harassed. The bill is the product of a conference between the officials of the State Federation of Labor and the union-labor lobby of the national capital presided over by Gompers. It is the opening wedge for the new labor-union demands that are to follow the passage by the Wilson administration of the labor-union amendment to the Clayton Anti-injunction Act.

California has been selected as the State that offers the best opportunity for the passage of such a measure. If it can be placed on the statute books of California an attempt will be made to use that as an opening to secure its adoption in other States. The ultimate result sought is to force the industry and labor of the State and nation to pay perpetual tribute to these twentieth century buccaneers who form the American Federation of Labor.

MAY NULLIFY PROTECTION.

Life and property of independent citizens in Los Angeles are protected in part from the thugs of the unions, known as the dynamite squads, by an anti-picketing ordinance. This ordinance would be nullified by the clause in the Flaherty bill, which legalizes picketing ad libitum.

San Francisco has just passed a similar ordinance at an initiative election. That ordinance, too, will be without effect if the Flaherty act passes.

A clause in the act expressly forbids the issuance of injunctions by the State courts in cases involving so-called labor disputes. Under the terms of this act any firm selected for pillage by the union-labor despots would be without recourse to law. Strikers could invade and take possession of any mine, workshop or factory, where a strike had been ordered, and not even the police or deputy Sheriff could interfere.

Immediate destruction of the property by fire would be a boon to the owner, as the insurance would then protect from total loss.

BID FOR LAWLESSNESS.

"Sympathetic" strikes and boycotts, with picketing and attendant lawlessness, could be conducted by the labor despots at will. The protecting arm of the law is withdrawn from any firm, company or association that incurs the ill-will of these union autocrats.

Elaborate preparations have been made for lobbying this act through the Legislature. Headquarters have been opened by the State Federation of Labor at Tenth and K streets here, a suite of offices has been engaged, a bevy of lobbyists is installed there and they are supplied with a slush fund said to be in excess of $10,000. A part of this made its appearance during the closing days of the present session. There were wine dinners, automobile parties and slumming parties for members of the Legislature, conducted by these union-labor lobbyists. There were also rumors of poker games in which the members of the Legislature always won and the lobbyists always lost.

This labor lobby is headed by two notorious walking delegates, who hold $4000-a-year jobs under the present State administration.

One is J. L. McLaughlin, who is rewarded jointly by the State and by the unions for unionizing the State Labor Bureau. He holds the title of State Labor Commissioner, draws $4000 yearly from the State and liberal expenses and spends his time in Sacramento during the legislative session as chief of the labor lobby.

Associated with him is Paul Scharrenberg, a walking delegate from the Sailors' Union, who draws a fat salary from the State as secretary of the Immigration and Housing Commission, and is employed by the unionists as Assembly lobbyist. The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen are also represented by a paid lobbyist for the present session. Plainly the passage of this anti-injunction, pro-picketing bill is greatly desired by that organization.

FORMER LABOR LOBBIES.

There have been anti-injunction bills in the past, but none so sweeping in scope nor so vicious in its terms as the one just filed. There have been other labor lobbies, but none so numerous nor so lavish in its display of money as that which secured the introduction of the present anti-injunction, pro-picketing bill.

When the bill was under preparation, it was said to be an exact copy of the Wilson amendment to the Clayton anti-injunction bill. But its text legalizes picketing and other forms of lawless procedure which are not touched upon in that act.

Here is one section of the act which shows in part the restraint it places on the courts and the monopoly of lawlessness that it confers upon the walking delegates:

Section III—No restraining order or injuction shall prohibit any person or persons, whether singly or concert, from terminating any relation of employment or from ceasing to perform any work or labors; or from recommending, advising or persuading others to do so; or from attending at any place where any person or persons may lawfully be, for the purpose of obtaining or communicating information, or from persuading any such person to work or to abstain from working or from ceasing to patronize any party to such dispute; or from recommending, advising or persuading others so to do; or from paying or giving to, or withholding from, any person engaged in such dispute, strike benefits or other moneys or things of value; or from assembling in a lawful manner, and for lawful purposes; or from doing any act or thing which might lawfully be done in the absence of such dispute by a single individual; nor shall any of the acts specified in this section be considered or held to be illegal or unlawful in any court of this State.

It will be observed that this section would not only legalize street and sidewalk picketing, but would empower the dynamite squads to enter shops and work to coerce and intimidate workmen while actually engaged in their labor. They are empowered to enter, "any place where any person or persons may lawfully be." That gives them the same right in the works of the factory as the workmen themselves.

An attempt was made to have this act introduced by Senator Benson, floor leader of the administration in the Assembly. He pretended to be friendly to the measure, but declined to permit it to carry his name. Later it was offered to Senator Lyon of Los Angeles; but in the end the walking delegates were forced to fall back upon one of their own number from an old Abe Ruef of San Francisco district to secure its adoption. The fight over this bill promises to be one of the most notable of the session. Its proponents claim that it carried the indorsement of Mayor Jim Rolph of San Francisco, the man who is already being groomed as the administration candidate for Governor in 1918.

"MYSTERY MAN" IN MOONEY TRIAL KNOWN

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 27.—The "mystery man" with the bristly mustache, who was referred to by Frank Coxman during the latter's testimony in the murder trial of Thomas J. Mooney yesterday as the man who helped Mooney and his alleged accomplices place the suit case on the spot where a bomb exploded a few minutes later, killing ten persons, is known to the San Francisco police.

Dist.-Atty. Fickert admitted as much late today. He said that the police would arrest the man when the time came. It was understood that this man was ignorant of the contents of the suit case, which the State claims contained the infernal machine.

Coxman, who is a wealthy cattleman of Durkee, Or., is to be cross-examined again Monday morning, when the trial reconvenes.

USE AIRPLANES IN FOREST FIRE

Wisconsin Plan Discussed at Conservation Meeting.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Jan. The story of how Wisconsin fights forest fires with an airplane was told in detail before the annual convention of the Western Forestry and Conservation Congress, which is copying the Wisconsin method for fire prevention in its great forests, comprising millions of square miles, in the five States of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and California.

The story of Wisconsin's work was told in a letter from Fred Moody, Wisconsin conservation commissioner, who was the pioneer in this work, by engaging L. A. (Jack) Vilas, to do airplane scouting for fires in the summer of 1916. He said:

"At an elevation of 1500 feet on a clear day, a fire sixty miles away in any direction is visible to the naked eye. It is not a case of finding the fire, but to locate it correctly is the job. Smoke will show up very plainly from the air.

"Mr. Vilas reports that during a flight across Lake Michigan from St. Joseph to Chicago, he was completely out of sight of land, so that, for that matter, more than three-quarters of an hour at an altitude of 4600 feet. The only thing he saw was the smoke from the Chicago rolling mills. These in sight over ten minutes before any shoreline was visible at all.

"People often ask what a country looks like from the air. It is difficult to describe it except that it looks like a large painted map on a small scale without outlines.

"The efficiency of an airplane in spotting a forest fire is without doubt as practicable as any use to which it could be put. I was very much surprised with what small a fire could be spotted and located, and there is no question in my mind, but what the airplane will practically do away with some of the observation towers.

"The use of the airplane in the European war in the way of locating and locating gunners, ammunition men, supply trains, etc., is well known. All such objects show comparatively small in comparison with forest fires.

"The observations of Mr. Vilas are most interesting, coming as the only one who actually has undertaken work of this character.

WITHDRAW FROM MEXICO ORDER ISSUED, BUT A PATROL WILL STAY ON BORDER.

Troops Coming Back at a Period when Skirmishes Between Mexicans and Americans on International Line are Causing Apprehension Even in Washington—Villa to Seize Colonia Dublan Territory.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Withdrawal of the American military expedition in Mexico was ordered by the War Department today and by the end of another week the entire command, after ten months on Mexican soil, probably will have recrossed into the United States.

The order went to Gen. Funston, in command at the border, and left to his discretion the exact time of starting the northward movement and the details of carrying it out.

For several weeks he has known of the administration's determination to order the troops back to the border and under his direction the expedition has been concentrated for the long march. Officials here understand that some advance units already have started north and believe that within forty-eight hours the whole column will be in motion.

At the border the regulars will relieve a considerable portion, if not all, of the National Guardsmen remaining on duty there. Already about 25,000 of the State troops in the border patrol have been ordered home and their movement probably will be under way by the time Pershing's men arrive on American soil.

Although officials have been silent on the subject of Mexico since failure of the joint commission negotiations, developments outwardly have coupled the troop withdrawal with Carranza's refusal to accept the Atlantic City protocol and have plainly forecast an intention to leave the First Chief settle for himself hereafter the many problems endangering the tenure of the de facto government.

PATROL THE BORDER.

A patrol considered adequate to protect the border will be maintained rigidly, however, and notice has been served on Carranza that the United States will not hesitate to use its armed forces again, if necessary, to protect American territory and American rights. The Americans on the joint commission told their Mexican colleagues at Atlantic City that this government never would relinquish the right of unlimited and unrestricted pursuit of bandits guilty of border depredations.

That Pershing's command, sent into Mexico last March to disperse the bandits who raided Columbus, will be regrouped at the border and put into a condition of preparedness for a recurrence of raiding, is not doubted here; and in that connection army officers are observing with keen interest the preparations being made by Villa and his followers and allies to occupy the territory that Pershing will evacuate.

Some slight anxiety was displayed at the War Department today over the outcome of the skirmishing between Mexicans and American troops on the border near Ruby, Ariz. No official report was received but unofficial reports indicating that the Mexicans might be de facto government troops gave rise to the suggestion that the encounter might develop a complication delaying the withdrawal of Pershing. Such a contingency, however, was not believed likely.

SECRECY.

All the recent moves in the Mexican situation, however, and all those in contemplation, are kept secret by the officials shaping the course of the administration. After Carranza sent back the Atlantic City protocol without his signature it was made known that the next step would be taken without announcement and that the future policy of the administration would be revealed only as it was translated into action. In line with this decision the War Department made no announcement of the withdrawal order today and officials there and at the State Department and the White House rigidly preserved silence about Mexico.

It is known, however, that President Wilson's determination to withdraw the troops followed closely upon the failure of Carranza to ratify the agreement entered into at Atlantic City, and that Mr. Wilson indorsed the American commissioners' recommendation that he act independently on the question of withdrawal and adopt a policy of purely formal, rather than altruistic treatment of Carranza.

Gen. Funston was apprised of this decision immediately and soon after that went into Mexico and discussed with Gen. Pershing, personally, the question of moving the troops. His return to the border was followed by preliminary movements to facilitate a withdrawal. The plan is to march the entire force out at the same time, leaving no detachment far to the rear as a bait for attacks from wandering bands of rebels.

Whether the railroad will be utilized for transportation of any of the supplies will depend upon Gen. Pershing's judgment. There is at Colonia Dublan a huge quantity of stores, increased now by those brought north from El Valle. The transportation of these stores can be done by truck trains, but the commander may decide to ship some o fthem as ordinary railroad freight.

Gen. Pershing will leave behind him as few physical traces of his presence as possible. Dispatches already received from his Headquarters indicate that the flimsy shelters, adobe and wood, are being removed at all points where erected by the Americans. When the Americans evacuated Vera Cruz, they left standing many light wooden structures they had erected, and these promptly were utilized by the native forces. It has been indicated that the border guard will be maintained indefinitely at almost its present potential strength, even if it is reduced in numbers. It is pointed out that the stationing of Pershing's 14,000 men along the border will make up for the withdrawal of more than an equal number of Guardsmen, because a large part of the strength of the army on the border has been used up to now in supporting the column south of the line.

Many army officers high in the service believe that the withdrawal of Gen. Pershing will mean early occupation of the territory about Colonia Dublan by Villa and his followers. Gen. Obregon has ordered the forces of Generals Murguia and Diegues to that section, but information at the War Department indicates that Villa, with a strong command, has been moving steadily forward into strategic positions near-by, prepared for a determined interference with Carranza's forces whenever he can get all of them.

Dispersed.

icans, who were in a brush with American cowboys yesterday.

A small body of Mexican troops left Nogales, Sonora, across the border from here, today, supposedly to proceed to the scene of the reported trouble.

Military headquarters here received a message from Lieut. Arns, stating all troops at Arivaca had been sent to the scene of the fight. No casualties were reported and details of the fight were not given.

Col. Camargo with seventy-five Mexican troops sent to that vicinity recently to drive out bandits, was reported still there, but Mexican authorities at Nogales, Sonora, said they were confident his men were not involved.

Upon the arrival Friday morning about 11 o'clock of Lieut. Arns, his force occupied the Stone House, but a small adobe house a few feet from the line, seemed to offer a better position, and the lieutenant and his men advanced and occupied this building under fire of the Mexicans. Here his little force of eighteen men spent Friday night with sentinels pacing the line in front of the house. No shots were exchanged during the night, but the Mexicans renewed the attack at 7:30 o'clock this morning. It continued several hours without apparent effect, when the lieutenant decided to cross the line. Leaving ten men to guard the line, he took other members of his force and entered Mexico at a point some distance from the zone of the fighting.

NO DEAD OR WOUNDED.

While no dead or wounded were found at the position held by the Mexicans, the Americans found bloodstains, which indicated that some of their shots had found their mark and the dead or wounded had been carried away by the retreating Mexicans. Not an American was so much as scratched by the bullets of the attackers.

Lieut. Arns's force returned to camp at Arivaca tonight. Arivaca is about six miles north of the Stone House. Troops F and G of the Utah Cavalry arrived at Ruby, where the Montana mine is located, tonight. They are commanded by Maj. Wallace, who now is in charge of the situation.

American troopers say they are positive the attackers were de facto troops, as individual soldiers seen among them were known to belong to the regular Carranza garrison which was sent to that point recently. Col. Camargo has been in command of the Mexican troops stationed at Sasabe, a Sonora-Arizona Mexican border station a few miles west, but it is not believed that he was present at the fight. It is not known by Americans at the scene of the fighting who commanded the attackers, though Capt. Serrano was with them several days before the attack.

N. C. Bernard, Supervisor of Pima county, returning to Arivaca from the scene of the fighting early tonight, confirmed reports that the Mexican band which clashed with the Americans was a company of Carranza soldiers under Capt. Serrano. He said he was informed they had been patrolling the line in that vicinity, administering the customs.

"They were the only Mexican troops west of Nogales," said Mr. Bernard, "and have always been known as Carranza followers. If they were not Carranza soldiers this week they were last."

Mr. Bernard said the Utah cavalry pursued the Mexicans more than a mile into Mexico. In the rocks where the Mexicans hid themselves the American troops found a number of bloodstains, he said, adding that they evidently carried off their wounded.

BANDITS IN UNIFORM.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NOGALES (Ariz.) Jan. 27.—The fighting at Ruby, Ariz., between American troops and Mexicans was caused by some twenty-five irresponsible Mexican bandit cattle rustlers, according to a statement made by Brig.-Gen. E. H. Plummer here late tonight. The bandits, he said, were resisting cowboys who were trying to recover stolen cattle. He said the Mexican bandits fired first from the American side of the boundary line.

No regular Carranza troops took part in the affair, he said, although some of the bandits were in uniform. The firing, Gen. Plummer stated, continued in a desultory manner until 11 o'clock today, with no one hurt on either side.

Gen. Plummer said the fight resulted from an old feud caused by the Mexicans' habit of stealing cattle in Arivaca district.

AMERICANS QUIT COLONIA DUBLAN.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

JUAREZ (Mex.) Jan. 27.—American troops were marching out of Colonia Dublan toward the border at 7 o'clock this morning, according to a message which was received at Casas Grandes. The message did not give the extent of the troop movement, but it was predicted in Casas Grandes that the entire expeditionary force would be on the road northward during the day.

BRITISH HALT ARMS GOING TO CARRANZA

PLOT TO GET AMERICAN-MADE MUNITIONS INTERRUPTED.

Conviction in London of Spaniard, Under Defense Act, Brings to Light Plans for Resisting Possible Intervention by the United States.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Jan. 27.—A plot to ship a large quantity of American-made arms and ammunition into Mexico so that Carranza would be equipped to resist possible intervention by the United States was brought to light here yesterday when a Spaniard named Julian Urgoite was found guilty under the Defense of the Realm Act of attempting to deal in war material.

The testimony at the trial implicated one Felix de la Reguera, who is now in Mexico, and who claimed to represent the Mexican Minister of War, as well as Gen. Obregon himself. Urgoite testified that he had lived six years in Mexico.

The British authorities interrupted the plot, which was to ship a large quantity of arms and ammunition from America ostensibly for the United Kingdom, but when once on the high seas to divert them to Mexico.

NINTH CONVICTION.

The conviction of Urgoite is the ninth to be obtained under the Defense of the Realm Act for attempting to deal in war materials without permission.

Felix de la Reguera indicated in his correspondence with Urgoite that a Mexican ship named the Plan de Guadelupe could be used to smuggle the war supplies into Mexico.

July 19, 1916, Gen. Obregon wrote to say that the Mexican government was ready to buy from 5,000,000 to 10,000,000 cartridges and 10,000 rifles if there was a guarantee that the shipment would be delivered at a Mexican port.

There is nothing to show what munition makers in the United States were to figure in the transaction, although all the correspondence in the case seems to show it was certain supplies could be obtained. The shipments were intended to be made either through New York or New Orleans, according to the correspondence.

LETTER OUTLINES PLOT.

The plot is well outlined in a letter from Felix de la Reguera to Urgoite, which says:

"The Mexican government possesses a 1500-ton transport, which, though old, is in sufficiently good condition to be navigable." This vessel is the Plan de Guadelupe. She would, he asserts, have a Spanish crew who would make a voyage to Spain and leave the vessel there, and he adds:

"Later, as you direct, it could go to New York or New Orleans, or whatever port the goods purchased for us are sent to, so as to avoid all suspicion, although the ship would clear for an English port and once on the high seas, would make her journey to these shores."

OBREGON WANTED DETAILS.

Reguera tells in another letter how Obregon had sent for him because his adjutant wanted to be made acquainted with all the details of the scheme, and Reguera fears there might be some delay, due, he says, "to this cruel war going on at present."

The case was viewed seriously here, not only because of the contravention of the Defense of the Realm regulations, but because, in the event of the plot's success, it might have created an embarrassing Anglo-American situation.

UP TO WITNESSES.

Must Tell if They Knew of Alleged Leak in Advance.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Each witness who is examined when the House Rules Committee resumes here Monday its investigation of the alleged "leak" of advance information on the President's peace note will be asked point blank whether he had advance knowledge of the action contemplated by Mr. Wilson, it was announced by Sherman L. Whipple, counsel of the committee, tonight.

Mr. Whipple declared he had not yet found one who would admit having received "what might be called advance information" nor had any one acknowledged spreading the confidential information given newspaper men by Secretary of State Lansing the morning of the day the note was made public.

"We are trying to trace the 'leak' to an earlier hour than Secretary Lansing's confidential statement," said Mr. Whipple.

Witnesses will be asked, he explained, why they thought the market was "bearish," and how they learned of this condition. He emphasized, however, that the committee was not trying to prove there was a "leak" or to disprove it, but merely seeking information on which to formulate its own conclusions.

RE-ELECT INTERNAL REVENUE MINISTER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MONTREAL, Jan. 27. — In the first Federal election contest since the war began, Albert Savigny, Minister of Internal Revenue, defeated Lucien Cannon, Liberal candidate, in the bye-election in Dorchester county, Quebec, today. The victor, who was re-elected, formerly was Speaker of the House of Commons.

Mr. Savigny fought election on the strength of the achievements of the Borden government and on his personal record as a politician. His opponent, who is a member of the provisional Legislature, attacked Mr. Savigny's "political inconsistency," charging that his first election to Parliament was the result of opposition to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's naval policy and objections to giving aid to Great Britain.

COMPANY TO AID ON BRITISH DEBT.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Jan. 27.—A great private organization aiming "to promote the development of the empire's resources in order to assist in the payment of the war debt," has been launched under a committee styled the Empire Resources Development Committee. W. Evans and A. H. Paget, members of the House of Commons, and Rudyard Kipling.

The purposes of the committee are outlined as "conservation for the benefit of the empire of such natural resources as are or may come under the ownership or control of the imperial dominion and Indian governments; the development of selected resources of the empire under such conditions as will give the state an adequate share; for conserving and developing the resources of the empire so the imperial effort may concentrate on assets ripe for development for the common good of the empire."

COAST FLOUR RATES ORDERED REDUCED.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Complaint that prevailing freight rates on flour and other wheat products from Utah and Idaho to San Francisco, San Jose, Stockton and other California and Nevada points are too high, was found justified today by the Interstate Commerce Commission, which issued an order requiring the railroads to establish not later than April 16 rates that shall not exceed by more than 5 cents per 100 pounds the present rates on wheat.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 27.—The cut ordered today by the Interstate Commerce Commission in flour and wheat rates from Utah and Idaho to California and Nevada cities is a serious blow to California's milling industry, officials of the Chamber of Commerce and milling men said. The present differential in favor of wheat, they said, gave them the advantage in California and Nevada markets on the manufactured products.

DEPORT BELGIANS OF HIGHER CLASS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Deportations of Belgians from their native country into Germany by the German government have assumed a wider scope, and the transfer of the civilian population now includes young men of prominent families, according to a cablegram received by the Belgian Consul General in this city and made public today. Heretofore deportations included chiefly males of the working classes.

The message, certified by the Belgian government, says that "several groups of young men of prominent families have already been sent to Germany from Brussels" and that information from Ghent is that "men of all ranks and all professions also are being deported into Germany."

GERMANS FORCE FRENCH TO WORK.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Jan. 27.—Seven hundred thousand inhabitants of the invaded regions in the north of France are engaged in forced labor for the Germans, according to M. Dibudeville, Mayor of the town of Corchy, who has just arrived from the occupied region at Evian.

The Mayor's estimate, he says, is based upon careful, serious calculation, taking as a basis the number of inhabitants personally known by him as having been taken from the communes in his region. Three hundred out of the 900 inhabitants of the village of Esmery-Hallow, he declares, have been obliged to serve the German occupying forces, the recalcitrants being imprisoned or exiled to Germany. No distinctions are made as to age or sex in the choice of the forcibly enrolled laborers, M. Dibudeville says.

Try This If You Have Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless,) is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

BROAD SCHEME FOR DEFENSE

Nation-wide Campaign for Patriotism Indorsed.

Universal Military Training Urged at Convention.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—[illegible] phatic approval of a broad plan of national defense was given unanimously today by the Committee on Constructive Patriotism at the closing business session of its meeting here under the auspices of the National Security League. In a statement of principles, the committee declared for universal military training, for restoration of the navy, to second place in the Atlantic and first place in the Pacific, development of American water power, for a nation-wide campaign for patriotism through schools and for effective American efforts to destroy dual citizenship.

Tonight the meeting came to an end with a banquet attended by more than 800 delegates with addresses by Rear-Admiral [illegible] E. Peary, Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the Senate Military Committee; former Senator Lafayette Young of Iowa, and Gen. W. Wickersham, former Attorney General. Admiral Peary outlined a programme for developing an air power for defense and referred to part air attacks have had in the fighting of the present war.

INDIVIDUAL RIGHTS.

In its declaration of principles that the congress affirmed the belief that the right of the individual to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, is the basic principle of the American government and declared:

"And we hold that in our relations with foreign governments we should continue to affirm and defend these rights."

All Americans, it is said, should be brought to realize the "dangers that beset our nation, inasmuch as we are supposed to defend our national honor against other nations whose actions and theories of government may be in conflict with our own."

The congress also adopted a committee report outlining a comprehensive plan of spreading knowledge on the duty and privilege of citizenship, and a resolution favoring the enactment of Legislation to secure a national [illegible] system."

PRINCIPLES INDORSED.

In recommending universal training, the congress indorsed the following general principles:

"The training to be [illegible] continuous field or [illegible] the period necessary to [illegible] effective soldier or sailor.

Moderating Winds Give Hope of Early Relief.

No Hardships Experienced by Passengers, 'Tis Said.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHEYENNE (Wyo.) Jan. 27.—Moderating winds, clearer weather and the fact that one train was proceeding slowly westward behind a rotary snow plow late today, were cited by Union Pacific railroad officials as basis for hope that they might succeed in terminating the intermittent snow blockade, which has hampered operation of trains on the road a week, and which has been complete for the last twenty-four hours.

"However," one official said, "the wind may blow again tonight, as it did last night, and block the road again."

Except for the one train which left Denver two days ago and is crawling westward, not a wheel is turning on the stretch from Wilcox to Medicine Bow, unless it be under a snowplow or work train. In this stretch, four rotary snowplows, one "flanger" plow and one wrecker plow are at work, besides all the men the company can house between working periods.

One thousand coal miners called from the Union Pacific Coal Company mines at Hanna today, could not all be used, on account of lack of facilities for caring for them, railroad officials said. Before they were called out, the road was hiring every available man they asserted, and now has all the labor it can use.

West-bound trains which were rushed west of Laramie today, in the hope that the line would be cleared when they arrived at the blocked section, were recalled and are to be consolidated in the Laramie yards and sent on west-bound as opportunity offers. There are sixteen of these, while eight more trains are waiting at Medicine Bow for a chance to proceed east. Passengers have experienced no hardships, railroad officials said.

All but one of the halted trains carried a dining car, well stocked, officials said. Six private cars of officials also were converted into dining-rooms."

Officials here said a terrific wind from the mountains today was packing the snow into cuts along the line. Reports from Rawlins and Hanna say the yards in those towns are filling with east-bound trains, which are to wait there for the blockade to be broken. The blockade is the worst in Union Pacific history.

JUNEAU (Alaska) Jan. 27.—[illegible] snowslides near here yesterday caused the loss of two lives and [illegible] property damage. The two killed were Benjamin Proto and Maurice Rasmussen. They were caught under the second avalanche, while on their way to repair the water power flume of the Alaska Electric Light and Power Company, which had been torn down by the first slide.

Because of the wrecking of the light and power company's flume, Juneau, Douglas and Treadwell, which obtained light from the plant, were in darkness last night.

The mountains near Juneau have more snow on them than in several years. A heavy snowstorm rages there now.

RUMANIA'S CONQUEST GIVES AUSTRIA FOOD.

[BY WIRELESS AND A. P.]

BERLIN (via Sayville) Jan. 27.—Adolph von Batocki, president of the German food regulation board, gives an unqualified denial, "from personal knowledge," to recent reports from British sources regarding an unsatisfactory food situation in Austria-Hungary, says an Overseas News Agency announcement today.

"I can affirm that in Hungary there never has been any question of food difficulties," Von Batocki is quoted as saying. "In Austria, it is thought possible that the crop of bread corn was not entirely sufficient to last until new crops were available. In this contingency, the importation of several hundred thousand tons of bread corn from Germany had been planned, but the Austrian share was assured after the conquest of Rumania without importations from Germany.

"Local difficulties occur everywhere during the war, but, according to my information, such local difficulties are much more frequent in the countries of our enemies than in our country and those of our allies.

"The assertion that the peace offer was made because of food difficulties is on a line with many similar reports spread by the Entente powers during the war, all of which have been proved by facts to be untrue."

ROAD SCHEME FOR DEFENSE

ation-wide Campaign for Patriotism Indorsed.

ecessity for Big Air Fleet Shown by Peary.

niversal Military Training Urged at Convention.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—[illegible] approval of a broad scheme [illegible] national defense was given [illegible] vigorously today by the Congress [illegible] Constructive Patriotism at the [illegible] business session of its meeting [illegible] here under the auspices of the National Security League. In a statement of principles, the congress declared for universal military training, for restoration of the navy, to second place in the Atlantic and first place in the Pacific, for development of American water power, for a nation-wide campaign for patriotism through education and for effective Americanization efforts to destroy dual citizenship. Tonight the meeting came to a close with a banquet attended by more than 800 delegates who heard addresses by Rear-Admiral Robert Peary, Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the Senate Military committee; former Senator La Follette Young of Iowa, and General Wickersham, former Attorney General. Admiral Peary outlined a programme for developing air power for defense and reviewed aerial attacks have had in the fighting of the present war.

INDIVIDUAL RIGHTS.

In its declaration of principles the congress affirmed the belief that the rights of the individual to liberty and the pursuit of happiness, as the basic principle of American government and then declared:

"And we hold that in our relations with foreign governments we should continue to affirm and defend those rights."

All Americans, it is declared, should be brought to recognize the dangers that beset our republic, such as we are unprepared to defend our national honor against other nations whose governments and theories of government may be in conflict with ours."

The congress also adopted a constructive report outlining a comprehensive plan of spreading knowledge on the duty and privileges of citizenship, and a resolution urging the enactment of Legislation to secure a national executive budget system.

PRINCIPLES INDORSED.

In recommending universal training, the congress indorsed the following general principles:

"Military or naval training for physically fit young men between the ages of 21, and preferably the 19th year.

"The training to be taken at a military field or sea training station for a period necessary to produce an effective soldier or sailor.

"The system to be under sole Federal control.

"Obligation to serve in war as well as to train in time of peace.

"A committee proposal to train in the section; the statement that Admiral Peary said the day he handed in command of his command of the air and that the work can be driven home on the battlefronts, without the assistance of the air service, the trained sense of the great advance in aviation that already have come as a result of the war.

IMMINENT DANGERS.

"At the present time," he said, "no foreign powers, probably have the men, the munitions and the expert knowledge that would enable any one of them to land an order today to [illegible] Washington or any other of the great coastal cities from the air. A single night two weeks from now, I have neither airplanes nor dirigibles, nor aviators nor aircraft guns nor any other means of preventing such destruction.

PLACE IN THE CABINET.

The United States, the address said, could be given an additional power through the [illegible] providing for a separate department of aeronautics, with a secretary who will be a Member of the President's Cabinet; an aeronautical staff, including [illegible] of the army and navy; a driving force in industry; a [illegible] of [illegible] and conceptions of aeronautics on the floor of Congress; [illegible] representative aero [illegible] committee, including a [illegible] of the chief of [illegible] plans of offensive and defensive operations of [illegible] coast defenses; [illegible] creation of efforts to develop aeronautics backed by private financial interests; and a [illegible] of aeronautic manufacturers.

To cover the expenses of these measures, Admiral Peary declared, [illegible] should be set aside at once. "The millions spent on the navy," he declared, "will be worthless if we have such an air service as will give the United States undisputed command of the air over the continent of North America."

BRITISH WARN OF MORE MINES

North Sea Zone Dangerous, Says London Message.

Hope to Lessen Possibility of Raiders Escaping.

Danish and British Vessels are Reported Sunk.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Warning of a considerable extension of the North Sea zone designated as "dangerous to shipping," was received at the State Department today from the American Embassy at London. It is assumed the warning means that the British mine fields are being enlarged, but what ulterior significance the step may have is not known here.

The natural result of enlarging the mine field on the lines indicated would be to bottle up more closely the German warships at Helgoland and to lessen the possibility of raiders escaping the cordon of British vessels and mines and attacking the English coast. The State Department announcement defining the territory mined was not exactly clear as to latitude and longitude and department officials declined to interpret the warning, but apparently the new mine field would stretch from the territorial waters of Denmark to near The Netherlands coast. If maintained this would make it extremely dangerous for vessels seeking to make the outside from German ports.

Heretofore the British have been depending largely on their warships to halt enemy ships trying to get into the North Sea.

The warning put into the "dangerous zone" the following waters: Area, comprising all the waters except Netherlands and Danish territorial waters, lying to the southward and eastward of a line commencing four miles from the coast of Jutland, in latitude 56 deg. north, longitude 8 deg. east, from Greenwich and passing through the following positions: Latitude 56 deg. north, longitude 6 deg. east, latitude 54 deg. 45 minutes east, thence to a position in latitude 53 deg. 37 minutes north, longitude 5 deg. east, seven miles off the coast of Netherlands.

DANISH STEAMER SUNK.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Jan. 27.—The Danish steamer O. B. Suhr has been sunk, according to reports received by Lloyd's shipping agency. The agency also announces that the Norwegian steamer Myrdal is believed to have been sunk.

The Danish steamer O. B. Suhr, of 1482 tons gross, was owned in Copenhagen. The Norwegian steamer Myrdal, of 2631 gross tons, was last reported as arriving at Leghorn, December 26, from Cardiff.

Sinking of the British steamer Tabasco, 2937 tons gross, and of the Norwegian steamship Sunniva, 589 tons, is reported by Lloyd's.

The Norwegian steamship Jotunfjell, previously reported sunk, has been towed into port in a damaged condition.

The report of the sinking of the British steamship Matina was erroneous, according to a Lloyd's announcement. Her owners say she has reached port.

Sick People Sometimes Die From Lack of a Good Stimulant

Especially is this true in grip and pneumonia, for they are infectious diseases which attack weak and strong alike. Serious complications are liable to develop in the course of the disease, as grip settles in the weakest part of the system, sometimes the kidneys, the brain, the stomach or the heart, resulting often in heart failure, but the most dreaded of all, pneumonia, which is particularly fatal when arising from grip. As one able medical writer says:

"In all severe types of pneumonia there are two sources of danger—heart insufficiency, and high temperature. A large portion of deaths from pneumonia directly result from heart failure.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

judiciously used is one of the most efficient means of preventing or overcoming it."

The reason it is a remarkable remedy in the treatment and relief of grip, coughs, colds, influenza, bronchitis, catarrh, pneumonia and all diseases of the throat and lungs, is that Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey aids in keeping the digestive functions in healthy condition so that the body gets the necessary health and strength from food eaten—enabling it to throw off disease germs. For more than 56 years it has brought the blessings of health to overworked men, delicate women and the sickly, who find in Duffy's the strength-giving properties that are so necessary to them.

On Two Fronts.

ENEMIES DEADLOCKED AT VERDUN AND RIGA.

Germans Continue to Hold Positions Won from French Despite Incessant Bombardment — Russians, Heavily Reinforced, Fail to Advance, While Repulse of Teutons is Reported by Petrograd—Losses Very Heavy.

BY ARTHUR S. DRAPER.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Jan. 27.—Though subjected to incessant bombardment and two sharp attacks in the last twenty-four hours, the Germans continue to cling to the positions won from the French on hill No. 304, northwest of Verdun. Nivelle's troops advanced against the enemy last night and again in the early hours of this morning, but the Germans held out against every attempt to dislodge them. While Paris records the "destructive" bombardment of the positions occupied by the troops of the Crown Prince on hill No. 304, it makes no claims of success in efforts to regain the lost ground.

ARTILLERY DUEL VIOLENT.

Along the entire Verdun front the artillery duel was violent.

At the Esparges, the Germans undertook a surprise assault, but found the French on the alert and were unable to advance. Whether the Germans expect a great offensive by the French on the Meuse or merely hope to sharpen the French salient east of the river, it is impossible to judge until the attack is renewed by one side or the other.

On the remainder of the front lively infantry operations were carried through by both sides. The Germans captured a Belgian outpost southwest of Dixmude and successfully raided French trenches in the Woevre, on Combres Heights and west of St. Mihiel. British advances south of La Bassee and French attacks southeast of Chilly, on the Somme front, were checked by the enemy's batteries, according to Berlin.

TRENCH RAIDS INCREASE.

The increasing number of trench raids and patrol encounters north of the Somme and in the La Bassee and Arras sectors is regarded here as significant. Both sides are awaiting with tense nerves the concentration of enemy forces for some new point of attack. Naturally, each is anxious to get the jump on the other, for the first blow is usually the most important. Consequently, the soldiers of both combatants are kept keyed up to the highest point every moment they are on the firing line. Certainly, the troops are eager for the attack, as anything is preferable to the depressing dismal waiting in the cold, muddy trenches.

The extraordinary aerial activities continue along the whole front from Verdun to Ypres. French scouting squadrons engaged in several aerial battles yesterday, in the course of which they brought down five German machines. Bombing groups attacked works behind the enemy's lines, with success, causing a number of fires and explosions.

AIR WAR SPECTACULAR.

Seldom has anything so spectacular in aerial warfare created such genuine admiration here as the recent work of Lieut. Guyenmer of the French squadron. In the last few days the premier birdman, reaching out for the laurels of the dead Boelke, has vanquished five hostile airplanes and brought his total up to thirty. For four successive days he has been mentioned with praise in the French official dispatches.

The skill and daring of this aviator is reflected in his achievements for the week. Tuesday, he brought down his twenty-sixth victim near Maurepas, on the Verdun front; the following day his twenty-seventh, near Chaulnes; Thursday, he accounted for two machines at two distant points, and yesterday winged his thirtieth plane, near Douilens. Each day he has spun his deadly machine over miles of hostile territory and has never failed to take the offensive. His achievements are putting terror into the hearts of the German fliers and partially disorganizing their work, which he has so many times interrupted.

THE RIGA DEADLOCK.

The Russian and German armies on the Riga front appear in deadlock, neither side being able to make appreciable gains. The Germans claim today that the Russians, heavily reinforced, failed in attempts to advance east of the River Aa. The repulses with severe losses of German attacks west of Riga near the Kalnzem road, is reported by Petrograd. Near the Mitau high road, the Russian statement adds, a gas attack created a great panic in the German lines.

Recounting the recent successes of the German forces on the Riga front, the military critic of the Overseas News Agency says the Russian losses have been exceedingly heavy. "Prisoners taken agree that of one Russian regiment not more than three officers and 400 men survived, most of the members of the regiment being killed and buried by the hostile artillery fire in the positions they were occupying," the statement says, adding: "The prisoners declared they had been without food two days and many of their comrades had mutinied."

BRITISH SOMME SUCCESS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Jan. 27, 11:30 p.m.—In a successful operation on the Somme front in the neighborhood of La Transloy today, says the official communication from British headquarters tonight, a commanding portion of a German position was captured by British troops. More than 350 prisoners were taken in the operation.

UNABLE TO AGREE UPON A VERDICT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, Jan. 27.—The jury that heard the evidence in the case in which F. B. Kern, a bicycle dealer of Anaheim, sued City Marshal John Kellenberger and Deputy Philip Germann, both of Anaheim, for $12,500 for alleged false arrest was unable to bring in a verdict for Kern.

It brought in a verdict in favor of Germann, who assisted Kellenberger in taking Kern into jail after Kellenberger arrested Kern as the result of an altercation between Kern and Kellenberger. The jury stood seven to five in favor of a judgment against Kellenberger, but could not reach a verdict. The case against Kellenberger will be tried again on April 16.

LADY BUTLER AS A TYPIST.

Earl's Daughter Works Hard Striking the Keys.

Zeal for War Work Shown in High Social Circles.

Human Bones are Discovered in Baronet's Chimney.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Who is the prettiest typist in England? It would be a rash man indeed who would undertake the role of Paris in this contest, but I will go so far as to declare that one of the comliest of the many fair tappers of the typewriter keys in these islands is Lady Rosamund Butler, the eldest daughter of the Earl and Countess of Carrick.

What, you exclaim, an earl's daughter doing typing? Even so, and working hard at it. This interesting news comes from the Countess of Carrick herself, who says that her lovely eldest daughter, who is only 17, and the Countess herself declares, the prettiest girl in England, is working under the government as a typist at Southampton. Lady Rosamund, her naturally proud mamma says, starts work every morning at 9 and keep at it until 6 on Saturdays as well as other days, not to mention putting in quite a lot of overtime. Her likewise pretty sister, who has the attractive name of Lady Irene June Butler, is also war-working strenuously.

EARL OF CARRICK'S STOCK.

The Earl of Carrick, who holds a honorary captaincy in the Army Service Corps, comes of a fighting stock that always has been associated with the Irish county which the popular song has made even more famous, namely, Tipperary. The Prince of Wales among his many other titles, is also Earl of Carrick, but this earldom, a Scottish one, which his Royal Highness holds as Duke of Rothsay, is quite distinct from the Irish titles. The Countess of Carrick, whose good looks are inherited by her girls, is a banker's daughter, her father having been the late Lieut.-Col. H. G. Gosling, who served with distinction in the Crimean War and the Kaffir War of 1843.

Lord Carrick has been Comptroller of the Household of the Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland since 1913, and also has held important posts in the Irish Department of Agriculture. He and his Countess, previous to the war, were reckoned among the best amateur actors in society, and organized many private theatrical productions in aid of charity at St. Juliet, their place in Kilkenny. Their youthful son and heir, Viscount Ikerrin, who was born in 1903, is one of twin boys. His two sisters, Ladies Rosamund and Irene, are particularly graceful girls, and used to be in great demand for children's plays.

SHE IS A "PARLOR MAID."

That an Earl's daughter may be a typist why should not another Earl's daughter be a parlor maid? Precisely, one is, and what is more, the aristocratic damsel, who, like Lady Rosamund Butler, is exceedingly good to look upon, is half American. She is Lady Joan Rachael Pure Capell, younger daughter of the 8th Earl, and of the very-much-admired Countess of Essex, who formerly was Miss Adela Grant of New York.

Of course, Lady Joan's "parlor maiding," like Lady Rosamund's typewriting, is "war work." The home of it is Londonderry House, the famous mansion of the Marquis of that title, in Park Lane, which is now a military hospital. The duty of the ordinary "parlor maid" in England is to look after things in the dining-room, serve at afternoon tea, dust, etc., and it is to be assumed that Lady Joan does some of these things at Londonderry House; but in all events, "parlor maid" is her official designation there.

She is just "sweet seventeen," and pretty and likewise pretty sister, Lady Iris Capell, who will be 21 in June, is also doing her "bit" to help on with the war. At present Lady Iris is driving a motor for the National Food Fund, and doing other work between whiles. This is some months now, prior to which she was working at Lady Murray's hospital at Le Treport, France, and doing "jolly hard," too. Both these girls show unmistakably the American strain in them. Though the Countess of Essex and her late husband usually lived in town, their daughters were brought up in the country, Lady Essex when she decided to retrench by renting Cassiobury Park, her husband's wonderful palace near Malden, having rented a small house on the estate, where their youthful ladyships might learn their habitation, under the care of a governess. Both, accordingly, are true open-air girls, and before the war, were renowned particularly graceful skaters, both rollers and on ice.

FRANKS OF A BEAUTY.

In all the columns that have been written about Mrs. William Cornwallis-West since "The Lady in the Case," as she is now called, suddenly was revealed in so unfortunate a light by the findings of a War Court Martial, there has been no reference to what used to be one of Mrs. Langtry's erstwhile rival's greatest and most renowned traits, namely, her passionate love of practical joking. Some twenty-five or thirty years ago she was the terror of every house into which she put her foot. Even the late Mrs. Gladstone was not sacred from her larks. At a country house she crept up his night-garments and he could not get into them. The lady who participated with her in this escapade managed to keep Mrs. Gladstone downstairs talking after the household had retired and the fun began when the great Prime Minister went on the landing calling for Mrs. Gladstone as he always did in any difficulty. That lady had a keen sense of humor and her fury when she considered an indignity to her husband was, it seems, the best part of the joke.

"LARKY SHELAGH."

The Duchess of Westminster would be her mother's daughter did she not glory in "high jinks," as it is common knowledge that she does. Before she married the Duke she was known as "larky Shelagh Hall (now turned into a hospital;) there was a lot of fun there whenever company

What the Duchess failed to think of in the line of pranks occurred readily to his lordship. Jack Churchill, Winston's younger brother, also helped considerably, and so did Princess Pless, who was "Daisy" Cornwallis-West. The latter is said to have continued this game in Germany, but her Teuton husband soon put his foot down and stopped it. Not, however, until the Princess had tried her larks on the Kaiser himself, who stayed with them shortly after their marriage.

SECRET OF A CHIMNEY.

Lady Vane (widow of Sir Henry Vane, Baronet, of Hutton-in-the Forest, Cumberland) who has just died at Liverpool, was daughter of the late Mr. T. Steuart Gladstone, of Capenoch, Dumfries-shire, first cousin to the great Liberal statesman. Lady Vane used to tell of a strange experience at Hutton-in-the-Forest, near Penrith. Ghostly noises were heard in the walls, as though somebody were trying to get up a chimney, and kept falling down again. Becoming irritated and worn out by the noise, Lady Vane determined to ascertain the cause, so one day she had the wall opened. A lofty closet was discovered, narrowing into a funnel at the top, where it opened by a small hole in the roof. In the cavity were the cover of a Bible bearing a date, a broken water-bottle, and human bones. The latter were gathered up and placed in a box, which was put in her husband's room to await his return. He arrived very tired, so Lady Vane decided to say nothing about the matter until next day. He went to his room to rest, and after some time there was a fearful noise.

Running in, Lady Vane found her husband in a state of great trepidation; he had seen, he said, the apparition of a woman in a corner where the box was resting. Lady Vane told him what she had done, and through the date on the Bible cover they found from the family archives that a woman had been walled up in the closet. Sir Henry and his wife themselves buried the bones in the churchyard, and the noise was heard no more.

CHOOSE PRESIDENT OF HOME BUILDERS.

REWARD FORMER CASHIER FOR FAITHFUL WORK.

F. H. Ottelien Heads Reorganized Concern, Succeeding M. H. Withers, Who is Entirely Dropped by the Stockholders, Thus Eliminating Factionalism.

From cashier to president in less than five years, marks the rise of F. H. Ottelien, who was yesterday placed at the head of the Home Builders by the majority of the stockholders. The meeting was held in the offices in the Higgins Building, and M. H. Withers, who succeeded Jay Winans to the presidency, was entirely dropped. It was proposed that he be continued as a director but this did not meet with the approval of the majority.

Mr. Ottelien is a young man and during the stormy period which the company has been passing through, has ably assisted in maintaining the financial equilibrium of the corporation. For this, the stockholders desired to reward him in a measure and his advancement is largely in the nature of a promotion.

Miss M. L. Wilson, who came to the Home Builders seven years ago as a stenographer, just out of school, was appointed to the important position of secretary-treasurer, a combination job which eliminates one of the officers and saves a large salary. Miss Wilson was made secretary in the reorganization two years ago.

Other directors of the company named yesterday include, W. M. Belding, L. F. Schonenfeldt and Edward Healy, vice-presidents; K. T. Tinker, Mrs. Jennie Peak, C. W. Churchill and B. Masse. This creates a practically unanimous board, Mr. Churchill being the only one who has any leanings outside of the majority group. Ballots cast at the meeting indicated that about 450,000 shares out of a total of 639,000 outsanding were represented.

With the indictment of the old officials of the Home Builders by the Federal authorities, and the laying of nearly all factionalism, there is a better possibility of improvement than at any time since the palmiest days of the company, according to President Ottelien.

"We have not had to levy an assessment on our stockholders despite our storms and with improvement in the realty market, we believe that an era of prosperity is ahead of us," he said.

The men who are waiting trial for alleged frauds in connection with company exploitation are Jay Winans, L. R. and S. H. Garrett, H. C. Galloupe, W. B. Judson and James R. Green.

DOUBTS RIGHTS OF COMMISSION.

Novel Argument by Attorney in Crossings Case.

Claims State Took Over All Railroad's Powers.

Hence has no Jurisdiction Over City Affairs.

A rather novel argument is made by City Attorney Stephens in his supplemental brief filed with the State Supreme Court in the case to determine whether the city or the State Railroad Commission has jurisdiction over grade crossings. He argues that the Railroad Commission was not given power over municipalities and other governmental institutions, but was only given such powers as were possessed by the railroad companies themselves.

The City Attorney says the companies had by statute the right to fix rates and had other rights. They became inefficient in carrying out their operations and the Railroad Commission was established as a sort of overseer to keep them up to the mark. In other words, the City Attorney contends, the commission practically took the place of the directors of the railroads.

The railroad companies, the City Attorney maintains, never had the right to say how they would cross the streets, but the city always had that right. Carrying out his argument that the commission only took over the rights that previously had belonged to the railroads, it is claimed the commission did not obtain the right to regulate crossings because the right never belonged to the companies.

On the question of the proposed union depot, the city maintains the Railroad Commission has such jurisdiction for the city charter contains no provision wherein the commission's jurisdiction on this question is affected.

TO HELP HIS SON.

Father of Man Who is Charged with Mistreating Seeley Girl Comes from Montana with Written Consent of Her Mother to be Married.

Having in his possession the written consent of the girl's mother for her to marry Thomas Khipp, arrested several weeks ago on a charge of mistreating Angie Seeley, 14 years old, C. W. Khipp, father of the young man, arrived here yesterday from Square Butte, Mont., and said he would do everything within his power to get his son out of trouble. Father and son met in the County Jail for the first time in three years.

The father said his son and the Seeley girl had been sweethearts for several years, that they fell in love with each other at a big round-up dance in Montana and now both want to get married.

Mr. Khipp and the girl were taken into custody in a cabin on Round Mountain and returned to this city. Unless the case is dismissed through the marriage of the couple it is said Mr. Khipp will be charged with a statutory offense.

MERELY RESTING.

Councilman Brain Denies Rumor of His Resignation as He is Only Taking a Needed Vacation That Slipped by Him Last Year.

Councilman Brain hasn't resigned; he's merely taking his last year's vacation. He said so yesterday, and he ought to know.

Somehow or other 1916 slipped by without the Councilman having a chance to take the two-weeks' holiday that every member of the city's legislative board is allowed. About two weeks ago Councilman Brain felt rather out of sorts so he thought it to be a fine time to take his vacation. The Council accordingly allowed him the customary two weeks' leave of absence.

This led to rumors to the effect that the Councilman was about to resign to go into the automobile business. The report, as far as the resignation part is concerned, was denied at the Brain home last night. It was learned that the Councilman has had an interest in an automobile firm some time.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has the grippe, or a sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is ofttimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrup Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. SAYS SHAKESPEARE WAS GOOD PENMAN.

NEBRASKA PROFESSOR FINDS UNKNOWN DOCUMENTS.

Many Historical Writings of Immortal Bard Disclose Facts Never Accepted by Public Regarding Famous Author and Show Caligraphy was Perfect.

William Shakespeare's name was spelled Shakspeare, and not Shakesper, Shakspere, Shakespeare, or Shaxper, according to Dr. Charles William Wallace, who spoke yesterday before students in the University of Southern California and at the Scottish Rite Cathedral Thursday evening. Dr. Wallace, a member of the faculty of the University of Nebraska, is one of the greatest Shakespearean scholars now living. In the last seven years he has examined more than 5,000,000 historical documents in London, covering the period of Shakespeare's time. As a result, he has discovered six new signatures made by the immortal bard, and thirty documents in which his name appears.

Prior to Dr. Wallace's investigation only fifty documents were known to exist which mentioned Shakespeare, so that in seven years this brilliant young scholar from the University of Nebraska has increased by more than 50 per cent the amount of documentary evidence in regard to Shakespeare's life.

"Many of the popular conceptions in regard to Shakespeare are wholly false," Dr. Wallace told the University students. "For example, it is usually supposed that Shakespeare wrote a very bad hand, and many persons, of course, claim he could not write at all. He not only could write, but his caligraphy was excellent. However, he used the Gothic letters, and today we are accustomed to the Roman. Anyone understanding the Gothic caligraphy, which resembles very closely the German script of today, will see at once that Shakespeare wrote an excellent hand. For that matter, everybody of Shakespeare's day was a good penman, if he could write at all. After examining 5,000,000 documents, I have yet to find one which is badly written. Even the court reporters, who took verbatim the happenings in the course of a trial, and who used an abbreviated longhand, wrote with beautiful distinctness."

Dr. Wallace also pointed out that the current stories regarding Shakespeare's ignorance of classical literature are founded on a misconception. "Ben Jonson said of him that 'he had small Latin and less Greek,'" added Dr. Wallace. "However, even a somewhat limited amount of Latin in Shakespeare's day meant a great deal more knowledge of the subject than is taught in an American university of today. A very little Greek, in Ben Jonson's time, meant far more Greek than a college graduate of today understands."

Among the interesting things which Dr. Wallace, aided by his wife, has discovered, is the fact that Shakespeare lived for a number of years with a French family in London, the head of the household being a wigmaker by trade. Only a few months after he went to live with this family Shakespeare wrote "Henry the Fifth," which contains a rather large amount of rather villainous French conversation. A son-in-law in this family brought suit against the wigmaker for £50 dowry, which should have been paid him when he married the daughter, and Shakespeare was called as a witness. Dr. Wallace has unearthed his complete testimony and has published those parts of it which are important.

I CURE PILES FISTULA
and all Rectal Diseases
WITHOUT AN OPERATION

For twenty-five years I have been curing diseases of the rectum and lower bowel. During that time my experience as hospital and railroad surgeon, as college lecturer and professor, has enabled me to develop a method that is superior to others. I cure without surgery and my patients are not confined in bed and seldom lose a moment's time from their business.

My method is not a "home cure" or a "correspondence treatment" but it is an application of skilled treatments administered under the most rigid antiseptic conditions in my office.

I inhibit old, severe and obstinate cases of fistula, prolapsus, fissure and ulceration that have heretofore resisted all treatments employed. If you are a sufferer from rectal trouble I invite you to investigate my method thoroughly by talking or writing to any of my cured patients. If you will call at my office I will be pleased to give you the names and addresses of many well-known Los Angeles people I have cured, whom you may interview in regard to my treatment.

Read what a few well-known Southern California people have to say of my method. Many similar letters are on file in my office.

MAY PLAY SOFT PEDAL IN ATTACK ON CROCKER.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 27.—Orders have gone out direct from administration circles here to play the soft pedal on the attack of the Republican State Central Committee on National Committeeman William Crocker. J. J. Ryan, Speaker pro tem. of the Assembly and chairman of the Elections Committee, introduced the bill Friday which provides that the National Committeeman shall be elected at State elections, and that the first election shall be held in August, 1918.

This is in direct contradiction with the bylaws of both Republican and Democratic national conventions, but bylaws after all are only scraps of paper. Ryan did not introduce the bill until an unsuccessful attempt was made to get it introduced in the rush of the last day, by a member of the Republican minority.

"I did not introduce the bill until I was assured that a similar bill would be introduced in seven other State Legislatures now in session," said Ryan today. "It has been drawn after careful consideration to keep one convention from controlling the next. It is not aimed at Crocker, although it would compel him to stand for re-election despite the fact that he was elected just last year."

This statement by the administration floor leader reveals apparently a secret plan of action by the six little near-Republicans who met in Chicago in December and claimed to be invested with a divine mission to evangelize the Republican party. To introduce this bill in seven other States, means to attack the seats of eight Republican National Committeemen. It might aid materially in the attempt of the so-called returning Progressives to secure control of the Republican National Committee.

Of course the bill would affect the seats of the Democratic National Committeemen in the same States. Henry Hawson, Democratic floor leader in the Assembly, said today that the act, if passed, would precipitate a conflict in both national conventions.

"A man elected under it would have no legal standing in a national convention," said Mr. Hawson, "as the rules of the national convention must be paramount to the individual action of separate States. But it would have the effect of creating dissension. The Democrats will oppose its passage. I am of the opinion that the administration itself will be forced to abandon it."

MEMPHIS (Tenn.) Jan. 27.—Four persons are reported to have been killed and several injured in a rear-end collision late tonight between passenger trains of the St. Louis Southwestern and Rock Island railroads at Mounds, Ark., a junction point near Memphis. A relief train was sent from this city.

HOT TEA BREAKS A COLD TRY THIS

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Thee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacupful at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.

AMERICAN TROOPS START BACK TO GOD'S COUNTRY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

EL PASO (Tex.) Jan. 27.—American troops started north from the field headquarters at Colonia Dublan at dawn today, according to reports from Columbus, N. M., which were brought here early today by passengers arriving overland and which were considered reliable. The troops which left were believed to have been the advance guard of the punitive expedition.

The troops, which left field headquarters early today, included cavalry, infantry and artillery, accompanied by motor larries and wagon trains, according to the passengers from Columbus.

Included among the units which were first to leave, were the El Valle, San Joaquin and Charcos garrisons, which had reached Colonia Dublan during the week from the outpost garrisons and were in heavy marching order awaiting Gen. Pershing's orders to move northward toward the border, arrivals said.

All of the troops at the field headquarters camp were in heavy marching order and their tents were struck, packed and loaded ready to move toward Ojo Federico, eighty miles distant, where temporary field headquarters will be established. Maj.-Gen. Pershing was expected to be among the last to leave the headquarters for the north, it was added.

Following in the wake of the troops were hundreds of refugees, forming a 'hegira unlike anything seen on the border of the two republics. Prosperous Mormon families were riding in comfortable farm wagons or in small motors; Mexicans rode in carriages, on horses, mules, burros and on the motor trucks of the expeditionary forces, while hundreds of the native and Chinese residents of the district, being evacuated, tramped through the deep dust which has been mulched by the feet of hundreds of troops. All these refugees looked behind them with a fear of Villa and his followers for they had heard rumors of threats purported to have been made by the Mexican leader, that he would kill all who had served the American troops in any way.

At Columbus a camp has been laid and tents were being pitched late today for 1000 refugees. This camp is one mile from the army camp at Columbus, and one part of it will be arranged as an asylum for the 200 or more Chinese who are coming out with the expedition. The first of the refugees were expected to arrive there early Monday. Mormons living in El Paso and in other parts of the southwest were making every effort tonight to find temporary homes for their exiled peoples.

PARRY IN CANADA ON PAPER MISSION.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OTTAWA (Ont.) Jan. 27.—W. H. Parry of the Federal Trade Commission of the United States and T. M. Chautland, counsel for the commission, arrived here today for a conference with the Canadian authorities upon the news print paper situation. Mr. Parry said his mission to Canada was simply to obtain exact information bearing upon the print paper situation and to learn, if possible, the manner in which the Canadian authorities contemplate dealing with it. He had an informal conference with Canadian Trade Commissioner Bradner. Other meetings with representatives of the Canadian government will be held before Mr. Parry leaves.

OVER A MILLION GIVEN WAGE RAISES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Wage raises ranging from 5 to 10 per cent. were given to 1,118,000 workers in the United States during November and December, Secretary Wilson of the Labor Department estimated today in a compilation of figures covering thirty-eight States and showing that 526 establishments increased the size of the pay envelope. The Secretary called attention to the fact that 244 of the increases were voluntary. Strikes brought ninety-nine increases. The largest number of employees benefited were in the iron and steel industry. They number $65,500. The textile industries were next with 266,000. Most of the increases, the Secretary pointed out, were granted after the national election.

CHINESE EGGS ARE OUT OF QUARANTINE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 27.—Four thousand cases of Chinese eggs that have been on their way to Seattle since August, 1914, when they left Shanghai, were ordered released today from the quarantine imposed on them by the health authorities of this city and will be permitted to go on to their destination.

The order releasing the eggs was issued by Superior Judge J. M. Seawell, who decided that the board of health had no jurisdiction over eggs passing through here to some point outside the State.

According to the attorney for the shippers, the decision opens the way for the importation of millions of Chinese eggs, which may be used, when reasonably young, he said, by bakeries and which even in their old age are valuable for tanning leather.

MINER DIES IN EAST.

Angeleno's Body Found in a Gotham Hotel Room and Furore Follows Viewing of Ore Samples in His Trunk That Were Thought Nuggets.

J. M. McPhee, 50 years old, a Los Angeles mining man, was found dead in his room at the Hotel Strand, New York, yesterday. He resided at No. 311 South Hancock street, this city.

He was an old mining man and his mission in New York was to secure financial backing for a mining property which, with a group of associates, he was developing in Arizona. The company, known as the Arizona and Calumet Mining Company, was organized a short time ago at Phoenix. He left Los Angeles December 5. His family, consisting of a wife and four small daughters, had not heard from him in the past three weeks.

With his family he came to Los Angeles last February from San Diego, where he had lived about one year. Prior to that time he resided at Portland, Or.

His partner in the mine enterprise is said to be C. Rittesbaughst of Hollywood, who is now in the northern part of the State on business.

Some excitement was apparently occasioned in New York by Mr. McPhee's trunkful of samples. What was supposed to be $100,000 worth of gold nuggets is in reality pyrite and copper ore, according to his widow.

Ex-fireman Is Captured by a Woman and Her Son When They Find Him in Their Home—Entered Wrong House by Mistake, He States.

Following a struggle, E. B. Young, at one time a city fireman, was captured, the police say, in the act of looting the residence of Mrs. B. Duane at No. 1139 West Sixth street, and was locked in the City Jail early last night, charged with burglary.

Young was overpowered by Mrs. Duane and her son, William Carroway, who allege they discovered the intruder when they returned home from a dinner party. With a walking cane and a large revolver, Mrs. Duane held the alleged burglar until the police arrived. Young said he had entered the wrong house by mistake.

About half of the recent purchase is set to year-old lemons, and it is said Mr. Sharpless will set the other ten acres to avocados. The new purchaser is the owner of the famous seedling variety of avocado known by his name, pronounced by many to be a variety at present unexcelled by any variety known to this State. The sale price of the twenty acres purchased is given as $12,000.

BOSTON, Jan. 27.—More than $2,500,000 has been administered by the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief, according to a statement issued yesterday by Dr. James L. Barton, chairman of the committee. The funds have been distributed in Egypt, Palestine, Syria, Turkey, Persia and Russia.

"Twice the sum now available is demanded and could be used," says the statement. "The present resources permit the use of only about two cents per person a day. Three times this amount would be too small."

SPEEDY AUTO HURLS WOMAN TO DEATH.

CARRIES BODY FIFTY FEET UNDER WHEELS.

Touring Car, Driven by Man with Two Women in Front Seat, Hits Wife of Raymond Cashier on Hill Near Hotel, Killing Her Instantly, Assert Witnesses.

A powerful touring car, traveling at asserted high speed, on Fair Oaks avenue, with James C. Sheeley at the wheel and two women with him in the front seat, struck Mrs. H. L. E. Smith, wife of the cashier of the Raymond, killing her instantly at 7 o'clock last evening. Mrs. Smith's body was carried more than fifty feet under the front wheels, and the car went another seventy-five feet before it could be stopped, witnesses said.

Immediately after the accident the two women in the car, Miss Leona Williams of No. 42 South De Lacy avenue and Miss Ruth Tracy of No. 917 North El Molino avenue, disappeared. Mr. Sheeley, a cement contractor of the same address as Miss Williams, was arrested by City Marshal Higgins of South Pasadena.

A special evening session of the Police Court was convened by Judge Crump, and Mr. Sheeley was charged with reckless driving and placed under a $500 bond to await the verdict of a Coroner's jury. Mr. Sheeley refused to discuss the case further than to say that he was driving along the side of a moving Pacific Electric car and that Mrs. Smith jumped out of the way of the street car in front of the motor car.

It appears that Mrs. Smith stopped in the street to look for a lost article. Just a short time before the accident J. D. Case, manager of the Raymond garage, heard a passing motorist call to Mrs. Smith to watch out for the motor cars. Very shortly Mr. Case heard a car skidding on the pavement with set brakes and looked out the door just in time to see Mrs. Smith disappear under the wheels of the car.

Mrs. Smith was 50 years old. She and her husband came to Pasadena December 26 from their home at Montpelier, Vt. They had one daughter, Miss Charlotte Smith. Mr. Smith has been cashier of the Raymond for several seasons, spending the summers in Vermont.

One of Mrs. Smith's sidecombs was found 200 feet from where she fell and her pocketbook about seventy-five feet away. Marshal Higgins went to the scene of the accident with a tapeline and measured the length of the track made by the locked rear wheels of the auto, and the distance from the spot where Mrs. Smith's body fell from the running gear of the car to the place where the car came to a standstill in an effort to determine the speed of the car.

Marshal Higgins said that evidently the car traveled for nearly 150 feet uphill after the brakes had been set, indicating that it was moving at high speed. Mr. Case and C. E. Burdick of No. 334 Cypress avenue, another eyewitness, said that the motor car was traveling at an unusual rate.

At the time of the crash Miss Williams was sitting in Miss Tracy's lap. Mr. Sheeley denied that the presence of the two women in the front seat with him interfered with his steering the car. He also denied a report made to the South Pasadena police that a bottle of whisky had been found in the bottom of the car.

"I saw the woman just an instant before the car struck her," Miss Williams said at her home. "I didn't see her in the street as we came up the hill. She seemed to appear instantly in front of the car. When our car stopped and the crowd began to gather Miss Tracy and I were so excited that we left."

PAIN? NOT A BIT! LIFT YOUR CORNS OR CALLUSES OFF

No humbug! Apply few drops then just lift them away with fingers.

This new drug is an ether compound discovered by a Cincinnati chemist. It is called freezone, and can now be obtained in tiny bottles as here shown at very little cost from any drug store. Just ask for freezone. Apply a drop or two directly upon a tender corn or callus and instantly the soreness disappears. Shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can lift it off, root and all, with the fingers.

Not a twinge of pain, soreness or irritation; not even the slightest smarting, either when applying freezone or afterwards.

This drug doesn't eat up the corn or callus, but shrivels them so they loosen and come right out. It is no humbug! It works like a charm. For a few cents you can get rid of every hard corn, soft corn or corn between the toes, as well as painful calluses on bottom of your feet. It never disappoints and never burns, bites or inflames. Genuine freezone is sold only in these small bottles packed in a little sealed wood case, bearing a yellow wrapper. Beware of imitations.

Southern Pacific to Exploit Tonto Basin.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GLOBE (Ariz.) Jan. 26.—The Southern Pacific Company is preparing to exploit the Tonto Basin section for tourist travel. A great hotel is to be built at the junction of Salt River and Tonto Creek and from it trails will be laid out to a multitude of unusual attractions. A late discovery trip was made by Wesley Hill of the Southern Pacific Apache trail stage connection at Roosevelt, I. T. Sparks, a traveling passenger agent of the Southern Pacific system. On the eastern slopes of the Sierra Anchas, above the Cherry Creek Valley, were found many groups of wonderful and well-preserved cliff dwellings. One group was entered by way of a ledge only a few inches wide on the side of a cliff, then through a rock crevice and then up a smooth pole, the steps of that had been used for the same purpose by the ancient inhabitants. Here was found a house of thirty rooms together with many curious and apparently unaffected by the ravages of time. The largest group was found in the better-known Pueblo Viejo, where the cliff dwellings line both sides of a tremendous gorge. Far below a marvelous waterfall, fed by Devil's Canyon, a mere gash yet 1000 feet deep, and a series of remarkable caverns. It is possible that a lodge will be built at Devil's Canyon for the accommodation of visitors brought from the main hotel.

William Kendrick of Globe has accepted an offer of $10,000 from the Pullman Company for the rights on an adjustable sliding base, to prevent draughts and rolling on carpets. He will use the money to market an air valve of his own design, now being tested on a number of railroads in competition with Westinghouse types.

ROAD MONEY INQUIRY.

The grand jury has directed the employment of former County Auditor N. J. Johnson to supervise the spending over the disappearance of the $250,000 of road bond money. Some of the Supervisors had failed to take action in the matter. The Supervisors, however, have raised Johnson's $2400 to $3000 the salary of the County Engineer under whose administration the alleged disappearance of funds occurred. The road bond issue was $350,000. Some of the work was done in roads in the southern part of the county.

Locally there is belief that the $100,000 has been wasted by the general government and State in construction of roads and two bridges across the San Carlos and Gila rivers, near San Carlos. The bridges never have been used. The approaches and no connection. They are remote from the highway and were built despite strong protests against their locations. The United States, through the San Carlos Indian agent, now is calling for an appropriation by local guarantors of the $13,000 deficit in the road fund.

It is promised that the road between Globe and Springerville will be in good condition for automobile travel by spring time, thus making the main transcontinental line through Arizona. A bridge has been completed over White River, a new road is being built in Devil's Canyon and then the Black River will be bridged, all this work being done by the authorities on the Fort Apache Mountain Indian Reservation.

Explosion of giant powder, which was carrying under the bridge, and which became ignited by the fierce flame of a carbide lamp, is assumed to have caused the accidental death of Mart Nagle, a Mexican mangled body lately was found on the level of the Old Dominion mine. Sam Matthews, another miner, who had just been discharged from the hospital. He sustained a fracture of the skull and other serious injuries. His carelessness in using his own supply to fasten a fulminate cap on the end of a fuse.

GLOBE WAGES HIGHEST.

Miners in Globe district are now being paid $5.75 a day, on account of 31-cent copper, the highest wages ever locally known.

J. Wilson Stone of Globe has married Miss Grace Bowman, daughter of the residence of her parents in Long Beach, Cal. They will spend their honeymoon, the bridegroom having returned to Globe to prepare a home for his bride, who was to join him on the Coast. Stone was met at the train here by friends, who dressed him in convict suit, heavily striped, and paraded him down the main street behind a band and then locked him in his new capacity for the entertainment of a local theater. The bridegroom was released at the police station and taken to a banquet that had been prepared in his honor.

W. O. Keifner, who has been in Globe, was a resident of Arizona since 1883 and former Territorial auditor and superintendent of schools.

RULE OF BAND R BRING PEACE

Failure of Joint Confe Doom of Ca

By a Former Distinguished Military Of

THE Mexican-American Commission has finally brought its long task to a close without having accomplished anything towards the adjustment of the international situation.

And this was to be expected, for while it is true that the American Commissioners represented a government which, lawfully and in reality, ex[ists], the Carranzista delegates have been in the same position; that the faction they represented exercises only a limited authority in that portion of Mexican territory which is undisputed and in which no other armed faction controls.

Therefore, neither they nor the government which they represent can speak in behalf of the Mexican nation; nor can they enter into any contract in the name of the nation. The most conclusive proof of this last statement is that the so-called de facto government finds itself absolutely powerless to control the insurrection in Chihuahua. This example in itself is a sufficient proof of its impotency.

The situation has gone back to the same point where it was at the opening of the sessions; but as a whole the Carranzista cause is much worse than at the time the conference began. Serious armed movements without taking the Villa uprising into consideration) dispute his power in the north, east and south of the republic. Zapata threatens as well to seize the capital. A growing and growing fermentation announces new uprisings in the very midst of the armed forces of Carranza's own following.

LOGICAL SOLUTION.

In such a situation it seems perfectly logical and natural that the United States should withdraw from Mexico the recognition extended to it as a de facto government, placing him on equal footing with the other contenders for control by considering him as a belligerent.

But is just and logical, for it is the natural consequence that results from the facts.

Carranza is not accepted by the Mexicans. He is not capable of imposing himself upon the people, as has been shown. It is therefore vain to ignore the majority of the Mexican people and the right which they have to follow other chiefs from whom they expect the fulfillment of the promises of the Plan of Guadalupe—promises which induced the people to follow the chieftains—promises with which they obtained the moral and material power which has led them to the position of power which they occupy—promises the fulfillment of which is the origin of the growing anti-Carranzista feeling which will soon be the cause of the downfall of the de facto government, regardless of whether the recognition extended by the Washington government is withdrawn or not.

What before the political downfall of the Carranza government place. It can be plainly seen that the majority of the people who are the lower classes continue to be victims and are sacrificed in the hope of redemption; they are reduced to a state of indescribable misery and subjected to an oppression so great that their belongings, their families, their honor and their lives are at the mercy of the lawless of the armed bands; that is, bands from the same men who have led the people to the sacrifice of slaughter, promising them all kinds of reforms. They have now robbed and deprived those poor people of the little that they had left, and of giving them something in attempt to counteract the poverty and nakedness of the multitudes with the insolent showing of their opulence and power which they wrongfully acquired at the cost of the blood of those who are suffering from hunger.

ANARCHY AND CONFUSION.

Consequently the people no longer follow the Carranza cause. For this reason the men armed by the revolution desert and attack their former chieftains; for that reason provinces are lost. Without knowing where to go, they flock to the first chief who will lead them, usually marching against their deceivers, against those who sacrificed them in order to obtain power, against those who have hurled them into the depths of misery and humiliation in order to feast on wealth and power.

The people now want other men. They now fully realize what the revolutionary cause in reality is. They refuse it to fall notwithstanding the recognition which has been given to it and the efforts the chief leaders have made or may make to give it the semblance of a government.

Villa now appears as a liberator to the victims who receive him cordially because they have been led to believe that their efforts would be rewarded through the fulfillment of promises, but they have been deceived in that these promises have been fulfilled. The disillusioned classes follow him, expecting to liberate them from the hateful yoke of the Carranza government, and they thus join Villa in large numbers. Those who have seen him enraged, they fear him, and nevertheless realizing his worth, they do not fear him; rather do they flee from him, for they fear and follow him known as La Bella, is expected to recover, but Frank's wound is a mortal one. The start of trouble was the hiring of Japanese dishwashers.

LION IS GENERAL.

who are in a position themselves from the influence or control of cause, follow less chiefs throughout the of the republic, in manner in which Villa in the north. Although number, there are reb parts of the country; in Tepic and in Colima, in Michoacan likewise in Oaxaca that is to say, in all of the Pacific Coast; as Tamaulipas, Vera and Campeche, along in San Luis Potosi, the States of the in the States along boundary. There is in which armed exist. In Yucatan (which does not obey the central government at all) the deafening agitation grows, while Lower California is practically independent of the action of the government. The followers of Felix Diaz in the south are steadily increasing in number, and Zapata continues to be the chief of the revolution in Morelos, which is fighting for the redivision of the lands. He has headed this revolution since the beginning of the general conflict, which was initiated in 1910.

Why make an effort to retain Carranza as chief of the Mexican government? In that case why not consider Zapata as such or even Villa himself? Or the Governor of Oaxaca? Or Felix Diaz? Or the chief who operates independently in Chiapas or in Vera Cruz?

After all, these men are all revolutionary chiefs; Carranza is nothing more. The Carranza cause has already given the most convincing proofs that it neither is nor can be a government; its absolute lack of discipline prevents him from establishing order; its unquenchable thirst and unbridled lust make it impossible for him to give guarantees. The ambitions and rivalries which divide all of his own people among themselves prevent them from being united. Absolute intolerance and extreme radicalism which, like an incurable leprosy, corrode him and disintegrate him, cause the better element to keep away from him, and therefore prevent the sentiments and forces of the nation from being identified with the Carranza cause.

THE MASSES UNDERSTAND.

Turning away instead of attracting, destroying instead of constructing, the Carranza cause is an element of national dissolution; and therefore cannot be considered as a nucleus around which should be concentrated the aspirations and the hopes of the Mexican people.

The people regret it and with the natural and unmistaken intuition of the masses understand it thoroughly. They are now ready to support any chieftain regardless of who he may be as long as such support bears a destructive influence against the Carranza cause.

It is therefore unfair, immoral and objectionable in every way to try to impose or force the teachings of the Carranzista faction on the Mexican people, to try to make them believe that it is a model government. The most impartial method would be to give an equal opportunity and have equal dealings with all factions of any importance, considering them all as having equal rights to be characterized as belligerents, without showing favoritism to any of them.

Why not confer with the representatives of them all? Why not give them an opportunity to express their tendencies, their desires and their ambitions? This would be the most efficient method of determining the ones who best portray the popular will and of bringing the various factions together in order to form a real nucleus of national aspirations; a real center of crystallisation of that dormant mass which now agitates itself in blind convulsions, destroying its very self.

DOUBTFUL POSSIBILITY.

This would now be the fairest and most efficient procedure: Recognize all factions as belligerents; call them together, through representatives who would make mutual concessions, and arrangements could be made to establish, not a headquarters of a party as a government, but a Mexican government accepted by all parties.

The essential result which can be reached, provided an opportunity were given to all the better element to endeavor to come to an understanding, is the unification of the lower classes who have been sacrificed by constitutionalism without the slightest compensation, and the intellectual element of the middle class, capable of governing and constructing, who have been likewise sacrificed by despoiling them of their rights and compelling them to live in a land of exile.

Those intellectual elements who were victims of the political situation prior to 1910 are not representatives of the spirit of the dictatorship of President Diaz and are now closer to the people than the armed men who have set themselves up as new dictators.

The people fear the Carranzista chiefs and hate them because they justly feel that they have been deceived. Therefore the people still hope and wait, and will follow whomever will give them municipal liberty, a rule of justice, lands that were promised them. The people no longer trust those who at one time posed as their liberators and are now their tyrants. They wait for those who can free them from these tyrants.

So then, if the intellectual element of the middle class, capable of undertaking the necessary work of construction and union, are united to the masses, to the popular element with the ample spirit of conciliation and liberty which encourages them, thus would be formed a real nucleus, a center of attraction, around which all the national elements will necessarily gather; and thus the restoration of Mexico by the Mexicans can be accomplished without pretending to reconstruct the dictatorial rule, which is a thing of the past.

ALL THE PEOPLE.

It is imperative that the people, all the people, take part in the government of the country. Peace between the Mexican factions and the consequent establishment of the government cannot result from the brutal imposition of an armed minority upon the rest of the nation.

It is imperative that we clearly realize that what is true of the nations now struggling in Europe is also true of Mexico; and so it is of the whole world, and therefore the American administration should apply to Mexico the same principles which the President of the United States set forth in his recent speech to the Senate. In the case of Mexico it should be borne in mind that only a peace between equals, based on the equality of rights, can be lasting, not a peace imposed on the conquered by the conquerors.

There will be no lasting peace so long as the principle that the government derives its power from the governed is ignored. Just as there is no right which allows the passing of a nation from one sovereign to another as if it were a thing, neither is there any right to force upon the people of Mexico the sovereignty of the Carranza rule, the sovereignty of an armed faction against which the people are struggling to obtain the free exercise of their will.

Long Beach.

SHOWS IMPROVEMENT.

Jotham Bixby, Sr., Astonished the Physicians by His Rally from Paralytic Stroke, Which was More Severe Even Than First One.

Although still without the use of either side of his body, a slight improvement was noticed yesterday in the condition of Jotham Bixby, Sr., stricken with paralysis at his home, No. 1800 East Ocean avenue, Long Beach.

Whether the change is but a temporary one or permanent, would not be predicted by Dr. A. C. Sellery, the attending physician.

Although Mr. Bixby possesses a sturdy constitution, close friends of the octogenarian, some of whom are associated in the medical profession, declare that it is remarkable how the aged pioneer withstands the ravages of paralytic strokes.

Although for a time it was thought that the first stroke over a year ago would carry away the "father of Long Beach," the last one, suffered last Tuesday morning, was much more severe than the first, yet he appears to be rallying somewhat from it.

TWO FILM COWBOYS HELD AS BANDITS.

AFTER ALLEGED CONFESSION BY JAIL "TRUSTY."

Following Arrests Police Recover Quantity of Jewelry, Including Gems Stolen from Realty Dealer During Recent Hold-up—One Suspect Denies He's Guilty.

Following the alleged confession of a "trusty" in the City Jail, being held on a technical charge of vagrancy, police detectives early yesterday morning arrested two men, said to have been the accomplices of the "trusty" in committing a score of hold-ups and burglaries. Shortly after the arrest the detectives located a quantity of jewelry, among which was found $1500 worth of gems stolen from Frank R. Strong, realty dealer, who was held up at Sunset boulevard and Laurel street several weeks ago while riding home in his automobile.

Even with the coralling of the three suspects the police are not satisfied they have arrested the entire gang, and spent yesterday in searching for the alleged ringleader. He is expected to be found today or tomorrow.

The "trusty," who is said to have confessed, is Douglas Griffin. He was arrested on a charge of vagrancy several days ago, and because of good behaviour, made a "trusty" in the City Jail. Early yesterday morning, the police say, he confessed he was one of the bandit gang.

Armed with this information, Detectives Fitzgerald, Ziegler, Greeley and Barr arrested Richard Crawford and John Ortega, moving-picture cowboys. They were located at No. 321 West Temple street. The former denies complicity, while the latter refuses to talk.

OFFICERS ANNOUNCED.

Engineers and Architects Meet in Annual Session—Programme of Interest Embraces Talks on Illumination and Grade Crossings.

The Engineers' and Architects' Association held its annual meeting at Christopher's, No. 741 South Broadway, at noon yesterday. After a good programme announcement of the election of officers for the ensuing year was made.

H. W. Mills of San Francisco spoke on "Interior and Exterior Illumination." His talk was illustrated with stereopticon views. Samuel Starrow talked about the problem of "Grade Crossings in Los Angeles."

The following officers were elected for the year: A. H. Koebig, Sr., president; A. S. Bent, first vice-president; I. J. Francis, second vice-president; J. J. Backus, G. P. Robinson, A. C. Martin and H. L. Smith, directors.

PATRIOTIC SERVICES.

To Honor Memories of Washington, Lincoln and McKinley.

A special patriotic service is to be held in Trinity Auditorium on Sunday evening, February 25, under the auspices of Roosevelt Camp, No. 9, and Roosevelt Auxiliary, No. 5, United Spanish War Veterans. These services are arranged to honor the memories of Presidents Washington, Lincoln and McKinley.

Dr. Charles C. Selecman will deliver a patriotic address, and national songs will be sung by the Trinity choir of 100 voices.

The various patriotic societies have been invited to attend these services in bodies, and they will meet at the public school at Grand avenue and Eighth streets, at 7 o'clock on the evening of the meeting, and march to the auditorium.

The meeting is in charge of the patriotic committees of the camp and the auxiliary. The former committee is composed of Tom C. Galbraith, P. E. Roller and J. Q. Tefft, and the Auxiliary committee members are Blanche E. Armstrong, Ruth Green and Caroline Keith.

FOR THE SUBWAY.

Other Leading Angelenos Add Their Names to List of Those Who Indorse Proposal to Link Downtown District and Vineyard with Bore.

The list of indorsements given the proposal to construct a Pacific Electric subway from the Hill-street station to Vineyard, for relief of pressing traffic problems, was swelled yesterday by these names: The Harris Newmark Company, by Marco R. Newmark; the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, by President E. G. Judah; Frank J. Hart of the Southern California Music Company, Charles C. Chapman and J. B. Lankershim.

"The members of the Harris Newmark Company," said Mr. Newmark, "are in the ranks of those who wish the city to go forward. There are two prerequisites to the possibility of this forward movement. One is to relieve the downtown congestion; the other is to open to all foot and vehicular traffic the barriers to both in the western and northwestern parts of the city. The proposed subway to Vineyard is an indispensable need for the accomplishment of this result."

Restrained.

ISSUES INJUNCTION.

This City and Pasadena Must Show Cause Why Permanent Prohibition of Carrying Out Their Electric Power Contract Should Not be Granted.

Upon the action brought by Harold S. Cross of No. 2416 Budlong avenue to secure an injunction against the city of Los Angeles and the city of Pasadena against carrying out their contract by which the electric plant of Pasadena supplies current to this city, a temporary injunction was granted yesterday by Judge Houser, and an order to show cause why this injunction should not be made permanent, was issued.

The defendants are to be given a hearing before Judge Houser at 10 o'clock on Monday, February 5. They are commanded to show cause why they should not be restrained from further continuance of the contract between the two cities, from making any payments upon or according to the terms of said contract, and from authorizing or expending any of the funds of the city of Los Angeles in compliance with the terms of the contract, or in the construction of any electrical equipment, appliance or connections for the purpose of carrying out the contract provisions, and that they be further restrained from receiving or attempting to receive electrical energy from the city of Pasadena.

Ingle Carpenter appears as attorney of record for the plaintiff.

ANNOUNCING the OPENING Of Southern California's Finest Residential Park

LOCATED upon the main highway north of Pasadena, within easy walking distance of Annandale Golf Links—close to the park and foothill trails and drives so much enjoyed by outdoor enthusiasts, Flintridge has been passed by thousands of motorists, and thousands of times the question has been asked, "How soon is this beautiful property to be put on the market?"

Flintridge is owned by ex-United States Senator Frank P. Flint, and upon it he has built his home place, occupying about fourteen acres. For years it has been his pet hobby, his pride—and now he is opening it up so that others may share in this most attractive of all home districts in beautiful Southern California.

Here are 1500 acres of foothill and valley, sightly knolls and wooded ravines—a combination of wonderful building sites, laid out by a master landscape architect, with the purpose of preserving as nearly as possible the natural contour of the land. Being virtually terraced, in nature's softest mood, from the floor of the valley to the top of the ridge, a wonderful opportunity is offered for the creation of splendid landscape effects.

Flintridge is just such a place as you have dreamed about and imagined never could come true, for here you will find a small site or a large one—on the hillside or in the valley—upon a sightly knoll—nestling up against the ridge or out upon the level where the slope is very gradual, but affording excellent drainage. Running through this Park of Nature are wide, winding, well-paved boulevards, bordered with ornamental trees. All city conveniences are being installed. Pure mountain water is available in unlimited quantities.

On 80 per cent of the lots there are oak trees and also some sycamores. There is a view of mountains and valley from practically every lot.

Motor Out Today

The agent on the tract will gladly show you through—or you may arrange to see the property by telephoning our Pasadena Sales Office at 254 E. Colorado St.—Colorado 555.

An hourly motor bus service has been installed connecting Flintridge with the business center of Pasadena.

BELGIAN PROFESSOR RELATES TRAGEDY.

LECTURES TO RAISE FUNDS FOR COUNTRYMEN.

Albert Van Hecke Describes the Fall of Louvain and Deportation of Unhappy Captives to Germany, Where They are Forced to Work for the Teutons.

To raise funds for his countrymen, especially the little children who are refugees in Holland, Prof. Albert van Hecke, professor of civil engineering at the University of Louvain, who witnessed the invasion of the city by the Germans and later saw his beloved university burned at their command, last night lectured at Blanchard Hall, under the auspices of the Belgian Benevolent Society and the Belgian war relief fund.

Prof. Van Hecke told of many thrilling and bitter experiences of himself and his bride. He said Mrs. Van Hecke almost lost her life when they became the targets for German bullets in a panic, starting when two groups of German soldiers began firing on each other. But he and his wife remained in Louvain for several days after the Belgians had been expelled, being forced to sleep in the cellar of their home. During the four days following August 25, 1914, 1600 houses were burned he says and Louvain will always remain a bloody reminder of the invasion of Germany.

Prof. Van Hecke says that 200,000 Belgians have been forcibly deported into Germany and at the point of guns are forced to work in the ammunition factories. Those left in Belgium are starving because there is nothing for them to do unless they work in factories and they refuse to contribute to the support of the enemies of their own government.

The commission for relief, in charge of occupied Belgium, issued a strong appeal for the children who are living there and each month 1000 are sent to Holland to be cared for. Out of the number, Prof. Van Hecke says nine out of every ten are suffering from tuberculosis. In Holland there are 1,200,000 orphaned Belgians to care for. Those left in Belgium some days do not receive food at all, only those children below normal size being fed.

Prof. Van Hecke illustrated his lecture with moving pictures showing the life and the different activities of the refugee Belgians in Holland. According to the Belgian professor, the Dutch government has built four camps for the Belgian refugees. Each one is occupied by more than 8000 families. The dining-halls have a capacity of 1000 persons.

Donations sent to Holland have been used in organizing workshops for carpenters, blacksmiths and other workmen and for helping them build portable houses for the refugees, especially the children. The suffering of these refugees is distressing beyond description, according to Prof. Van Hecke who was appointed by the Belgian government to look after the refugees in Holland and provide as best he could, shelter and food and employment for them all.

After his lecture last night, there was dancing, and J. A. Llaudat, the young Belgian soldier who escaped from a German prison camp, also told of his experiences.

FOLLOW OUR LEAD.

Word was received here yesterday that the first branch chapter of the American Dental Society, an organization started in Los Angeles a few months ago by the dentists believing in newspaper advertising, had been installed in Chicago. It is known as the American Dental Society of Illinois, and is a direct product of the local organization. Dr. Joseph Homer, president of the American Dental Society here, received a letter from Dr. W. W. Tarr, secretary and treasurer of the new organization, with invitations for the initial banquet at the Hotel La Salle, Chicago. Dr. Homer stated last night that similar branch organizations would be started in practically every State within the next few months.

WILL DENOUNCE CHILD'S LABOR.

Church Federation Takes up Vigorous Campaign.

Subject of Discussion Today in Various Pulpits.

Part of National Movement for Protection.

Today will be observed in many churches throughout the United States as one for the especial advancement of the sentiment of protection of "the child in our midst." Sermons against child labor and presentation of facts concerning the evils arising out of a system that requires children to be placed in positions of peril to their physical and moral development will be the basis of many addresses.

This movement is inaugurated by the National Child Labor Committee, with headquarters in New York. The Church Federation of Los Angeles, through its Social Service Committee, has taken up the subject locally, and has asked the pastors, generally, to devote some portion of their services today to this subject.

Among the churches that have notified the federation that they will comply with this request, either today or in the very near future, are the following: Park Congregational, Rev. Chester Ferris, pastor; Broadway Christian, Rev. Charles F. Hutalar, pastor; St. Paul's Presbyterian, Rev. W. G. Mills, pastor; Trinity Methodist Episcopal, South, Dr. C. C. Selecman, pastor; East Los Angeles Congregational, Rev. J. E. Enman, pastor; First United Presbyterian, Dr. J. C. Pinkerton, pastor; St. James Episcopal, Rev. A. W. N. Porter, pastor; Florence-avenue United Presbyterian, Rev. John G. Thompson, pastor; Bethel Baptist, Rev. J. G. Carmichael, pastor; Mt. Hollywood Congregational, Rev. Clyde Shepard, pastor; Cumberland Presbyterian, Rev. C. H. Walton, pastor; Magnolia-avenue Christian Church, Rev. J. N. Jessup, pastor; Grace Congregational, Rev. C. L. Knight, pastor; St. Luke's Episcopal, Rev. R. L. Windsor, pastor; Manchester Baptist, Rev. L. E. Dunham, pastor; Immanuel Methodist Episcopal German, Rev. H. D. Kamp, pastor; Garvanza Congregational, Rev. D. T. Thomas, pastor; Traveler Methodist Episcopal Church, Rev. W. A. Reynolds, pastor; Mt. Washington Presbyterian, Rev. R. W. Cleland, pastor.

In a statement issued by Rev. Thomas H. Walker, chairman of the Church Federation's Social Service Committee, and pastor of the Boyle Heights Presbyterian Church, he says, in part:

"The time has come to say with frankness: 'If your business cannot be run without such destructive exploitation of children, your business is too dangerous to the future of our republic.' Such business is wasteful of the finest product of American civilization.

"In spite of recent child-labor legislation there are still more than a million little children at hard labor, deprived of every chance of proper physical development, whose mental development must be thwarted with the body. Playtime, school time—their birthright in America—have been denied them relentlessly. These conditions obtain here in America. It is not of China or Africa we are writing.

"Every patriotic citizen, every-lover of childhood, every follower of Jesus Christ, should lend a hand to take this yoke of modern slavery from the necks of little children, for with all the legislation of recent years, raising age limit and decreasing hours of toil, we are just about holding our own, because of the increase of population. A Federal law is what we need. An awkward public conscience must demand it."

SAVE WASTE PAPER.

Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West Institute "Paper Day," Asking People to Give in Aid of the State's Homeless Children.

To give the people of Los Angeles an opportunity to express their patriotism and their charity, the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West have instituted as "paper day," February 22, and will ask all residents to contribute their waste paper to aid the homeless children of California.

For several years the Native Sons and Daughters have contributed $5000 annually for the purposes of placing little children in private homes in the State. In the past more than 1200 children have been made happy through the organization, which never has asked for money for the work. The organization asks that the people of the city give all of their waste paper that it may be sold, the money secured through the sale to be used to place children.

At present the fund for this purpose is rather low, and the Native Sons and Daughters request the people of California, who have contributed much to the suffering people of Europe, to aid those in need within the borders of their State. Complete plans for the work will be announced later. Herman C. Lichtenberger is chairman of the committee appointed for the work, and Dr. Eva Busenius is secretary.

RECORD IS BULKY.

Four Huge Volumes Filed in Oil Lands Case.

Four immense volumes of testimony, comprising a synopsis of the evidence taken in what is known as the Elk Hills case, involving oil territory in Kern county and constituting the evidence in the appeal being prosecuted to the United Sates Circuit Court of Appeal by the Southern Pacific, were filed in the United States District Court yesterday. There are now about 4000 pages of the testimony, boiled down from twenty-one volumes of the original record.

The case was decided against the Southern Pacific by Judge Robert S. Bean, after a series of hearings lasting some months. He found the land was oil-bearing in character, and was known to be such at the time it was selected by the road under the provisions of an act of Congress.

SEEK ATTORNEY.

Authorities Search State for Young Lawyer Wanted by the District Attorney's Office on Charge of Forgery Involving Auto Transaction.

A State-wide search was instituted yesterday for William Francis Brown, well-known young attorney, who is wanted by the District Attorney's office on a charge of forgery. Deputy sheriffs reported that Mr. Brown disappeared shortly after his release under bond when he was held to answer in the Superior Court, charged with issuing a worthless check.

The forgery complaint was the result of an alleged automobile transaction in which Mr. Brown is said to have forged the name of I. Mather to a bill of sale.

Attorney Brown was a deputy in the office of former Dist.-Atty. Fredericks and two years ago was a candidate for the City Council.

Litigation.

SEEKS RECONVEYANCE OF GAS PROPERTIES.

SUIT INVOLVES PLANTS THAT SERVE FOUR CITIES.

Plaintiff Alleges Original Transfer was Made to Trustees Who Were to Operate for His Benefit, but They Failed to Make Accounting.

Litigation over the properties of the Citrus Belt Gas Company and the Home Gas and Lighting Company, said to be worth $1,000,000, was started yesterday by J. M. Gardiner, who named as defendants the two corporations, F. P. Morrison, E. D. Roberts, Francis Moulton, executor of the estate of E. S. Moulton; A. M. Ham, P. J. Dubbell and Z. T. Bell.

The complaint states that Mr. Gardiner was the organizer of the San Bernardino Valley Gas Company, which acquired the independent gas companies in the cities of San Bernardino county. These cities included San Bernardino, Riverside, Colton and Corona. A large interest was also acquired in the Lytle Creek Power Company.

It is alleged that financial difficulties were encountered in 1911, and to avoid the pressure of large obligations the property was turned over to Mr. Morrison, Mr. Roberts and the late Mr. Moulton, who were to operate it as trustees for the benedit of Mr. Gardiner until the affairs of the corporation got on a firm basis.

The property was sold, it is alleged, immediately after the assignment, under bankruptcy proceedings, and its sale to the Citrus Belt Gas Company, organized for the purpose arranged for. Mr. Gardiner is stated until 1916, he says, for the trustees to make an accounting to him. When he suggested this, he claims they repudiated the agreement and denied that the property was held in trust for him.

The property, he alleges, was operated at a net profit of not less than $25,000 a year since February 14, 1911. There should be, he says, in the possession of the Citrus Belt Gas Company not less than $150,000 to the credit of the San Bernardino Valley Gas Company, in addition to funds received from the sale of the company's interest in the Lytle Creek Power Company, said to be $153,100.

This later sum is claimed to be sufficient to discharge the obligations of the San Bernardino Valley Gas Company, exclusive of the underlying bonds, and the property should therefore be conveyed to Mr. Gardiner, he claims.

The court is asked to declare that the Citrus Belt Gas Company hold the property in trust for the San Bernardino Valley Gas Company; to appoint a trustee covering the sale to the Lytle Creek Power Company; a judgment against the defendants for money received from the sale of the property to the Lytle Creek Power Company, and other relief. The suit was prepared by James Donovan.

ARMY ROAD WORK.

New Los Angeles Engineer Company, the Only One in the State, to Survey Today Roads in the San Fernando Valley.

The new company of engineers organized in Los Angeles under the recent National Defense Act has interesting work ahead of it. This work is to make surveys and sketches, for military purposes, of all important roads and passes in Los Angeles county, locate proper intrenching positions on the hills around the city, determine the strength of all bridges on important highways and in general to secure all possible data which would be an aid to our own troops and to harass the movement of any possible invaders.

The work of an engineer company is varied to the extreme. Its duties comprise railway construction, operation and maintenance, camp location and sanitation, road and bridge building, demolition of fortifications, railroads and bridges, laying out of field fortifications and entrenchments, the building of quarters, fortifications and wharves, the construction and maintenance of electric power lines to sea coast batteries, the construction and maintenance of adequate water supply.

The engineer corps of an army is regarded indespensable, while ranking as the highest branch of the service, it is the smallest branch, numerically, in the army, as men of necessary attainments can hold positions paying more money in civil life.

The Los Angeles company is known as Co. B and is the only organization of the kind in the State at present. It is commanded by Capt. James Irvine. The lieutenants are Theodore T. Kirk and John E. Rockhold.

The entire company will work today on the roads in the San Fernando Valley.

His Last Chance.

Mayor Woodman and his brother-in-law, Attorney E. E. Leighton, left for Imperial Valley yesterday for a last shot at the ducks before the season closes Wednesday. They will be back some time Tuesday, the Mayor expecting to reach the City Hall in time to attend the afternoon session of the Police Commission.

EXPRESS CHIEFS BRING MESSAGE OF OPTIMISM.

THE men who make the American Express Company go are in Los Angeles. The president and a majority of the directors of the great transportation corporation arrived yesterday at the Alexandria. G. C. Taylor, head of the company; H. K. Brooks, vice-president in charge of financial affairs; D. S. Elliott, vice-president of the traffic division; J. A. D. Vickers, vice-president and general manager of the western division; Harry Gee, general manager of the foreign department, and S. D. Malcolm, general manager of the advertising department, were in the group which was met by F. F. La Rowe, the general agent here.

The American Express has enjoyed during the past year the greatest business in its history, according to the statements of the various officials, and this despite the keen competition of the parcel post and other companies in the same line.

The parcel post is no longer looked upon as a possible menace to the express business.

"That government institution has obtained a great amount of business, but it is largely with individual shippers who are not so interested in speed and prompt deliveries as the big shipping corporations. The vast majority of the latter are using the express companies' facilities more extensively than ever before," declared the head of the American party.

"We did originally look askance at and with apprehension toward the parcel post, but that has passed."

Regarding the business of the company in the West, the officials are all enthusiastic. The competition invaded this field six years ago and since that time has made great strides.

The visitors yesterday afternoon visited the local offices and warehouse. Today they will motor through orange groves and tomorrow make an additional survey of the Southern California field. After that they will head northward.

BULK OF ESTATE TO GO TO CHILDREN.

PROVISIONS OF THE WILL OF PASADENA MAN.

Late Large Stockholder in Tom Reed Gold Mine Arranged that Wife, Who Sued for Divorce, Shall Receive Only Such Share of Property as State Law Allows.

The will of William C. Mason of Pasadena, who died last Monday, was filed for probate yesterday on the petition of his son, Harry Ray Mason. The estate is valued at $300,000, including real property in this county, $100,000, and stocks and mortgages, $200,000.

Mr. Mason gives a house and lot in Elizabeth, W. Va., to his parents during their life. He declares the California property community property and directs that his wife, Mrs. Lida E. Mason of No. 990 Denver street, Pasadena, shall take nothing under the terms of the will, and that she receive out of the estate only such portion of such community property to which she shall be entitled under the California laws.

This provision is made, it is stated in the will, for the reason that Mrs. Mason will be amply provided for, and because of the desire that Mr. Mason's portion be distributed to the children, Harry Ray Mason, Helen Grace Mason and Charles H. Mason.

The Union Trust and Savings Bank of Pasadena is made trustee of Mr. Mason's estate, Helen to be paid a monthly allowance. At 25 her portion is to be distributed to her. The remainder of the estate is to go to the sons, in equal shares.

Mrs. Mason on July 7, 1916, filed suit for divorce, charging mental cruelty. The case was set for trial in August, but was continued to April. The will was executed April 11, 1916, but its terms were not changed after the divorce action was filed. In a controversy over the custody of Helen, Judge Wood talked to the child in chambers and at its conclusion she rushed to her father and kissed him. The decision of the court was that Helen remain with her father. He was one of the large stockholders of the Tom Reed gold mine.

TO AID MEXICANS.

Public Welfare Association of El Monte Needs Donations of Cash, Clothing and Lumber to Carry on Its Regenerative Work.

The reconstructive work in the Mexican settlement at El Monte, of which information was given in an article published in last Sunday's Times, has been taken up by the Welfare Association of El Monte, and is reaching proportions far in excess of the original plans. It is proposed to wipe out a plague-spot on the river banks and to provide wholesome quarters and hygienic conditions for the poor Mexicans who have lived in conditions that were shocking.

In order to carry on the increased work, the association needs contributions of cash, lumber and clothing, for use among the Mexicans, and it has been decided to make a public appeal for aid. Contributions can be sent to Dr. B. B. Bolton, president of the association, whose address is El Monte.

Visitor from Shanghai, in America to Buy Goods, Says Merchants of This Country can Get Great, Rich Trade if They Act at Once.

With European countries practically out of the shipping business, with strained diplomatic and business relations existing between China and Japan and with other unusual conditions, American industry has better opportunities in China than ever before, according to S. H. Naftaly of Shanghai.

Registering yesterday at the Rosslyn, he explained he is on his way East to arrange for additional shipments of American products to the oriental republic. For a number of years he has been the representative of a number of large corporations in China.

"If American manufacturers and producers can only grasp the present opportunity it will mean commercial supremacy for them in China for years to come," he declared. "The Chinese look upon this nation as a sort of a big brother, and they are relying in a measure on this government to help them get fair play among the nations of the world. Our goods, if they are made and packed according to Chinese standards as developed by the Germans, French and English, have a very ready sale."

POLICE WORK ON PROBLEM IDENTIFICATION.

Man in Santa Monica Hospital Declared Guilty of Reckless Driving that Led to Woman's Demise, has Same Name as Bunko Steerer.

Efforts were made by the police department yesterday to learn if Frank W. Goodrich, now in St. Catherine's Hospital, Santa Monica, in connection with the automobile accident in which Mrs. Nellie Moormeister was killed Thursday morning, is the same man known as Fred W. Myers of Saginaw, Mich., out of $4000. Friday the coroner's jury held the man in the Santa Monica Hospital was guilty of reckless driving.

Police Detective Roberts is investigated the bunko charge in December, will go to Santa Monica today. The Goodrich case was held by Justice Forbes to answer in the Superior Court. He is under $5000 bond awaiting trial.

According to Mr. Myers, he was a selected victim, he declares, to make the rich the man who, in 1916, swindled him of $4000 in a fake horse-race game. The bunko game was worked at Mr. Myers's home in Michigan.

Simultaneously with the arrest on a charge of manslaughter, Goodrich at Santa Monica, of Goodrich, it was learned that J. M. Smith, 1440 Sixth street, San Diego, living at the Hotel Rosslyn, Los Angeles, is in a more or less serious condition. Mr. Smith is in the hospital, as are all the other victims of the auto accident, the others now at the hospital with Mr. Smith and Mr. Goodrich.

Mr. Goodrich was served with a warrant charging him with the slaughter of Mrs. Nellie Moormeister of Salt Lake City as he lay in bed at the hospital. A notation in the entry on the book at the jail was changed from "bunkoed" to "manslaughter."

Investigation made by the Santa Monica police, following the statement by Dr. Frank Moormeister, husband of the dead woman, failed to prove that Mrs. Moormeister had but little money on her person or in the car, driven by Mr. Goodrich, when the turtle on Pico boulevard in Santa Monica. TO LAST REST.

Humboldt L. Gates, Mining Man, Passes Away at Eureka.

Humboldt L. Gates, mining man and a Deputy United States Marshal of San Francisco, passed away at the St. Helena Sanatorium, Eureka, Cal., on the 20th inst., according to word received in this city yesterday. Mr. Gates at one time held extensive property interests in Los Angeles and had many friends here. He was 41 years of age.

Mr. Gates was among the first men to go into the Klondike, in Alaska, and made a fortune through his holdings there. He was there for seven years and in 1902 he made a tour of the world. For several years he divided his time between Nevada and New York.

In 1912 he married Ida L. Bohn of Eureka and subsequently made his home in this city. He leaves the widow, Mrs. Ida L. Gates, and a son, Humboldt L. Gates, Jr., both of Eureka. He was also a brother-in-law of United States Senator Key Pittman of Nevada.

The vocal and musical features of the programme will be furnished by well-known local artists. It is probable Father Quinlan of Pasadena will preside.

GLOVES HIGHER IN PRICE, NOT ON ARM.

SO SAYS REPRESENTATIVE OF FRENCH FIRM.

Many Women may be Forced to Forego Pleasure of Wear Because of Leather Shortage, Increasing Cost and German Activities in Sinking Ships.

There will be many women foregoing the pleasure and convenience of gloves in the near future. Like everything else gloves are going up. Not physically higher upon the arm, but up in price. They have been advancing steadily and in a few weeks the wholesalers have announced a jump of another 25 per cent., according to Chester Yokum, western representative for Emile Perrin of Grenoble, France, who is at the Hayward after his arrival from New York.

The gloves he sought never arrived. Enough of these to cover the hands of a small army, 10,000 dozen, or 120,000 pair of the finest kind went down on a freighter torpedoed by the Germans. Just a few weeks later a second cargo of 6000 dozen met with the same fate.

Besides this misfortune, comes the report that the "kids" which are slaughtered for glove material are becoming very scarce, the soldiers food need helping to deplete the supply.

Glove leather, that comes in foot squares, is now worth 37½ cents a square or 75 cents a pair, against a former 15 to 25 cents a square. The price of just average gloves must be around $2 and better soon. American manufacturers are up against the same shortage of leather, higher manufacturing cost and other difficulties which will help make the matter of keeping the hands well covered a serious task, according to Mr. Yokum.

For the Winter.

OGDENS VISITORS.

Members of Interesting Old Family Come from Florida Estate to Economize—Living Cost Here Declared to be Very Reasonable.

"We're here to economize," said W. N. Ogden, last member of one of the oldest and most interesting families of America, at the Alexandria yesterday.

He and Mrs. Ogden had just arrived from Florida, where he has a large estate. "We're from 'Souerville,' you know—that's what we call Lemon City."

He declared it is possible to live much more cheaply in California than in any other part of the United States, even during the winter tourist season. "Your foodstuffs are more reasonable in price, and clothing, rents and other things are as low, if not lower, than anywhere I have ever been," he said.

"I wish we could get some of the people in Florida that you have out here. We're doing everything that we possibly can to get them to settle with us."

Mr. Ogden is a member of principal clubs in New York, Baltimore and Florida communities. He has taken a house in Pasadena for the remainder of the winter.

BLACKHEADS AND PIMPLES ON FACE
Got Hard and Red. Itched Dreadfully. Irritated by Scratching So Burned and Smarted. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed. Cost $3.00.

"My face was affected with blackheads and pimples. I did not pay any attention to them at first but it was only a day or two before they would swell up and get hard and red. They would then come to a head and fester which made them very sore. I did not like to go out in company on account of my face. The pimples itched dreadfully, and I irritated them by scratching so that they burned and smarted terribly.

"I suffered about a year before I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. As soon as I used them they soothed my face, and I could sleep well, and after using four cakes of Cuticura Soap and four boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Ethyl Carr, Martinez, Calif., October 21, 1916.

No beauty doctor can do more for your complexion than Cuticura Soap, assisted when necessary by touches of Cuticura Ointment. Unlike strongly medicated soaps Cuticura Soap is ideal for the complexion because so mild, so delicate and so creamy.

SAN FRANCISCO SOUNDS KNELL OF THE UNION LABOR TYRANT.

Remarkable Document, Chamber of Commerce Sets Forth Cause of Law and Order and Affirms the Good Fight will be Carried to Victory.

SAN FRANCISCO'S formal, written declaration of war upon labor-union crooks and tyrants has just been made.

Yesterday interested people in Los Angeles received copies of a handsomely bound and illustrated booklet issued by the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce and entitled "Law and Order in San Francisco, a Beginning." It sets forth in no uncertain terms the case of the champion Law and Order Committee, with its $1,000,000 fund dedicated to the fight for industrial freedom, and backing of the community's decent law-abiding and self-respecting citizenry.

The document is remarkable, in that it emanates from the aforetime stronghold of union-labor domination and license. It declares with finality these conditions must be driven out through "this effort to establish a more wholesome industrial condition in San Francisco and generally to contribute toward a higher moral standard of citizenship."

The Law and Order Committee of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce," says the preface, "came into being at a time (July 10, 1916) when the formation of such a body was imperative. The committee was the natural and logical a result of the gradually aroused spirit of common decency as the bomb outrage of Preparedness Day, July 22, 1916, was the natural, logical result of a long period of tolerance of lawlessness and intimidation, coercion and corruption of courts, police and municipal officials."

REAL PROGRESS MADE.

The adoption of the anti-picketing ordinance November 7, 1916, is hailed as the first definite, real stride toward the goal sought, "thus relieving the city for all time of an instrument of violence, intimidation and outrage that had brought a stain upon the good name of San Francisco."

The volume is the same that, in point of publication, was liberally distributed the 7th inst., through a letter mailed in the office of The Times, a red publication of San Francisco. The letter is addressed to Harry Berkman, "friend of Emma Goldman and exponent of the Bolshevistic propaganda, and is signed with the name of George P. Hall, an investigator of the Industrial Relations Committee. It tells Berkman is advised of the contents, that the Law and Order Committee of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce advance copy of the booklet. Berkman is advised of the contents, not then known publicly, and is told the booklet would tend to establish that the bomb outrage cases now being tried in San Francisco are labor issues. The exposure of the relations between Berkman and West created a furore, and exposure of the unpublished booklet's contents was said to be due to the fact that West had secured a typewritten copy of the material on the ground that he was a Federal investigator and entitled to it.

The booklet covers the entire history of the upheaval in the interest of decency, that was already well under way before the bomb outrage gave it tremendous impetus.

Going back to the beginning of the longshoremen's strike, the book covers the declaration of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce for the open shop. With remarkable continuity, the growth of violence attendant upon the strike is shown, from hospital records; the demoralization of export trade; the effrontery of the Riggers and Stevedores Union, in actually issuing "permits" that would allow teamsters engaged in hauling for the United States Treasury Department to "pass through all picket lines;" the Preparedness Day bomb outrage, and, logically, the rallying of San Francisco's citizenry to the cause of decency, epitomized in the law-and-order mass meeting of July 26, with 6000 persons present, despite bomb threats.

RESULTS SHOWN.

The swing of the pendulum upward is then traced—the settlement of the longshore strike by agreement with the water-frontemployers' organization on terms not pleasant to the union; the strike of the members of the culinary crafts, with attendant violence, and the swing of the Restaurant Men's Association to open-shop principles, breaking the strike; settlement of the longshore strike, as affecting lumber dealers and steam schooner owners, on the open-shop basis; declaration of structural steel operators for the open shop, fellowing a strike of structural steel workers; strike of the bay and river boatmen and its settlement under open-shop conditions.

The huge importance of the passage of the anti-picketing ordinance is discussed together with the remarkable campaign made by the law and order committee, that employed 400 telephone girls to work in two shifts all day before the election and call up every San Francisco voter they could reach. There is also an account of the remarkable campaign of the Chamber of Commerce, that increased the membership from 2400 to 6313.

Yet this is "but a beginning in a work that will be carried to final accomplishment with inflexible determination and stern patience . . . to make San Francisco a better place in which to live and to win for San Francisco recognition as a wholesome, progressive community, inviting attention and investment of outside capital."

It is made clear that the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce is not lending itself to an attempt to deprive working people of their right of organization, but that it will expend the utmost of its resources and influence, if necesary, in opposing every attempt on the part of any class or of any type of organization to place itself above the law.

THE LARGEST "CALLING-UP" JOB ON RECORD—400 TELEPHONE GIRLS WORKING IN TWO SHIFTS CALLING UP THE ENTIRE CITY OF SAN FRANCISCO THE DAY BEFORE ELECTION, NOVEMBER 6TH, AND URGING EACH CITIZEN IN THE NAME OF THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE TO "VOTE YES ON ORDINANCE 8 AND PROHIBIT PICKETING." ACCORDING TO THE OFFICIALS OF THE TELEPHONE COMPANY THIS IS THE FIRST TIME IN TELEPHONE HISTORY THAT AN ENTIRE CITY HAS BEEN "CALLED-UP" IN THIS MANNER

Vote YES on Ordinance 8 TOMORROW and

STOP PICKETING

TO THE MEN AND WOMEN OF SAN FRANCISCO:

You Men and Women of San Francisco—who are patriotic and loyal to your city—will tomorrow be given your first opportunity to commit yourselves indisputably by public expression to the observance of LAW AND ORDER.

There are conditions within our city which demand immediate correction. It is for you to correct them—you men and women who rebuilt a great city almost over night after the most destructive fire of history and who then, within a decade after the rebuilding of the city, builded a World's International Exposition that was and will remain the wonder of the ages.

By your presence at that great mass meeting at the civic auditorium on July 26—a meeting of 6000 patriotic, fearless citizens, called to protest against the ineradicable horror of the bomb outrage of Preparedness Day—you men and women of San Francisco committed yourselves to the redemption of your city from the stain that had been put on it. You committed yourselves with a stern determination against lawlessness, against acts of violence, against the abuse of constituted authority.

The opportunity is now given to you to make a real and an effective beginning. The opportunity is given to you to correct a condition in our city which leads to lawlessness, acts of violence, and crime, and which demands immediate correction. This is picketing.

There is no such thing as peaceful picketing any more than there is lawful lynching or peaceful mobbing. Picketing leads to violence and crime. It is an un-American method by which small business men are ruined, the city kept in turmoil, and the city streets used for private strife.

That there can be no such thing as peaceful picketing is proved by the following record of insults, assaults and acts of violence caused by pickets in the culinary workers' strike, and the longshoremen's strike, which are but two of the industrial strifes during the present year in San Francisco that have made use of picketing.

The lists are incomplete. They give only those cases that have hospital and police records. Numerous cases have occurred where the victim did not report his case—or her case, for women have been the particular objects of insults from pickets—to the police.

Here is an indictment before which picketing must fall, and here is a record that every man and women of San Francisco entitled to vote tomorrow must bring to a decisive end for all time in this city by voting yes on Ordinance 8 to prohibit picketing.

YOUR PARTICULAR ATTENTION—IN ADDITION TO THE CRIME NOTED IN THE RECORD OF THE LONGSHOREMEN'S STRIKE—IS CALLED TO THE OCCURRENCES OF OCTOBER 28, OCTOBER 29, OCTOBER 31, AND NOVEMBER 1, GIVEN IN THE RECORD OF THE CULINARY STRIKE WHEN OBNOXIOUS FUMES SCATTERED IN DOWNTOWN RESTAURANTS CAUSED THE PATRONS TO LEAVE THESE PLACES AND IN MANY CASES RUINED WOMEN'S DRESSES AND MEN'S SUITS. IF ON NO OTHER GROUND—IF MURDER HAD NOT BEEN THE RESULT OF PICKETING AND THERE HAD BEEN NO OTHER ACTS OF VIOLENCE NOR OTHER CRIMES—THE USE OF THESE FOUL BOMBS BY PICKETS AND THEIR SYMPATHIZERS SHOULD BE ENOUGH TO CONVINCE EVERY LAW-ABIDING SAN FRANCISCO MAN AND WOMAN THAT ORDINANCE 8 SHOULD BE GIVEN AN EMPHATIC YES.

In order to stimulate interest in finding the perpetrators, the Law and Order Committee of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce has offered a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of the guilty persons.

PICKETING HURTS A CITY AND DOES LABOR NO GOOD.

ULINARY WORKE[illegible]

It did the work.

Facsimiles of pages from San Francisco's formal declaration of war on the closed shop.

San Francisco's Case.

BATTLE FOR FREEDOM ANSWER TO OUTRAGEOUS OPPRESSION.

FOR years San Francisco has been in the remorseless clutches of the labor unions, controlled and dominated by unprincipled leaders determined to put the demands for unionism above and beyond law and order whenever it so suited their purposes. For years the Bay City was terrorized by this un-American situation, until it seemed as though the business men of that community would never be able to arise and overthrow their oppressors. The list of strikes harmful to the city and the State, or crimes and acts of violence committed by union-protected thugs, and of actual murder was cumulative, until the patience of the business men of San Francisco became exhausted when the water-front strike inflicted such vast injuries, and then followed the revolting massacre of innocent people by the fiendish bomb plot on the day of the great Preparedness Parade. These last actions precipitated the fight against the unions' domination, and the declaration of the business men of San Francisco to stand and fight for maintenance of the principle of the open shop.

The utter disregard the unions have shown for agreements into which they have entered with employers, whenever it suits their convenience to so disregard their promises, was clearly shown in the acts that brought about the water-front strike. The breach of the sixty-day clause in their contract by the Longshoremen's Union was brought about, regardless of the provision that the agreement between the union and the employers was to remain in full force and effect from December 31, 1915, "until either party thereto shall give notice to the other party in writing of their desire to have same changed," and that "such notice shall be given at least sixty days prior to said change going into effect."

HIGH-HANDED TACTICS.

In May, following the convention at Seattle of the Pacific Coast District Locals of the International Longshoremen's Association employers of the Pacific Coast were notified by letter that on June 1 a new schedule of wages and hours would be put into effect by the longshoremen. The longshoremen refused to have conferences with the employees, and on June 1, the longshoremen's demands not having been met they walked out. The appeal of Secretary of Labor Wilson, in which he pleaded with the union men to respect their contractual agreements, was without result.

Then followed an intolerable interference with shipping, the stoppage of commerce at the port of San Francisco, daily loss to all classes of business houses and to employees, constant recurrence of acts of violence along the water front, in connection with the strike, and hurtful effects all along the Pacific Coast.

There were numerous cases of violence that were never reported to the police, and where the victims were not treated in public or private hospitals. But with these aside, the records show a startling condition of lawlessness on the part of the strikers, who vented their spleen against non-union men. From June 9 to July 13, a partial record of assaults on non-union workers shows thirty-six cases.

It is estimated there were more than $2,500,000 worth of exports held up in June by the strike, and this in spite of the fact that 60 per cent of this volume of freight was interstate and subject to Federal jurisdiction.

Wearied and disgusted with this endless brutality and constant infliction of injury, and intimidation both of police and police judges, outraged public opinion at last found expression through the action of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce. The merchants and business men of that city were called upon to meet and discuss the intolerable situation and steps to secure relief. More than 2000 merchants met at this call. The result was declaration for the open-shop principle.

The Light that Leads.

SISTER CITY IS SHOWN THE WAY TO LIBERTY.

Union-ridden Bay Community Follows Los Angeles' Sturdy Example.

SAN FRANCISCO has definitely committed itself to the open-shop policy of Los Angeles as the means of its salvation. Fostered by the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, this open-shop policy has prevailed in Los Angeles for years, and under its righteous influences Los Angeles has expanded industrially and commercially to such an extent that troubled and sorely-distressed San Francisco has seen it must follow in this city's footsteps if it would prosper and put a stop to the constant intimidations and disregard for law and order carried on by the labor unions.

This initial action came through the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce. Last June 22 it pledged itself to an open-shop policy. The declaration of policy included the following principles:

A demand for the integrity of contractual relations.

The maintenance of law and order.

The principle of the open shop.

The chamber further explained its position by saying:

"The directors of the Chamber of Commerce are convinced that the unwarranted demands to force closed-shop conditions in the port of San Francisco by methods that are undertaken in the present controversy are not only unlawful, but disastrous to the commerce of the port. The Longshoremen's Association has discriminated against certain commodities because at some time in their origin or in their handling en route some supposed unfair quality has attached thereto. For example: Sugar landed at docks in San Francisco, handled by non-union men en route, was refused loading by longshoremen in San Francisco. Another case concerned a large shipment of shingles, which was refused because assumed to have been made in an open-shop mill. An intolerable situation has thus been created, and inasmuch as the policy of the Chamber of Commerce is to oppose abuses or unjust practices, which interfere with commerce, it has been moved to make a strong statement of its position.

"The chamber intends to use its utmost resources in dealing with any such situation."

The text of the resolutions by which the directors of the Chamber of Commerce declared themselves for the three essentials noted above read in part as follows:

OPEN-SHOP RESOLUTIONS.

Evidence has been presented to the Chamber of Commerce indicating an unwarranted coastwise combination and effort to interfere with the commerce of the port of San Francisco, and there has resulted an obstruction to and a threatened paralysis of water-borne commerce.

From the investigations made by the Chamber of Commerce it appears that outrageous conditions are sought to be imposed and iniquitous demands are made upon the operators of vessels, and these investigations indicate that the purpose is to interfere with the shipping of commodities that are arbitrarily listed as unfair. Under the law operators of the vessels concerned in this controversy are common carriers. Therefore, they must carry cargo from whatever source, even though it should be classified as unfair by any organization.

The representatives of the labor employed on the water front are seeking to accomplish in an indirect and unlawful way the enforcement of closed-shop conditions, and the methods selected vitally affect not only the commerce of the port of San Francisco, but that of the entire Pacific Coast. The operators of the vessels under the law are helpless, and the demands made upon them are made in a spirit of ruth-

COURT BATTLE AFTER INQUIRY

Dead Newspaper Man's will to be Contested.

Autopsy Fails to Show Poison or Foul Play.

Charges of Conspiracy to Kill Still Mystify.

Investigation into the death of Judah C. Peabody, a former newspaper man, who died Thursday morning, at his home No. 143 West Fifty-seventh street, was dropped by the District Attorney's office yesterday afternoon following an autopsy which revealed no evidences of poison or foul play. The dead man's heart, liver and kidneys were found to be in a very bad condition, amply sufficient to cause death. The examination confirmed the diagnosis of Dr. John W. Cross, who attended Mr. Peabody during his last illness.

As soon as the result was known arrangements for the funeral were made, and the services were held at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

At the same time, Mrs. Peabody and others interested retained attorneys and prepared for a battle over the dead man's estate. Mr. Peabody made a will in 1907 in which Mrs. Peabody was the beneficiary. He made another will in 1912, leaving $500 to W. L. Price and $1000 or more to other beneficiaries, Mrs. Peabody not being named.

Mrs. Peabody retained John Beardsley as attorney yesterday. She says she has evidence to prove that Mr. Peabody revoked the will of 1912 and that consequently the will of 1907 is valid. Mr. Price declares that the will of 1912, which named the Title Insurance and Trust Company as executor, was the true expression of Mr. Peabody's wishes and that he will contest in the courts any effort to offer any other will for probate.

It is believed that the series of remarkable letters signed J. C. Peabody and addressed to Mr. Price, and which were the basis of the official inquiry into Mr. Peabody's death, will figure conspicuously in the litigation over the estate.

Sensational accusations, specifically made, and directed at persons whose names are given, are contained in these letters, of which there are many and which cover a period from 1909 to this month. The writer repeatedly states that the latter lived in a condition of terror; that he believed a conspiracy was directed against him, that his life was in danger and that efforts were being made to get him out of the way on account of his property. The introduction of these letters, it is believed will raise the question of Mr. Peabody's sanity. A few years ago he was declared incompetent by the courts, but soon afterward that proceeding was nullified and another order declaring him competent and able to manage his affairs.

Several men who knew Mr. Peabody in a business way said yesterday that they had never noticed anything abnormal about him. Men at the bank where he did business say that he appeared keen and normal in handling business transactions. That excessive drinking and possibly the use of drugs had undermined his health is apparent from the testimony of friends and physicians and from his own letters, which describe periods of delirium following periods of drinking.

Mr. Peabody's estate was at one time in the neighborhood of $40,000 but is considerably less than that and probably about $12,000. He made money in real estate during the boom of 1887, buying acreage at low price and selling it at several hundred per cent. profit. He lived largely on the proceeds of this deal, loaning money on mortgage and collateral security.

Mrs. Peabody expressed relief and gratification yesterday over the Report of the autopsy. Because of the impending litigation she declined to discuss Mr. Peabody's condition or to attempt to account for the letters, but intimated that she has a story which may be related later. She says that she knew nothing of the letters until yesterday.

Funeral services for Dr. Emily Chapman, the oldest woman chiropodist in the city, who passed away Sunday at No. 2300 West First street after an illness of seven years, were conducted yesterday afternoon at the chapel of Draper & Ballenbaugh. The remains were interred at Rosedale.

She was secretary of the Pedic Society of Los Angeles from its organization until her illness forced her to resign.

She was largely instrumental in securing the bill through the Legislature which recognized the chiropodists as practitioners. She lived at the 1428½ Bellevue avenue and has but one blood relative in the city, Mrs. Anna M. Large of No. 1428½ Bellevue avenue.

The water is diuretic in its qualities, dissolving many of the poisons and wastes of the body, according to prominent chemists who have studied it.

NEW DEPARTMENTS AT THE Y.M.C.A.

AS PART OF A CAMPAIGN OF GREATER SERVICE.

Men of Prominence in Association Work are Placed in Charge of Activities Designed to Reach a Greater Number of Men and Boys of the City.

By the creation of three new departments and the employment of a well-known expert as the head of still another, the Los Angeles Y.M.C.A. is preparing for greater activity among men and boys of this city, according to General Secretary Luther, who yesterday announced the new extension plan and confirmed the names of secretaries who will take a prominent part in it.

J. W. Greathouse, for more than three years field secretary for the foreign mission board of the Southern Baptist Convention and formerly pastor of the First Baptist Church of Pasadena, has been appointed director of the membership department with supervision of finances. Mr. Greathouse was at one time connected with the Cincinnati and Louisville Y.M.C.A.'s in financial work. As a field secretary for the Baptist Church he collected $175,000 in three years.

O. T. Johnston, C.P.A., head of the Y.M.C.A. school of commerce and finance since 1903, has been made financial secretary of the association. Mr. Johnston is also the head of the accounting and administration departments and one of the instructors in accountancy in the Y.M.C.A. night schools. He is a graduate of Occidental College.

One of the new departments created for the promotion of the 1917 extension programme of the Y.M.C.A. is the department of advertising and publicity, with Marc N. Goodnow, formerly of Chicago and Detroit, in charge. Mr. Goodnow has been in magazine and newspaper work for fifteen years, having been on the staff of a number of eastern magazines and two Sunday newspapers before originating Y.M.C.A. publicity in Indiana and Michigan. The Los Angeles association is the only organization of its kind in the United States that has a fully-equipped publicity department.

A more recent addition to the staff of the local association is Stanley Baker, for seven years vocational guidance secretary for the Portland (Or.) Y.M.C.A. Mr. Baker will begin his duties in Los Angeles as the head of the vocational department, February 1, succeeding L. C. Hamilton, who will take up other work in the association field. Mr. Baker is considered among the foremost vocational directors in the Y.M.C.A. movement.

Suit News of First Importance!

$25.00, $29.75 and $35.00 Sports Suits in Greater Number and Smarter Variety Than Ville de Paris Ever Had Just As the Season Begins

Silk Jersey — Wool Jersey — Serge — Wool Checks — Wool Mixtures

Purple—Gray—Rose—Sand—Flame—Navy—Turquoise—Emerald—Sapphire—Gold

Not a day passes now but brings its quota of beautiful new suits
And tomorrow we specialize on these three moderate prices

What a futile thing it would be for us to attempt description of individual styles!

Futile because the styles are individual—that is to say, there are so many one of a kind and exclusive models.

There are suits whose only trimming is a bit of silk stitching. There are suits whose buttons and trimmings are self-material and then follows the opposite extreme of suits with strongly contrasting color trimmings. For instance, a vivid rose has white collar and cuffs and nickel buttons or a turquoise silk has collar and facing of gold.

And in between the extremes are hosts of suits of lesser brilliance, but equally good from the fashion standpoint.

$25--$29.75--$35

We have given the selection of this stock most painstaking care, for it is our intention that Ville suits at $25, $29.75 and $35 shall represent the very best values obtainable in this city.

We think we have made a remarkable beginning, especially in view of adverse conditions in woolen and dress goods markets. The quality of the fabrics is wonderful—both because of softness and fineness of the wools and the superior firmness of weave.

Fashion experts designed these suits—careful workers cut the fabrics and made them—the speediest of express trains brought them.

The most complete showing we have ever had so early in the season is spread out for your critical inspection tomorrow.

Cotton Blouses

Splendid Showing of Smart Styles for Immediate Wear

Cotton blouses are coming—coming literally by the dozens—an avalanche of cotton blouses the like of which we've never had.

So utterly bewitching are these that every woman who reads of them must also see them first-hand that she may learn how really beautiful a cotton blouse can be made.

Out of the wonders of this assortment we have selected the following at random.

At $3.50 an attractive model of plain voile with large, square collar and frill of embroidered voile; Venetian filet lace edge; similar style cuffs.

At $5.75 fine French voile blouse with collar and front finely tucked and trimmed with narrow French Val. Sleeves finished with insertion to match and tucks.

At $9.50—charming mode of French voile with large collar and wide revers; hand embroidered; insets of French Val. insertion and the whole finished with narrow cream French Val.

Since our first announcement of Yo-San last week new pieces have arrived that round out our assortment of the smartest sports designs from the silk looms.

Every popular pattern and color from subdued self-color blocks to vividly contrasting shades.

Annual Leather Goods Sale

Sample Bags and Purses Marked Very Low

Undoubtedly many people wait for this sale, for values are always quite out of the ordinary. We bought the merchandise from a salesman closing out his samples—bought it so cheaply that we can afford to sell it at about the maker's usual wholesale cost.

Nickel, gilt, Dutch silver frames, plain and leather covered. Savings are especially big because these prices were figured on last year's basis.

$1.00 $1.50 $2.25 $2.75 $3.75

Sale Monday—1st floor.

Early Millinery

Silk, Straw and Delightful Combinations of Both Materials

Your hat is perhaps a more important factor in a season like this than usual. Important because the sports hat is hardly suitable for wear with a very conservative suit, and most assuredly no woman would spoil the dash and vigor of her sports suit with a quiet little hat. So Ville de Paris, recognizing this delicate situation, made ample preparations for each extreme and all the "in-betweens."

Satin, satin and straw combinations, rough straw braids, Georgette crepe, khaki-kool, pongee and poplin. And the colors extend from one end of the rainbow to the other.

Straw braid ornaments, flowers, fruit, beaded ornaments, ribbon, glycerined ostrich.

Turbans with high rolling brims and high-crown sailors with brims of every size.

Prices range $7.50 to $30.00. First Floor.

COURT BATTLE AFTER INQUIRY

Dead Newspaper Man's will to be Contested.

Autopsy Fails to Show Poison or Foul Play.

Charges of Conspiracy to Kill Still Mystify.

Investigation into the death of Josiah C. Peabody, a former newspaper man, who died Thursday morning, at his home No. 143 West Fifty-seventh street, was dropped by the District Attorney's office yesterday afternoon following an autopsy which revealed no evidences of poison or foul play. The dead man's heart, liver and kidneys were found to be in a very bad condition, amply sufficient to cause death. The examination confirmed the diagnosis of Dr. John W. Cross, who attended Mr. Peabody during his last illness.

As soon as the result was known arrangements for the funeral were again made, and the services were held at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

At the same time, Mrs. Peabody and others interested retained attorneys and prepared for a battle over the dead man's estate. Mr. Peabody made a will in 1907 in which Mrs. Peabody was the beneficiary. He made another will in 1912, leaving most to W. L. Price and $2000 each to other beneficiaries, Mrs. Peabody not being named.

Mrs. Peabody retained John Beardsley as attorney yesterday. She says she has evidence to prove that Mr. Peabody revoked the will of 1912 and that consequently the will of 1907 is valid. Mr. Price declares that the will of 1912, which named the Title Insurance and Trust Company as executor, was the true expression of Mr. Peabody's wishes and that he will contest in the courts any effort to offer any other will for probate.

It is believed that the series of remarkable letters signed J. C. Peabody and addressed to Mr. Price, of which were the basis of the official inquiry into Mr. Peabody's death, will figure conspicuously in the litigation over the estate.

Sensational accusations, specific charges made, and directed at persons whose names are given, are contained in these letters, of which there are many and which cover a period from 1909 to this month. The writer repeatedly states that the latter lived in a condition of terror that he believed a conspiracy was directed against him, that his life was in danger and that efforts were being made to get him out of the way on account of his property.

The introduction of these letters, it is believed will raise the question of Mr. Peabody's sanity. A few years ago he was declared incompetent by the courts, but soon afterward that proceeding was nullified by another order declaring him competent and able to manage his affairs.

Several men who knew Mr. Peabody in a business way said yesterday that they had never noticed anything abnormal about him. Men at the desk where he did business say that he appeared keen and normal in handling business transactions. Excessive drinking and possibly the use of drugs had undermined his health is apparent from the testimony of friends and physicians and from his own letters, which describe periods of delirium following periods of drinking.

Mr. Peabody's estate was at one time in the neighborhood of $40,000 but is considerably less than that, probably about $12,000. He made money in real estate during the boom of 1887, buying acreage at a low price and selling it at several hundred per cent. profit. He lived largely on the proceeds of this deal, loaning money on mortgage and collateral security.

Mrs. Peabody expressed relief and satisfaction yesterday over the result of the autopsy. Because of the impending litigation she declined to discuss Mr. Peabody's condition or attempt to account for the letters, but intimated that she has a story which may be related later. She says that she knew nothing of the letters until yesterday.

NEW DEPARTMENTS AT THE Y.M.C.A.

AS PART OF A CAMPAIGN OF GREATER SERVICE.

Men of Prominence in Association Work are Placed in Charge of Activities Designed to Reach a Greater Number of Men and Boys of the City.

By the creation of three new departments and the employment of a well-known expert as the head of still another, the Los Angeles Y.M.C.A. is preparing for greater activity among men and boys of this city, according to General Secretary Luther, who yesterday announced the new extension plan and confirmed the names of secretaries who will take a prominent part in it.

J. W. Greathouse, for more than three years field secretary for the foreign mission board of the Southern Baptist Convention and formerly pastor of the First Baptist Church of Pasadena, has been appointed director of the membership department with supervision of finances. Mr. Greathouse was at one time connected with the Cincinnati and Louisville Y.M.C.A.'s in financial work. As a field secretary for the Baptist Church he collected $175,000 in three years.

O. T. Johnston, C.P.A., head of the Y.M.C.A. school of commerce and finance since 1903, has been made financial secretary of the association. Mr. Johnston is also the head of the accounting and administration departments and one of the instructors in accountancy in the Y.M.C.A. night schools. He is a graduate of Occidental College.

One of the new departments created for the promotion of the 1917 extension programme of the Y.M.C.A. is the department of advertising and publicity, with Marc N. Goodnow, formerly of Chicago and Detroit, in charge. Mr. Goodnow has been in magazine and newspaper work for fifteen years, having been on the staff of a number of eastern magazines and two Sunday newspapers before originating Y.M.C.A. publicity in Indiana and Michigan. The Los Angeles association is the only organization of its kind in the United States that has a fully-equipped publicity department.

A more recent addition to the staff of the local association is Stanley Baker, for seven years vocational guidance secretary for the Portland (Or.) Y.M.C.A. Mr. Baker will begin his duties in Los Angeles as the head of the vocational department, February 1, succeeding L. C. Hamilton, who will take up other work in the association field. Mr. Baker is considered among the foremost vocational directors in the Y.M.C.A. movement.

Suit News of First Importance!

$25.00, $29.75 and $35.00 Sports Suits in Greater Number and Smarter Variety Than Ville de Paris Ever Had Just As the Season Begins

Silk Jersey — Wool Jersey — Serge — Wool Checks — Wool Mixtures
Purple—Gray—Rose—Sand—Flame—Navy—Turquoise—Emerald—Sapphire—Gold

Not a day passes now but brings its quota of beautiful new suits
And tomorrow we specialize on these three moderate prices

What a futile thing it would be for us to attempt description of individual styles!

Futile because the styles are individual—that is to say, there are so many one of a kind and exclusive models.

There are suits whose only trimming is a bit of silk stitching. There are suits whose buttons and trimmings are self-material and then follows the opposite extreme of suits with strongly contrasting color trimmings. For instance, a vivid rose has white collar and cuffs and nickel buttons or a turquoise silk has collar and facing of gold.

And in between the extremes are hosts of suits of lesser brilliance, but equally good from the fashion standpoint.

$25--$29.75--$35

We have given the selection of this stock most painstaking care, for it is our intention that Ville suits at $25, $29.75 and $35 shall represent the very best values obtainable in this city.

We think we have made a remarkable beginning, especially in view of adverse conditions in woolen and dress goods markets. The quality of the fabrics is wonderful—both because of softness and fineness of the wools and the superior firmness of weave.

Fashion experts designed these suits—careful workers cut the fabrics and made them—the speediest of express trains brought them.

The most complete showing we have ever had so early in the season is spread out for your critical inspection tomorrow.

Cotton Blouses

Cotton blouses are coming—coming literally by the dozens—an avalanche of cotton blouses the like of which we've never had.

Out of the wonders of this assortment we have selected the following at random.

At $3.50 an attractive model of plain voile with large, square collar and frill of embroidered voile; Venetian filet lace edge; similar style cuffs.

At $5.75 fine French voile blouse with collar and front finely tucked and trimmed with narrow French Val. Sleeves finished with insertion to match and tucks.

At $9.50—charming mode of French voile with large collar and wide revers; hand embroidered; insets of French Val. insertion and the whole finished with narrow cream French Val.

Early Millinery

Silk, Straw and Delightful Combinations of Both Materials

Your hat is perhaps a more important factor in a season like this than usual. Important because the sports hat is hardly suitable for wear with a very conservative suit, and most assuredly no woman would spoil the dash and vigor of her sports suit with a quiet little hat. So Ville de Paris, recognizing this delicate situation, made ample preparations for each extreme and all the "in-betweens."

Satin, satin and straw combinations, rough straw braids, Georgette crepe, khaki-kool, pongee and poplin. And the colors extend from one end of the rainbow to the other.

Straw braid ornaments, flowers, fruit, beaded ornaments, ribbon, glycerined ostrich.

Turbans with high rolling brims and high-crown sailors with brims of every size.

A CALAMITY.

The State Legislature has adjourned for the thirty day recess. The burning question is, what will California do during those thirty days? Not a law will be passed, not a commissioner appointed! It is a terrifying thought.

OCCUPYING OUTPOSTS.

Villa is said to be occupying the outposts evacuated by Pershing's troops. A number of cowboys have declared their intentions of occupying the same outposts or positions adjacent thereto. It is just possible, therefore, that the crimson career of Senor Villa is drawing to its close.

GOING DRY!

On with the drouth, let misery be unconfined! Redondo Beach is now on the dry list. Thank goodness, that's about as far as they can go. They can't vote the Pacific dry, although there is no doubt there are some prohibitionists who would be mean enough to play the Moses trick on the non-prohibs if the Lord would grant them the power ascribed to that old patriarch.

HER OWN BUSINESS.

Mrs. Ethel Byrne, the birth-control advocate, insists that she will starve herself to death if necessary "to arouse the public to a realization of the unjust penalty for spreading her propaganda." Her ideas on the subject of birth-control may be right and they may be wrong. The law considers her doctrines so detrimental to public welfare as to warrant her imprisonment. That is the law's business. If the lady wants to starve herself to death, that is her business.

THE FARMERS OBJECT.

The farmers of Great Britain resent the War Office decision to remove half of the men on the farms whom tribunals have decided to exempt, and to replace them by men who are classed as sedentary workers at home. They say that a sedentary worker can pull a trigger, or throw a stinkpot, or lie down and die in the trenches as effectively as a farm hand and he cannot dig potatoes or follow the plow anywhere near as efficiently. Again they say that agricultural laborers have conscientious scruples against killing people, while book-keepers and drygoods clerks and newspaper writers have no conscientious scruples on any subject. The Times does not altogether agree with the British farmers in their estimate of the physical worthlessness of sedentary workers. It knows of newspaper writers who could knock out any farmer in the United Kingdom.

AVAST THERE!

Capt. Robert Dollar complains because President Wilson has appointed on the new shipping board a lawyer who understands that the right "bower" is not an anchor but the jack of hearts; a lumberman who favors placing sailors on board wages—that is wages payable in boards; and a railway man who insists that the steerage of a ship is the place where the pilot sits and steers her; and that even the two shipping members are proteges of Josephus Daniels and believe with him that to "vast heaving" and to "splice the main brace" are practically the same thing.

Capt. Dollar states that the result of President Wilson's shipping bill which was intended to restore our dwindling maritime supremacy has been to reduce our shipping business on the Pacific Coast from 26.9 per cent. to 1.97 per cent. and to increase that of Japan from 26 per cent. to 51 per cent.

The captain said that while the Republicans did their worst to the sailorman, yet as destructionists they were far inferior to the Democrats.

The Times fears that the captain is altogether too "scrutinous." It recommends him to "bouse his jib" and keel haul his tendency to criticise our seafaring President.

CHANCES OF AN EXTRA SESSION OF CONGRESS.

The administration has figured that the deficit for the next fiscal year will be $373,000,000. This will be met by the issuance of bonds for $270,000,000 and the remaining $103,000,000, estimated to be needed to leave the desired surplus, will be raised by a 50 per cent. increase in the rates of inheritance taxes and a tax of between 5 and 8 per cent. on the profits of corporations and partnerships in excess of 8 per cent.

The bond issues of $270,000,000 are needed to pay these items: $163,000,000—the cost of watchful waiting, bloviating and backing out in Mexico; $50,000,000 for the ship purchasing folly; $25,000,000 for nitrate plant; $21,000,000 for Alaskan railway and $11,000,000 for armor plate plant.

As only two new taxes are to be used to provide the money not covered by bonds or raised by existing taxes, it is the opinion of legislative leaders that the necessary legislation can be enacted at the present session of Congress and this must be done if an extra session is to be avoided.

Only five weeks are left of the present session and as yet President Wilson's railroad programme is still pending. It will not however be the cause of an extra session, for if it can not be put through the present abject Congress, what chance would it have in the next Congress where there is a possibility that the House may be organized by the Republicans?

"SAFETY FIRST"—REAL SAFETY.

Large cities all have their own more or less effective systems for regulating their heavy downtown traffic, but when it comes to mere variety of devices for this purpose Los Angeles easily takes the cake and all the pie in the pantry. Los Angeles, it may be remarked without fear of contradiction, holds all records for always having the "newest" things in safety provisions for its business streets. The apparent zeal of our municipal authorities to be the first with the latest at all times, in fact, has led them to take what other envy-consumed communities might be justified in considering to be an unfair advantage. By the very simple expedient of switching the local traffic scheme every few days they have made it practically impossible for slower cities to keep up with us at all.

The "safety-zone" device de rigueur of the moment blossomed at Broadway and Fourth last Thursday as a corral of heavy iron standards glowing with fresh red paint and festooned with a sailor's tow-line au naturel, the color effect blending harmoniously with the conventional blue habiliments of the traffic officer thus roped to his beat. Please don't dispute! The same standards, it must be granted, were grouped gracefully around the same corner a year ago; but, if you will remember, they were painted a vivid green then. The colors used, be it known to the uninitiated, make all the difference in the world in traffic zone fashions, even as in milady's attire.

Take for example the elaborate and bewildering symbolism that has been devised in recent years by the official traffic regulators for the guidance of the motorist and the protection of the pedestrian. The red arrows that glared up at the passers-by from the pavements and sidewalks a few weeks or months ago were stylish enough in their day, but they would have been decidedly outre, as it were, in company with the flocks of green arrows that came later. Either would have been exceedingly bad form when the officials started copying the white and black arrows smeared all over the country as his trade-mark by the late "King of the Hobos," the illustrious "A No. 1."

Sometimes it is the curbs that are adorned and once it was the vogue to splash cryptic marks about fifteen feet up the sides of corner buildings. The former mode, to judge by the curbstone art now in evidence at several street intersections, is coming back. Asphalt decoration, once all the rage, has apparently gone out, although it will undoubtedly be revived as soon as the official students of traffic and transportation science have had time to bring out new designs. The traffic regulators have exhausted the resources of the zodiac, the geometries and the spectrum in their search for symbols, signs and colors for working out their pavement patterns.

One hardly dares to question the ability of these experts to keep up the pace that has been set, after having seen so much evidence of their versatility, but it is hard to see how they can go on indefinitely without bringing upon themselves the odium of having to repeat. They have set up every kind of semaphore and every species of block and light system imaginable in the streets and on the sidewalks. Conservative lady motorists, creeping timidly around turns in the traffic jam, have been given all the sensations of being flagged and wig-wagged like Grand Prix racing demons.

Yes, it seems a hopeless task to think up anything new in traffic safety devices, but it is a fascinating pursuit, and The Times feels like adding its mite to the symposium of suggestions that are constantly being taken up by the city authorities. Rows of toy balloons could be anchored along the lanes which it is intended the drivers of automobiles should travel at the discretion of the traffic squad and its advisers. The beauty of the plan lies in the fact that the ordinary nails used to fasten the strings of the balloons to the pavement would not protrude for the pedestrian to stub his toes on, as do the squat bases of the present standards. The driver, swerving from the latest path marked out for him to navigate, would instantly crash into a balloon, which would explode with a loud report, summoning the officers of the law as effectively as would a police whistle at the lips of a lusty traffic cop.

By way of another plan, the traffic regulators might substitute silver dollars for the metal discs that for a brief season were embedded recently in the pavement at various corners. Drivers negotiating a corner would be hypnotized by the sight of so much wealth apparently lying loose in the street and would unconsciously slow down to safety speed. The objection to the scheme, of course, lies in the possibility that pedestrians might stoop down squarely in front of oncoming machines to pry up the coins.

Haven't we had about enough of this foolishness, Mr. City Official? The thing has got to be a joke. Every new stunt that anyone with nothing better to do can think up is tried out by the traffic squad. The drivers of automobiles and the pedestrians alike suffer for these ridiculous experiments. No one could possibly keep track of these ever-changing traffic rules and the childish devices used to instruct the public in their uses. Tourists from other cities laugh at us every time they see a new hodgepodge of paint on the pavement or the latest mechanical contraption waving its arms at the befuddled motorists. As for the people of Los Angeles, they are, it is true, getting used to it; but they are disgusted, nevertheless.

Adopt some one simple plan—any simple plan—the simpler the better, and stick to it! No need making the downtown street corners look like a combination backgammon board, railway yard, cow corral and astrologer's chart merely to establish and indicate rules for travel. Make an example of every automobile and truck driver who comes bearing down on pedestrians at a reckless and dangerous speed! Make this kind of driving unpopular by giving every offender the limit possible under the law. In other words, enforce the existing laws against the kind of driving that is a menace to the public! The public pays taxes for just this kind of protection and is entitled to have it.

Last, but not least in importance, demand and secure evidence of the qualification of every automobile driver, man or woman, amateur or professional, to properly handle his or her machine before giving him the right to do so! Make him take out a certificate of such qualification, a license to drive, revocable at first offense against the traffic rules for the protection of human life and limb. Exact this of every driver, whether chauffeur or owner.

And please wake up, Mr. Councilman, to something like a full realization of the vital necessity for opening new outlets into the downtown area in order that streets and corners now overtaxed with traffic may be relieved of their present intolerable congestion! The Second-street tunnel, now happily assured, is not enough. It will take an enormous volume of traffic from Sixth and Seventh streets and will distribute it up and down Broadway, Hill, Spring and Main; but other measures are needed also. Let's get the South Broadway opening attended to and let no time be lost in getting more bores through Bunker Hill. Let's end this "safety zone" foolishness and get down to business!

BENEFICENT INFLUENCE OF FRATERNAL ORGANIZATIONS.

There are in the United States 15,674,220 members of secret fraternal organizations. The Masons lead with a membership of 2,959,185, which includes the 700,000 members of the Order of the Eastern Star, consisting of the mothers, wives, daughters and sisters of Masons. The Odd Fellows come next with a membership of 1,609,096; the Modern Woodmen have 908,139 members; the Knights of Pythias, 725,009; the Rechabites, 701,040; the Woodmen of the World, 692,447; the Good Templars, 620,000; the Moose, 615,846; the Red Men, 495,954 and the Elks, 426,479. There are nineteen orders having between 100,000 and 400,000 members each; twenty-six orders having between 30,000 and 100,000 each, and a number of smaller organizations with a membership aggregating 205,410.

Each and all of these fraternal orders is a force for good government, for order, for peace, and for the material and moral and spiritual advancement of its members; for each, as its basic principle, recognizes the equality of men and the fraternal obligations which bind all men together. These fraternities are high expressions of the sentiment of universal brotherhood. Within the portals of their lodges there is no distinction of lineage or caste. The President of the United States, the scholar whose researches extend over all the realms of thought, the soldier bearing on his person the glittering trophies of victories, the owner of untold riches and the laboring man with hands hardened with toil are all alike—brethren all.

While rank and wealth divide society into classes; while political and religious differences create animosities, the fraternal organization speaks a universal language which all men understand, and occupies a platform broad enough and firm enough for all the world. It violates no law. It wars with no sect, party or state. It obeys literally the divine admonition, "Let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth," and performs in secret the holy offices of charity. Wherever sin and wrong have cast their dark shadow there is the fraternal brother to reclaim the erring and lead the repentant again to paths of peace. Wherever are sickness and sorrow there is the Mason, the Odd Fellow, the Moose, the Elk, the Red Man, the Woodman, the Rechabite or the Knight of Pythias, to watch and soothe. Wherever is death there is the brother to commit with solemn rites the lifeless form to the silence of the grave.

A cardinal tenet of every fraternal order is a belief in the existence of a Supreme Ruler of the Universe, and, as a corollary to that sublime truth, faith in the immortality of the soul. Every order teaches its members that the ineffable spirit of wisdom and love animates and permeates all time and space. The neophyte is taught to discern the presence of God in every form of being and every manifestation of nature; in the morning and the evening; in the spring, with its refreshing showers, and the autumn, with its rich sheaves and golden harvests; in the forests with their infinite variety of flower and foliage; in the mountains that lift their hoary heads above the clouds; in the rivulets that sparkle in the sunlight; and in the seas that mirror the glory of the skies. Atheism may spread far and wide, shutting out from the soul the hope of immortality, but while organizations of fraternal brotherhoods continue a power in our land, faith will find a sanctuary in their lodges.

Fraternal brotherhoods are the offspring of benevolence, of self-sacrifice, and of a love of justice and order. That they thrive more in the United States than in any other land is evidenced by the fact that one-fourth of our adult male population are members of some order. These orders invite to their membership all worthy persons, whether aliens or citizens, wherever born or of whatever faith. Their meeting places, whether named temples, or lodges, or wigwams are dedicated to brotherhood and charity, and the members hope to accomplish their benign purposes through the love that comes from knowledge of each other and the strength that is born of association and cohesion.

BUSY SAM.

Sam Gompers, having "delivered the goods," and helped make Mr. Wilson President in return for the passage of the futile Adamson law, is now turning his attention to recommending and advising and, to an extent, directing Congress in other matters. His latest activity is a remonstrance against the passage of Section 26 of Senator Shafroth's Porto Rican bill which provides that "No person shall be a member of the Senate of Porto Rico . . . who does not own . . . taxable property in Porto Rico to the value of no less than $1000," and Section 27, which excludes from membership of the Porto Rico House of Representatives "all persons who do not own property of the assessed value of $500."

Exactly where and how Sam is interested in the qualification of Porto Rico legislators is not apparent to the man whose residence is in the upper foliage of an oak or a palm tree. Does he contemplate colonizing some idle members of his staff in Porto Rico? Or is it merely a desire to participate influentially in the legislation of Congress generally that actuates Sam?

After a remarkable court action a woman born out of wedlock has established her right to a name and a fortune. Certainly everyone who comes into the world has a perfect right to the best name they can get, either through "natural selection" or through choice. Undoubtedly, also, everyone has a right to a fortune, if they can get it.

The government has begun proceedings against the manufacturers of automobile horns, alleging violation of the anti-trust law. If this has a tendency to decrease the number of the ear-torturing devices on the highway, we are for it.

BEING THE PARTICULAR PEPPER IN SOME PERSONAL OPINIONS

Of Don yo de Chiltepin.

I would not gamble my last dime on the Otherwise Propriety of the Lady arrested for driving a drunken auto. It's more than a Job for most women to box the wheel when it is teetotally abstinent. Also, for many men. She may be otherwise like Caesar's wife—"Too Good to be True." But I should be Dubious Thos. To run two Tanks at once is really too much for any woman.

Nor does the Lady get my Undivided Love who shoplifts, instead of the good old way of "frisking" some masculine pocket; nor who gives her autograph without Stuff behind it at the Bank. There are so many who don't do these things, that I think I can pick my assortment of Lady Friends without stepping on the toes of the Police.

But I wouldn't really shut up one of these Misguided Females in the same cell with her still Unluckier Sister—the Outcast who has been kicked down to habitual crime, whose blood is rotten with the most hellish disease invented by Civilization (that's true; primitive man never had syphilis,) whose heart and hand are against the world—and every woman's hand against them.

No, they ought to be segregated to avoid mutual contamination—the better from the worse, and the worse from the better. They should never touch—not only one another, but identical things. Except, of course, Men (who, with Clothes,) bring both where they are—and which we cannot prevent.

But when Lucky Ladies of Both Sects begin to urge "Bungalow Jails" for our Unluckies, an old man of my acquaintance goes out to commune with Nature behind the hen-house, where the Green Grass is also growing all around.

Why not "Drawing Room" Jails, or "Boudoir" Jails? For the male malefactors the city might purchase the Y.M.C.A. Flowers changed daily—for the Weak Sisters a bit of rosemary; for the Bedamned Sisters a sprig of rue; for murderers a bushel of "American Beauties."

Of course every room should have an engraved card:

> "You are kindly requested not to leave this Jail unless you feel like it. All bad checks will be honored at the Office. Burglary and murder really should not be committed on the Premises.

And we used to think Jails were to shut up Them as Needed!

More than half a century ago one Charles Nordhoff wrote a book—and Harper Bros. published it. The title was "California for Health, Pleasure and Residence; A Book for Travelers and Settlers." It was the first book that ever largely promoted migration to the Golden State; and it did more than any other one book—not even excepting Charles Dudley Warner's "Our Italy"—to turn the Desirable World toward California.

I knew and loved Nordhoff. He was no swashbuckler, "promoter," hotel tout—but a most quiet, modest, genuine "Gentleman and Scholar," absolutely convinced (by study) that Southern California is the Chosen Land. This (and his later) book have been worth to California not only tens of millions of dollars in cash, but tens of thousands of the most desirable citizens we have. Many of our oldest and best American communities have been founded and built purely because Nordhoff wrote when and how he did. And some that came because he said California was Good, and found him no liar, founded a little town in Ventura county, and named it for him.

And now what do you think the Tenderfeet that tiptoe the streets of Nordhoff, Cal., are doing? Why, simply petitioning the Postoffice Department to change the name from "Nordhoff" to "Ojai!"

Ojai! Oh—H—I!

They have already their famous Ojaigh Valley, which every stranger mispronounces. It isn't even an accurate replica of the old Indian name, but a Spanish much-corruption. The Old-Timers wouldn't be there at all unless Charles Nordhoff had Asked them. The Tenderfeet wouldn't be there unless the Old-Timers had Smoothed it Down for them. Nordhoff deserves a county named for him; if a village got the honor, long ago—it had better keep it!

And I'm delighted that United States Senator Phelan advised these newcomers (in a letter of which I have a copy) to go slow in their vandalism.

I had suspected President Wilson of being almost anything else but a Good Sport. I knew him for a gentleman and a scholar, an academe, a patriot and a very Wistful Watcher.

But now, after thirty-odd years on the Frontier, I take off my sombrero to him as one of the Nerviest Gamblers I ever met.

And the old-time Frontier Gambler HAD to be a MAN. No Tinhorns survived long in those Good Old Days.

Our President's message to the World (by way of the Senate) was not merely a paper worthy of literary immortality—it was one of the bravest things an American statesman ever did. I reckon he knew how it would be sneered at by the diplomatic liars of Europe. I reckon he was willing. And while Europe—especially the Allies—will sneer, they will also in their hearts thank God for a man that is willing to "help them Let Go of that Bear."

Now, if President Wilson could manage to write an "identical note" on Mexico—we'd all get behind him again!

DOES THE HOUSE LEGISLATE?

[CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.]

BY ROLAND G. USHER,

Author of "Pan-Germanism" and "The Challenge of the Future."

THE legislative power of an individual member of the House of Representatives is getting to resemble more and more the biblical grain of mustard seed. It is becoming as easy to find as the value of X; it is almost as real as the dodo and as difficult to discover as an honest man. There are still people, however, who do not realize that in Washington there is no odor of the sanctity of legislative lubrication, but merely an odor of dead and dying cigars embalmed in steam heat. No, gentle reader, your representative has as much chance of making a speech on your measure, simply because his noble breast palpitates with a desire for self-expression, as a camel has of passing through the needle's eye, or the wicked rich man of entering heaven.

That is why the deadlock in the new House is important. There seems to be an almost equal number of Republicans and Democrats elected, and the balance, even should the few contested seats fall to one party or the other, remains in the hands of about six members who do not belong in either camp. Two hundred and eighteen members are a majority and neither of the major parties is likely to get that number without assistance. Most people wrongly conclude that the importance of this tie lies in its direct effect upon votes upon legislation throughout the session. That is not true.

Its importance lies in the fact that the majority vote in the first session of the House elects the Speaker, and that the Speaker controls, directs and in one way or another appoints the whole legislative machinery of the House. If the Republicans choose the Speaker, he will make that machinery Republican and it will turn out Republican legislation, and all the rest of the House will have great difficulty in rejecting it. They will have great difficulty with a Republican Speaker of even amending it.

The Speaker of the House of Representatives is in fact an absolute tyrant; he is worse than the Czar, more powerful than the Sultan or the Emperor of Japan, or than all the other traditional despots put together. Most of their power was imaginary, anyway; but his is the real thing. In practice he has absolute power over debate in the House of Representatives. Nobody can speak on the floor without his consent and practically that means without previous arrangement with the Speaker, the floor leader of the majority party, and the chairman of the committee in charge of the bill. The last word rests with the Speaker. You must be recognized by the Speaker before you can say anything, and if he does not choose to see you, you may shout at the top of your lungs and no one will pay any attention to you. They will probably not do that, anyway, but if he recognizes you your words will be recorded in the Congressional Record. In one way or another the Speaker personally controls the events in the House and can very often direct the debate and control the vote.

But legislation is not prepared in the House, but in the committees of the House, and ordinarily nothing gets before the House which some committee does not report. The committees are all appointed by the Speaker, who appoints the majority of the committee, including its chairman, from the party which elected him. The party which elects the Speaker therefore will at the same time elect itself to the chairmanship and majority vote in the whole committee system of the House and will therefore secure complete control of the whole machinery for preparing and proposing legislation.

Through the chairman of the committee it will furthermore have complete control, except so far as the Speaker himself has it, of all the debating upon this legislation which is done on the floor of the House. As a matter of fact, the House is so organized and its machinery is so centralized and so extremely despotic that the majority party, through its election of the Speaker, is practically able to throttle the activities and ideas of every individual member in the House; he must either get in the machine and march with the procession or he can do nothing at all.

RIPPLING RHYMES.

DOMESTICS.

We've had about a thousand maids, who worked for us for wages; they cleaned the floors and window shades; and cooked, by easy stages.
And ever and anon they'd quit; their time had come to marry; and Grace would wed her smiling Kit, and Jane would wed her Harry. And I felt sorry for the groom, whene'er there was a wedding; when matrimony lost its bloom, he'd find some rocky sledding. Of all the thousand girls we've hired, not one was truly saving;
economy would make them tired, and sometimes set them raving. It was the same with Beryl Maud, with Susan and with Sally; they'd roll things up into a wad, and throw them in the alley. They wasted succotash and steak, as good as you have tasted; they wasted pudding, pie and cake, and all that could be wasted.
They wasted soap, they wasted soup, and did it all with jesting, and didn't seem to care a whoop for wailing or protesting. So when they go away to wed, I weep for those they marry, for Clarence, William, Stephen, Fred,
Adolphus, James and Harry.

Law and Fact.

[Nebraska Legal News:] "Your case would have been stronger, Mr. McGuire," said the lawyer, "if you had acted only on the defensive. But you struck first. If you had only let Aim strike you first you would have had the law on your side."

"Yes," said McGuire, "Ol'd have had the law on my soide, but Ol'd have had him on me stomach, pounding the loife out ave me."

Mother Praises Remedy That Relieved Her Baby

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a Dependable Family Laxative.

Nearly all the sickness incident to a baby's life is due to constipation, or inaction of the bowels. At the first indication of irregularity in this important function, relief should be afforded promptly. A mild laxative should be administered to gently carry off the congested waste and leave the stomach and bowels free to perform their allotted tasks.

Of the various remedies recommended to relieve constipation, the combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, as prescribed by Dr. W. B. Caldwell and sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is the most effective. It contains no opiate or narcotic drug, is pleasant to the taste, mild and gentle in action, and quickly brings the desired relief in an easy, natural manner.

Mrs. C. J. Douglas, Mason, Ill., writes that she cannot say enough in praise of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin as a dependable family laxative. Little Mary Eva had been badly constipated until they tried Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which brought the first natural relief the child had had in two weeks.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sold in drug stores everywhere and costs only fifty cents a bottle. To avoid imitations and ineffective substitutes be sure to ask for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. See that a facsimile of Dr. Caldwell's signature and his portrait appear on the yellow carton in which the bottle is packed. A trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 485 Washington Street, Monticello, Illinois.

DO YOU KNOW THAT YOU ARE BREAKING LAWS EVERY DAY?

CLUBWOMEN who have been digging into the city ordinances have found some fearful and wonderful laws on the overburdened statute book. Every day moral and upright citizens, male and female, are breaking Los Angeles ordinances and unknowingly are making themselves liable to pay fines more or less heavy.

Just for example, hundreds of citizens cut across school grounds at one time or another and each time they do it they render themselves subject to a fine of $30 because it's unlawful for any person to trespass on school grounds.

Parents, whose trials and tribulations are many, are liable to be fined if they send their Handsome Harry or Gentle Grace to the corner grocery store after 9 p.m., if said Handsome Harry and Gentle Grace are under the age of 17 years.

Of course, everybody knows it's unlawful to let chickens run upon neighbors' premises, but it's also an offense, punishable by a fine or a term in jail, to feed any flocks, chickens, geese or other fowl within twenty feet of any door or window of any dwelling, so it's a crime to feed the chickens by throwing wheat just outside the back door.

Ranchers in the San Fernando Valley and other farming districts which are within the city limits will be interested in knowing that they must not keep bees.

Boys will be astonished to hear that it is strictly against the law for them to play ball on any street. They mustn't play "any game of sport with a ball" upon a public thoroughfare.

Councilman Conwell came across a rich one when studying some of the ancient ordinances which have not been repealed. This one provides that no motorman shall shoot jack rabbits on the streets. This is reminiscent of the days when Seventh and Broadway was a mustard field.

People who let their children trot off alone to moving-picture shows are guilty of an infraction of an ordinance because no minor under the age of 14 years can go to such a show unless accompanied by a parent or guardian, or some other adult duly authorized in writing.

Persons who appear in parades, and who sing, shout, or make any loud or unusual demonstration without a permit in writing from the Chief of Police, are running a risk because they can be hauled up and fined. The various State societies, which hold so many picnics here may not know that every organization of more than twenty-five persons must get a permit from the Board of Park Commissioners before holding a picnic.

There used to be funsters here who threw snuff around to make people sneeze, so one of the ordinances makes it unlawful to throw, blow or otherwise scatter, or cause to be thrown, blown or otherwise scattered, on any street, sidewalk or in any restaurant, cafe, theater or place of amusement, any Japanese snuff or any other kind of snuff, or substance which injuriously affects the olfactory nerves or causes sneezing or coughing. The fines can range from $10 to $300 with imprisonment up to ninety days, also.

Not many persons in Los Angeles will wish to engage in the business of selling snakes, lizards and chameleons on the streets, but should anybody do so he would engage in an unlawful act punishable by a fine of $50.

No person can wear any mask, false whiskers, or any personal disguise, whether complete or partial, upon a public street between the hours of 6 a.m. and 6 p.m. without running the risk of being "run in."

Chalk up Another.

LOS ANGELES IS FIRST IN BIRD POPULATION.

WHO HAS THE BOOK?

Missing Poems Needed to Complete Dr. Lawrence's Work.

Dr. B. M. Lawrence, whose address is Pisgah Home, No. 6026 Echo street, Los Angeles, is in distress over the loss of a valuable scrap book, which contains the only copies existing of several of the poems he has written during the past sixty years, and which he desires to include in a volume he is now preparing for publication, to be known as "The National Good Health Guide Book, with Songs and Story Poems."

The scrap book some time ago was loaned to a friend, and since then trace of it has been lost. Dr. Lawrence has lost also the first chapter of manuscript for a book on "The Golden Rule of Marriage" and a copy of "The Christian Athlete," all of which is desired for use in connection with the publication of his new volume. Any one who knows the whereabouts of these documents will confer a great favor on Dr. Lawrence by notifying him at the address given above, and will be suitably rewarded.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "foggy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c.

BACK-YARD BEE KEEPING CUTS LIVING COST HERE

DESPITE the fact that it is contrary to an ancient and still-unrepealed city ordinance, back-yard bee-keeping may be added to the long list of profitable outdoor pastimes prevailing in and around Los Angeles. Interest in honey farming has been stimulated by an exhibit recently placed in the Chamber of Commerce. This shows the modern method of taking a swat at the high cost of living by letting from 50,000 to 100,000 insects get on the job.

California leads all States in honey production, producing something over 15,000,000 pounds annually, but this is only a drop in the bucket to the needs of the nation.

Back East the people are starting apiaries on the roofs of houses if no other space is available. It is pointed out that in Los Angeles, where there are so many large city lots and acre homes surrounded by honey-bearing flowers the year round, almost anyone could add to the family income with a few hives of bees.

The bee is proverbially busy, has many other desirable qualifications in addition to its industrious habits. It hustles all over the neighborhood to gather honey for its owner, and when the hive is full it starts work all over again undismayed and not discouraged in the least.

Also, according to authorities, the queen bee has almost everything in the kingdom of living things backed off the boards when it comes to laying eggs. She lays from 1000 to 7000 eggs in a single day. These weigh twice as much as the layer, and where they all come from is one of nature's mysteries.

A pound of honey is said to be in food value a pound of meat, but costs less. It is the most wholesome of sweets, and one colony of bees will produce enough honey to supply a family of five. If the present interest continues and more people be that Los Angeles will become a land of honey, in addition to being the heart of the fruit and flower section of America.

FAILS TO SECURE A WIFE'S RIGHTS.

WOMAN'S DIVORCE ACTION IS AGAIN ON REEF.

She Lived with Civil War Veteran Twenty-six Years, but He Denies They Ever Wed—Motion for New Trial of Decree Suit Denied.

Although she had lived with Fred W. Kellogg, a Civil War veteran, for twenty-six years, her assertion that she had married him being denied by Mr. Kellogg, Ellen A. Kellogg was not able to convince Judge Taft some time ago that she was entitled to a decree of divorce. Yesterday her motion for a new trial was denied.

Attorney Thomas C. Gould, who represented Mrs. Kellogg at the trial and pressed for a new trial on the ground of new evidence, is expected to carry the case to a higher court.

In many respects the facts are unusual. Mr. Kellogg says Mrs. Kellogg made the first advances to him; that she knew he was married. But the testimony showed she accompanied him on journeys on the Coast and that they had lived together all these years without an— of their friends suspecting they had not been joined by a legal ceremony.

Mrs. Kellogg testified the ceremony was performed in Tacoma, January 12, 1890, and that they lived together until July 21, 1916. She charged him with cruelty.

IN AND OUT ABOUT THE COURTS.

WANTS NEW NAME. George A. Held found "the sarcastic use of the name which was given him by his parents is always embarrassing in his business," and yesterday he petitioned the court to permit him to use the maiden name of his wife, McMahon. Mr. Held keeps a garage. His wife, he says, consents to the change of name.

ENTERS DENIAL. Mrs. Zula Good has filed an answer, formally denying the sensational charges of Mrs. Omar Tharp in the latter's $75,000 damage suit for alienating the affections of Mr. Tharp. In Mrs. Tharp's suit she alleged poison was placed in her food and she became ill. She asks $10,000 damages for her suffering. For loss of the love of her husband, a musician, she demands $50,000 damages. By way of punishment, $15,000 is asked.

Pending the Holding of ... Bond Election to Provide ... to Install Imhoff Tanks ... Going Ahead with ... Sewer Construction.

Pending the holding of a bond election to provide for the installation of Imhoff tanks at Hyperion the city is busy with work which must be done in accordance with the instructions on by the State Board of Health to abate the sewage nuisance.

The city is planning to spend $275,000 on this improvement. Since the beginning of the year $107,500 has been received from the general sewer fund. The Council authorized the engineers for bids for materials which run up to nearly $100,000. These bids include [illegible] estimated to cost $1,000; 3700 tons of sand, to cost $1,000; lumber of the value of $1,000; $200 tons of crushed rock, to cost $3500.

The work includes [illegible] through the hills a mile and a long and a quantity of [illegible] pipe, as well as the main outfall sewer, which will run northwesterly from the end of the fall. The new tunnel will be 1000 feet longer than the old one, and thus the sewage will be carried much farther out to sea. As the Imhoff tanks are being built, cannot be done for another year until either bonds are issued or money specially provided in the budget, the sludge now flowing from the sewage settling tanks will continue to fill the ocean.

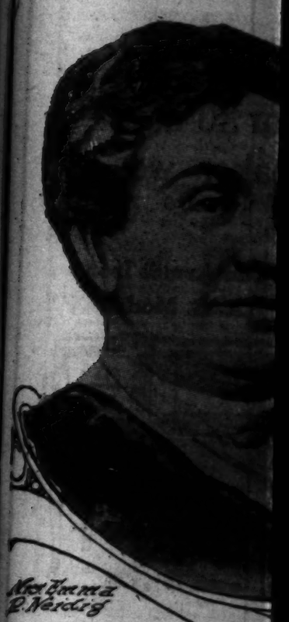
Leaders of Oppos



Supreme President of the Fraternal Brotherhood and admi

"THIRD PART OF FRATE

Supreme Council M Opposes Both Ca omy and En

WHAT is the matter with The Fraternal Brotherhood?
That is the question thousands of policy-holders and friends of the big Los Angeles fraternal insurance organization are asking each other.
The answer is paradoxical. In the words of an official, there is nothing the matter with The Fraternal Brotherhood and there is much the matter with it. In other words, while the organization is financially sound and ready to meet any and all obligations, the headquarters at Figueroa and Lincoln streets has become a veritable nest of politics and of interfactional strife, between well defined camps of supreme officers that bodes ill for the future development of the organization, unless the trouble is stamped out.
Trouble has been seething in the councils of the brotherhood hall ever since the death of James A. Foshay, former supreme president of the order, on January 15, 1914. Now and then the internal war has broken out openly for brief intervals, but it was not until the Executive Council of the Supreme Lodge met in special session last Wednesday that the two currents of the rival factions met, striking the spark that caused the differences to blaze into open warfare.
This important meeting is still in session, and will probably continue tomorrow and Tuesday, and even when it has adjourned the effects of the business consummated by the Supreme Council will probably be felt for months.

MAJORITY DEFIED.

Supreme Secretary Charles W. Dempster, angered by the action of the Council in curtailing his budget of expenditures by more than 20 per cent, and reducing his traveling expenses from $100 a month to $12 a month, hurled defiance at the ruling clique by declaring that he will collect all the debts he finds necessary, and further propheised that if his bills are not honored, legal action will be brought against the brotherhood.
Just when and where the difference existed is problematical. At first, however, the officers are divided into majority and minority camps, the former led by Supreme President Mrs. Emma R. Neidig, and the latter by Mr. Dempster.
But the peculiar angle to the present mix-up is that a third faction, separated from members of the two camps, is rapidly developing. This third party at present has no acknowledged leader, but the ideals of its personnel are unanimous. They say their platform on strong planks, their views are radically opposed to those of both Mrs. Neidig and Mr. Dempster, the party having for its aim the abolition of high salaries and the decrease of expenses.
Supreme President Neidig came into the Fraternal Brotherhood with Foshay. When the latter was superintendent of city schools, Mrs. Neidig was his assistant. When he became Supreme President of the order, Mrs. Neidig was elected Supreme Vice-president. This was in 1910. Until Mr. Foshay's death she managed the affairs of her office with optimism.
When Foshay died, Mrs. Neidig automatically became Supreme President for a short time. Then the late James A. Batchelor of San Diego was elected Supreme President by the Supreme Lodge. So much criticism was aroused by the election of the clergyman that after serving a few weeks he resigned. After the spirited special session of the Supreme Lodge, Mrs. Neidig was installed as Supreme President.

ONE-TIME ALLIES.

When W. Dempster became Supreme Secretary of The Fraternal Brotherhood the same year Mrs. Neidig entered the order. In fact, she was nominated for that position by E. O. O'Malley of the Supreme

Supreme Secretary Charles W. Dempster, angered by the action of the council in curtailing his budget expenses by more than 20 per cent and reducing his traveling expenses from $100 a month to $15 a month, defiance at the ruling of the majority by declaring he will pay all the debts he finds necessary and further prophesied that if his acts are not honored, legal action will be brought against the council.

Just when and where the difference among the supreme officers is problematical. At present, however, the officers are divided into majority and minority factions, the former led by Supreme President Emma R. Neidig, and the latter by Mr. Dempster.

The peculiar angle to the situation is that a third faction, composed from members of the council, is rapidly developing. This party at present has no recognized leader, but the ideals of which are unanimous. They have a platform on strong planks. They are radically opposed to the methods of both Mrs. Neidig and Mr. Dempster, the party having for its aim the abolition of high salaries and the decrease of expenses.

When President Neidig came to the Fraternal Brotherhood with the death of the latter was chief of city schools, Mrs. Neidig was his assistant. When he died President of the Supreme Lodge, Mrs. Neidig was elected Supreme Vice-President. This was in 1915. Mr. Foshay's death she took the affairs of her office over.

Mrs. Foshay died, Mrs. Neidig naturally became Supreme President for a short time. Then the late A. Batchelor of San Diego was elected Supreme President by the Supreme Lodge. Much criticism was aroused by the action of the clergyman that within a few weeks he resigned. After the spirited special session of the Supreme Lodge, Mrs. Neidig was installed as Supreme President.

ODD-TIME ALLIES.

Mr. Dempster became Supreme Secretary of The Fraternal Brotherhood the same year Mrs. Neidig assumed the office of Supreme President. In fact, Mr. Dempster was nominated for that position by P. O'Malley of the Supreme Council, at the instance of Mrs. Neidig.

Mr. Dempster came from Idaho, where he still owns a large farm. During the few years prior to his installation as one of the supreme officers of the great insurance union, he was their district and State organizer in Idaho. Incidentally, he was prominent in the politics of that State and served two terms in the Idaho Legislature. He is said to be the first man from an outside State to obtain a high office in the brotherhood.

Mrs. Neidig receives a salary of $4500 a year and traveling and office expenses, a sum equal to that received by the Mayor of Los Angeles. Supreme Secretary Dempster receives a salary of $3600 a year, and office and traveling expenses, or $600 more than the Chief of Police gets.

During the Foshay regime, the membership of The Fraternal Brotherhood almost reached the 40,000 mark. Today it is a little over 23,000, and yet, it is maintained by several of the supreme trustees, the overhead expenses of conducting the brotherhood's affairs are exactly the same as they were during the Foshay regime.

IN OPPOSING CAMPS.

A year after the death of Mr. Foshay the Supreme President and the Supreme Secretary found their respective plans conflicting. Charges of playing favorites, wire-pulling and petty politics were freely bandied at the headquarters of the order. And the Supreme Secretary was more than once openly accused of using his prerogative of traveling about the country as frequently as possible so that he might use his political knowledge in building the brotherhood into a huge machine for his own purposes.

But it was not until last week, just prior to the convening of the Supreme Council, that each side laid its cards face up on the table. And, so far, the third party, or the "unexpected" party, has won out all along the line.

Mr. Dempster before the meeting let it be known that he would insist on a merit system among district, State and general organizers. This was done, it was said, to eliminate at least two organizers appointed by Mrs. Neidig, who were said to be drawing large salaries and getting small results.

Mrs. Neidig before the meeting let it be known that her forces were prepared to put a stop to the so-called junketing trips of the Supreme Secretary, and were prepared to jam through a budget curtailing his $100-a-month traveling expenses to $15, thus tying him down to his offices in this city.

But it was the third party, composed of adherents of both factions, that really decided the matter. And it did this so that while both leaders were pleased in a measure, they both suffered. For the meeting had scarcely started when Mrs. Neidig's wishes concerning the curtailing of the Supreme Secretary's traveling expenses were granted. In addition, his budget expenditures were reduced 20 per cent.

But, Mrs. Neidig had to sit still and watch her own budget slashed in an amazing manner, and incidentally learned the two organizers at which Mr. Dempster aimed his darts were to be dropped.

The action of the third party brought defiance from the Supreme Secretary. He declared his efficiency was being impaired, and stated he would continue spending as much money as he found necessary to run his department. Any bills unpaid would be the basis of litigation against the brotherhood. As yet Mrs. Neidig has said nothing.

IMPERSONAL ATTITUDE.

The members of the third party in the Supreme Council have very little to say. They declare they are endeavoring to do their utmost to comply with the Mobile bill, regarding the conduct of insurance unions, and are shaving expenses as much as possible. No personal fight, they declare, is being waged against either Mr. Dempster or Mrs. Neidig. But, they state, both officers have too many assistants in their respective offices and the cutting of the budgets was done, it is said, to make the officers run their business with fewer stenographers and secretaries.

Just where it will all end no one cares to guess. Although the Supreme Secretary's faction is apparently in the minority, he is feared by the other officers for his undoubted power among the members. On the other hand, it is believed, by many that while Mrs. Neidig is the apparent head of the majority, her regime will end with the election of supreme officers in June of this year.

It is believed in some quarters that the Supreme Trustees that form the majority of the Supreme Council, have had enough of the spats and office politics in The Fraternal Brotherhood headquarters, and determined to cut expenses in all directions, have taken the matter into their own hands. As a result, the fight has broadened so that it has almost placed Mrs. Neidig and Mr. Dempster in alliance again, this time with the Supreme Council as their opponents.

The Supreme Council will continue in session tomorrow and possibly Tuesday. Their important work has been concluded, but there still remains the apportioning of districts from which representatives will be appointed to the Supreme Lodge meeting in June. And at this meeting will perhaps be decided once and for all the balance of control in The Fraternal Brotherhood.

BOPP IS GRANDSON OF FAMED SCHOLAR.

CONVICTED CONSUL HIMSELF A CLEVER LINGUIST.

Dr. Kuno Meyer, German Savant, Recalls that Teuton Diplomat, Recently Sentenced to Prison, is Descendant of Pioneer of Comparative Philology.

Franz Bopp, former German Consul-General at San Francisco, who was recently sentenced to Federal prison for implication in dynamite conspiracies, is the grandson of Franz Bopp, the founder of the modern science of comparative philology. The elder Bopp's great work, "Comparative Grammar of Aryan Languages," published in 1816, is the foundation stone on which research and subsequent similar work has been based, according to Dr. Kuno Meyer, the noted German savant, now a guest at the Alexandria.

"When the study of Sanscrit first came to the general attention of the world, it was largely through the efforts of Dr. Bopp, then and for years after a professor of the University of Berlin," said Dr. Meyer. "With Sanscrit as a basis for comparison, the eminent authority carefully and comprehensively developed the various theories of Aryan languages. Today the comparisons are still considered among the best obtainable."

The son of the scientist, father of the diplomat, did not follow in the footsteps of his illustrious sire, but chose a mercantile career. Franz Bopp III reverted in a measure to the tastes of his grandfather. He has achieved distinction as a linguist, and largely through this became attached to the diplomatic corps of Germany, coming finally to America.

Rather Unusual.

Yesterday was a legal holiday for the Councilmen, but Councilmen Topham and Wheeler attended at the City Hall to meet callers and attend to whatever business might arise.

A rather unusual condition was reported by Councilman Topham in connection with the Public Works Committee—it has cleared up every matter of business before it. Even Deputy City Clerk Carroll says that is out of the common.

STATE MEETING OF Y.M.C.A. WORKERS.

PROGRAMME COMPLETED FOR FEBRUARY EVENT.

Men Prominent in this Field of Christian Endeavor will Speak on Various Phases Vital to Advancement of Triangular Efforts for Uplift of Many Thousands.

The programme for the annual convention of Young Men's Christian associations of California, to be held February 23 to 25 at San Diego, was completed yesterday at a meeting of the committee in the local Y.M.C.A. Building. Special emphasis was placed on the fact that the convention this year will be of greater interest to the business man and the director or committeeman of the Y.M.C.A. than ever before.

One of the strong features of the list of speakers is the name of Raymond Robins, who will address the convention on several occasions during the three-day period. More than 150 delegates from all parts of the State are expected to attend.

Special attention is being given to arrangements for the sessions, in which directors will participate, according to Acting State Secretary Harry O. Hill. A series of topics vital to association life and practice has been prepared. The directors and committeemen also will discuss the various phases of the work—city, county, community and for boys. Theirs will be the first session, on Friday afternoon, February 23.

The annual banquet for business men from all over the State will take place at the U. S. Grant Hotel February 23 at 6:30 p.m. A number of well-known speakers are being secured for this event.

Saturday morning the business session and election of officers will take place. The afternoon will be devoted to sectional conferences on physical, boys' county and community Y.M.C.A. work. Delegates from the colleges of the State will have their dinner Saturday at 6:30 p.m. at the Y.M.C.A. In the evening Raymond Robins will deliver an address at the White Temple Baptist Church.

Y.M.C.A. speakers will fill many pulpits of the city on Sunday morning. A meeting for men only is scheduled for 3 p.m., at which Mr. Robins will make an evangelistic appeal. A boys' meeting will take place at the same hour at the Y. M.C.A.

The convention will close Sunday evening, following two union meetings in the First Methodist and First Presbyterian churches. The principal sessions will take place at the First Methodist Church. Many Los Angeles Y.M.C.A. secretaries and ministers will take a prominent part in the meetings.

Advice upon What to Eat How Much to Eat.

(By Dr. I. H. Watson.)

The poisons in man are taken care of, if man will do his part. The liver and kidneys act as the sewage disposal plants which separate and throw off the poisonous accumulations, if given half a chance. But many of us should not eat meat more than once a day. Eat vegetables, and what may be called "roughage" to stimulate bowel action, such as baked potato with the hard skin, Graham, rye or whole wheat bread, onions, turnips, carrots, even the much slandered cabbage, and sauerkraut. Stimulate the liver into a thorough housecleaning at least once a week, by taking a purely vegetable laxative made up and extracted from May-apple, leaves of aloe, root of jalap, into a Pleasant Pellet, first made by Dr. R. V. Pierce nearly fifty years ago, and sold by nearly every druggist in the country. To keep the kidneys clean drink plenty of water between meals; also, if you wish to "escape half the ills" which cause early deaths from kidney disease, affections of the heart, rheumatism and gout, drink a pint of hot water a half hour before meals. This with regular outdoor exercise, sensible food, and occasionally Anuric (double strength) before meals for a few weeks at a time, and there is no reason why a man or woman should not live to be a hundred. This Anuric stimulates the kidneys, causing them to throw out the poisonous uric acid which causes us to have pains in the back, lumbago, rheumatism or gout.

Anuric can be obtained at almost all good drug stores. It always benefits and often cures the cause of kidney disease, as well as rheumatism and gout.

CHURCH ADVERTISES.

Trinity's Brotherhood Booster Committee Sends Out Ten Thousand Invitations for Next Sunday's Services and Musical Events.

Recently Rev. Charles C. Selecman, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, Trinity Auditorium, preached a sermon in which he set forth the necessity of the modern church using modern advertising methods. Now this church is putting these suggestions into practice. Besides using newspaper space, this church this week has distributed 10,000 invitations to the people of Los Angeles, through its Brotherhood Booster Committee of Fifty, to attend the attractive services of next Sunday.

At 11 o'clock in the morning Dr. Selecman will preach on the subject of "The Open Palm," and in the evening he will give a special sermon to men on the subject, "Man Wanted." The women of the congregation have been invited to write to the pastor suggestions that they may have for this particular sermon.

Special musical features have been provided. In the morning the large choir will render the "Hallelujah Chorus," and Thomas C. Barr will sing, "How Lovely are Thy Dwellings." In the evening Mr. Barr and the choir will sing, "I Will Mention Thy Loving Kindness." The Schubert Club will give the concert at 3 o'clock in the auditorium, and Mae Shumway Enderly and other artists will present "The Peasant Brides of European Countries" and "The Emigrants."

Don't Wear A Truss!

Ten Reasons Why You Should Send for My Appliance.

I Send It On Trial

The above is C. E. Brooks, of Marshall, Mich., who has been curing Ruptures for over 30 years. If Ruptured write him today.

1 It is absolutely the only Appliance of the kind on the market today, and in it are embodied the principles that inventors have sought after for years.

2 The Appliance for retaining the rupture cannot be thrown out of position.

3 Being an air cushion of soft rubber it clings closely to the body, yet never blisters or causes irritation.

4 Unlike the ordinary so-called pads, used in other trusses, it is not cumbersome or ungainly.

5 It is small, soft and pliable; and positively cannot be detected through the clothing.

6 The soft, pliable bands holding the Appliance do not give one the unpleasant sensation of wearing a harness.

7 There is nothing about it to get foul, and when it becomes soiled it can be washed without injuring it in the least.

8 There are no metal springs in the Appliance to torture one by cutting and bruising the flesh.

9 All of the material of which the Appliances are made is of the very best that money can buy, making it a durable and safe Appliance to wear.

10 My reputation for honesty and fair dealing is so thoroughly established by an experience of over thirty years of dealing with the public, and my prices are so reasonable, my terms so fair, that there certainly should be no hesitancy in sending free coupon today.

Remember I send my Appliance on trial to prove what I say is true. You are to be the judge. Fill out free coupon below and mail today.

SCIENTIFIC DETECTIVE WORK IS EXEMPLIFIED EVERY DAY.

Recent Operations of Postal Inspectors Good Examples of Use of Real Brains and Patience—Caddagan's Case, However, Defies Analysis.

BY F. A. SCOTT.
Illustrations by Harry Barndollar.

THAT the scientific detective exists in reality, and not solely in the minds of writers, is demonstrated every day in the protection of the public from those who prey on it. Within the present month a number of instances that come under the head of scientific detective work have developed in one branch of the protective system of the nation, that of the postal inspectors. Inspectors Ranger, Cookson and Webster successfully brought these cases to a point where the Federal courts took charge of the men. The cases are not exceptional but are of recent date, hence they are cited. In no case have the facts been fully told till now.

Last week Emil Iverson, a letter carrier more than 50 years of age, the father of four children and holder of a record of twenty-two years continuous service in postoffice work, was convicted of tampering with letters intrusted to his care. He was watched for weeks by the inspectors, but his long service had taught him many tricks and he was wary. In addition, he was not rifling the mails for loot but in an effort to trace a young woman with whom he later declared he was in love.

This girl, Miss Oma Daffron, had resided at No. 501 Temple street. Another admirer lived in the same block. Iverson was compelled by his calling to deliver letters from the girl to his rival. Jealousy and a desire to plead his case with the girl, who had moved, eventually led him to skillfully open the letters addressed to her before sending them to a forwarding address. But none of the letters contained her address. She complained of the tampering and declared she suspected the carrier. Then a watch was placed over Iverson. Weeks passed and he was never found doing anything that looked crooked.

TRAP IS LAID.

Science was called into the case. One of the inspectors, who is quite skilful with the pen, forged the rival's address to a letter. He also made an appointment, fictitious of course, for the girl to meet the rival at a railway station on a certain evening. Then a single hair was placed in the letter, in such a position that it would be lost the moment the letter was opened.

When the letter was delivered, hours late, the fatal hair was missing. In addition, Iverson kept the appointment at the depot, hoping to meet the young lady. Instead he was arrested. He refused to confess, pointed to his long service that stood without a blemish and said:

"I read the letters, I admit. But I held them up between my eyes and the sun. That is how I knew the meeting was arranged."

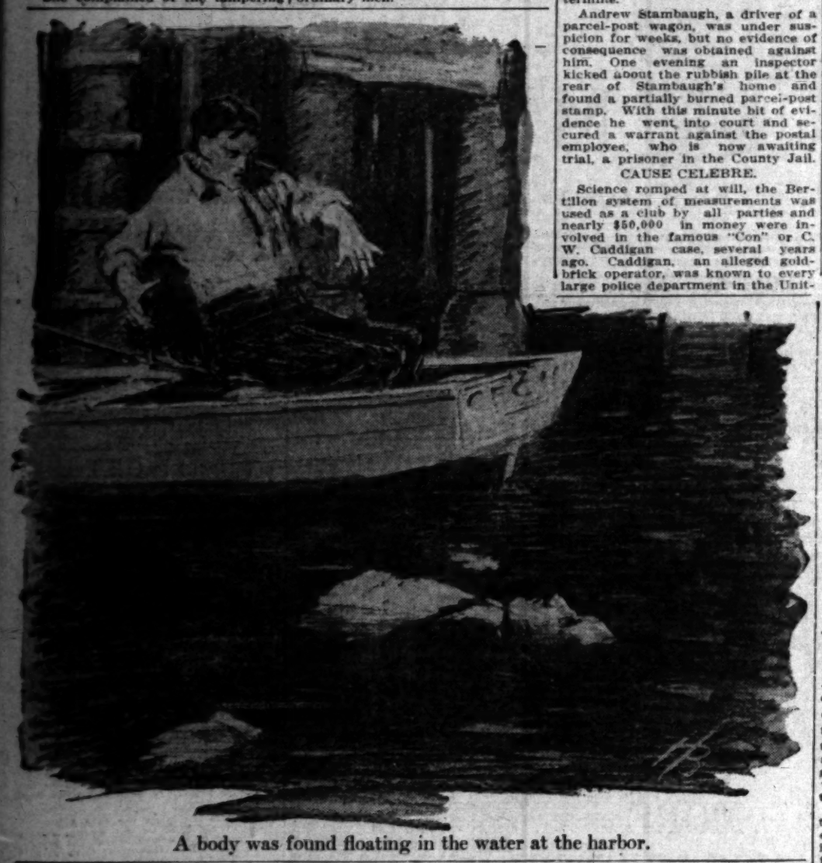
Inspector Ranger placed a letter in the same envelope, sealed it and told the prisoner to read it. He was given a 100 candle-power electric light bulb, permitted to go into the open air and make every possible effort to read even one word of the contents of the letter—and failed. Then he was told of the hair. With a wan smile he sat down, again referring to his long record of probity. He was heavily fined.

ELECTRICITY USED.

During the holidays parcel post packages were systematically stolen from the Los Angeles postoffice. The articles taken were from a basket in which improperly or poorly addressed packages were placed, awaiting expert handling. These parcels were checked up day by day and losses noted. A watch was placed on the basket, but without success.

It was finally decided the thefts were made after midnight—after the lights were put out. The inspectors rigged up many minute wires that would turn on the lights when anyone opened any of the parcels in the basket or even broke a cord.

Eventually suspicion settled on George Detert, a Y.M.C.A. boy who was night watchman. Twice the lights flared after he had gone on duty and once he was found smoking cigars of a brand stolen from the basket. Still, no convincing proof was obtained—proof that would stand the acid test of a jury of ordinary men.



A body was found floating in the water at the harbor.

The inspectors watched his rooms, but without success. Finally, one night Inspectors Ranger and Webster searched the backyard of his rooming place and in an old pile of ashes found several partially burned parcel post stamps. Taking these and some cigar bands found in his room, the inspectors arrested the youth, laid the incriminating evidence on a table in front of the prisoner and left the room. When they returned Detert insisted on making a confession. He was sentenced to three months in prison and a stiff fine, and is now in the County Jail.

PAINSTAKING HUNT.

The capture of A. C. Fitzgerald, wanted in Atlanta, Ga., on a charge of having embezzled $12,000 from a lumber company and cashed several money orders, may readily come under the head of a scientific feat. The three postal inspectors, Ranger, Webster and Cookson, were ordered to get Fitzgerald. He was known to be here. That was all the knowledge they had. Weeks were spent in eliminating all the real Fitzgeralds and their friends.

Then an inspector obtained the meager knowledge that Fitzgerald was ambitious. He wanted above all things to become an expert accountant. Then began the real work of the inspectors. They figured that the fugitive, who lost his money before he fled, might work during the day and attend a business school at night. They haunted the night schools, but without success.

Finally they learned the additional fact that Fitzgerald was known to his intimates as "Jimmy." Then they did their work all over. One night one of the trio found that a man attending night school was known as Jimmy Jones; and worked for a man named Montgomery.

The remainder of the story can be told in a word. The school was located, the Mr. Montgomery discovered and Jimmy's boarding-house located. As Jimmy sat at lunch a week ago he was suddenly confronted by the inspectors, was arrested, admitted his identity and returned to Atlanta. Whether or not he is guilty remains for a jury to determine.

Andrew Stambaugh, a driver of a parcel-post wagon, was under suspicion for weeks, but no evidence of consequence was obtained against him. One evening an inspector kicked about the rubbish pile at the rear of Stambaugh's home and found a partially burned parcel-post stamp. With this minute bit of evidence he went into court and secured a warrant against the postal employee, who is now awaiting trial, a prisoner in the County Jail.

CAUSE CELEBRE.

Science romped at will, the Bertillon system of measurements was used as a club by all parties and nearly $50,000 in money were involved in the famous "Con" or C. W. Caddigan case, several years ago. Caddigan, an alleged gold-brick operator, was known to every large police department in the United States and Canada. He was "wanted" in several cities for passing fictitious checks and was at liberty here on $5000 bond, following an alleged gold-brick transaction, in which E. W. Chaffee of Minnesota declared he lost $25,000. The police of several cities had forwarded warrants here, awaiting the disposition of the case. Mr. Chaffee, through his attorneys, brought suit against the Bonanza King Mining Company, in San Bernardino county, to recover the amount and named Caddigan's wife as defendant with her husband. A son claimed the mine.

Complications were piling up that threatened to tie up the property in long litigation. Then, one morning, the body of a man was found floating in the surf at the harbor. Mrs. Caddigan identified the remains as those of her husband. The descriptions of Caddigan and the dead man tallied. The Bertillon measurements were practically useless, as the flesh of the dead man was partially decomposed and swollen.

A. E. Adams of the police department then in charge of the identification bureau, and Detectives C. S. Jones and Bruce Boyd were not satisfied the dead man was Caddigan and submitted the measurements of Caddigan's skull and that of the dead man, showing a marked difference. Nevertheless, the dead man was buried as Caddigan, by the "widow."

Later the body was exhumed and new measurements taken. Caddigan's bondsmen were not held for the $5000 and the people who had brought litigation against his estate eventually compromised with the Caddigan heirs.

Charles E. Usher later filed an affidavit declaring he had seen the gold-brick man after his alleged death. Washington authorities declared Caddigan had operated in that city and had escaped, after his reported death. A man arrested in the East on a check charge and identified as Caddigan, after his reported death, jumped his bond.

Mrs. Caddigan went to Kansas City and was lost sight of. The legal complications have been settled, but the old-time police officers are continually on the watch for a man who will prove to be the real Caddigan. Detectives Jones and Boyd say that they believe that Caddigan is living and he has retired from a criminal life or at least is operating only as a "sure thing" confidence man, a pay off guy or a bondsman. It would be hard to convince any of the old-time detectives that the cadaver buried here as Caddigan is the man who they say separated "suckers" from nearly a million and jumped bail by the tens of thousands of dollars.

He could not read it.

BACK TO THE FRONT.

On Leave of Absence Gordon C. Hunt Prepares to Return.

Back to the front is what Gordon C. Hunt expects to be his order when he arrives in London, Can., with his mother, Mrs. C. B. Hunt. He is registered at the Lankershim on an extended leave of absence after eighteen months in the trenches.

Most of his campaigning was with the first Canadian troops sent over. In one of the battles, he was blown out of a trench, seriously injured internally and invalided.

"Talking with us may mean much trouble and so until after the war is over, I'm not telling tales or discussing anything that might have to do with the battlefields or government affairs of any country," said Mr. Hunt.

Lawyers Under Fire.

"CAPPING" INQUIRY IS STARTED AT THE JAILS.

WHETHTR several well-known lawyers and a number of attaches of the city and county jails have been splitting fees received from prisoners, is the subject of a sweeping investigation instituted by the District Attorney. Yesterday more than fifty men were subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury tomorrow morning to tell what they know of the alleged practice.

The matter was called to the attention of the District Attorney several days ago and a secret probe, it is understood, developed the fact that there are grounds for the many rumors implicating officers at the jails and a few attorneys. It is said information has been received of several specific instances in which officers employed drastic measures to compel prisoners to engage certain attorneys, the latter dividing the fees with the officers.

Among those for whom subpoenas were issued are Jailer Gallagher and the turnkeys at the County Jail; Chief Butler and the city jailers; several deputy sheriffs and city detectives; Public Defenders Wood and Pope, Attorneys A. E. T. Chapman, S. S. Hahn, Guy Eddie, Fred Morrison, D. C. Hiay, William Durham, Cleveland Schultz, J. E. Brown, Hathaway, Gottsdanker and Conlan. The calling of these lawyers does not necessarily mean that they are under suspicion.

Newspaper reporters working at the city and county jails also were subpoenaed.

Should the reported charges be established, it is said implicated jail attaches will be discharged and the information concerning attorneys will be given to the Bar Association.

Twice the lights flared up.

FROM OIL STATE.

Pennsylvania Financier Predicts Big Future for California.

Coming from the cradle of the oil and gas industry of the United States, J. B. Crawford of Oil City, Pa., with his family, is a guest at the Alexandria. While here, he is planning to visit some of the more famous California fields and will note developments.

Mr. Crawford is president of the United States National Gas Company of Oil City, which supplies numerous surrounding communities and is one of the oldest corporations of its kind in America.

"With all the mineral wealth in California, added to the cheap oil and gas fuel, there is no reason why this should not become a very great manufacturing State, rivalling Pennsylvania possibly in this direction," said Mr. Crawford.

FOR JUSTICE'S SAKE.

Charitable Women Interested in Girl Poison-sender's Case.

A number of charitably-inclined ladies of this city have interested themselves in the fate of Miss Gertrude Cox, who has pleaded guilty to sending bichloride of mercury through the mails and will appear for sentence Tuesday afternoon.

The nonchalance with which the girl pleaded guilty was taken to indicate she is either thoroughly careless of what happens to her or that she did not understand the gravity of the offense. Under the law she may be sent to prison for ten years and fined $5000.

It is possible she will be sent to some institution for further treatment and the outcome of that programme awaited.

Mexican Complication.

FISHERIES FEUD STARTS GUN-RUNNING WAR HER

THE friction arising from contested fishing privileges in Mexican waters, as between the adherents of First Chief Carranza and Gov. Estaban Cantu of Baja California, has reached the point where frequent violations of the laws of neutrality are alleged, involving sailing from American waters.

The concessions were cancelled by Gen. Carranza some time ago, and have since been renewed by Gov. Cantu, whose headquarters are at Mexicali. The situation has become such that it is considered necessary for Federal officials to take a hand. It is alleged vessels sent by Gov. Cantu to safeguard the interests of the concessionaires, have been fired upon, and the charge is made that vessels are being outfitted at various ports within the local customs collection district, and have been loaded with arms and ammunition to be used in possible battle between the forces representing the different commanders.

The fishing concessions in the Gulf of California are very valuable, especially those relating to the pearl fisheries, and the annual income for the right amounts to thousands of dollars, a source of financial strength much desired by both Carranza and Cantu.

The United States government [illegible] not interested, says the Gen. [illegible] in the merits of the [illegible] over fishing concessions, but [illegible] lation of the neutrality [illegible] quite another matter.

Mrs. A. J. Lawton of the southern district made a capital talk on club-work as a profession, and urged that each club woman should strive to perfect herself in this vocation. Mrs. Lawton, by the way, will undoubtedly be chosen as vice-president at the coming State election, and is in close harmony with Mrs. Mushet, who is scheduled for the presidency by her legions of influential club friends. (A protest to the north, notwithstanding.)

Mrs. S. L. Wiley was a visitor who gave a felicitous talk on "Happiness Born a Twin"—an impromptu and witty speech.

Mrs. J. E. Natress read a birthday poem, and Mrs. J. P. McGee gathered in the gifts—nearly $200 on the last lap of the $1000 debt—from a golden basket.

Music Federation.

The music department of the Federation of Women's Clubs has called a music meeting for Thursday next at Hamburger's Theater, when all music clubs and music sections of clubs are invited to attend. It will convene at 10:30 a.m. for a discussion of musical topics appertaining to civics. Luncheon will be served at noon and the afternoon will be devoted to an elaborate musical programme, a grand concert which promises to be a musical event in the city. Mrs. J. T. Anderson is the ingenious creator of the event.

Los Angeles Principals' Club.

That the present tenure of office law be not changed was one of the recommendations to the State Legislature made by the Principals' Club at the regular meeting last Monday.

The introduction of a bill providing for an elementary principals' convention was discussed, and the fact brought out that while 75 per cent. of the principals of the State are elementary, the school laws governing the elementary schools are controlled by the high school principals' convention, which is provided for by the State.

Unusual interest was manifested in the president's account of the work done by the Teachers' Retirement Salary Law Committee, which is composed of the presidents of the Los Angeles Teachers' Club, High School Association and Principals' Club.

The report convinced the members of the importance of a complete investigation to put the teachers' retirement salary law on a firm basis.

Eighty-five principals were present. M. W. Chandler presided.

South Pasadena W. I. A.

Varied entertainment was provided in the programme of the Woman's Improvement Association of South Pasadena last Wednesday. The largest number of the season attended the luncheon. The speaker was J. J. Hamilton, chairman of the Board of Supervisors, who gave a talk upon "The Flood Control Bond Issue."

The programme of the afternoon was given over to the drama in the hands of Mrs. Otis Byers Manchester, who delighted with her reading of "The Hour Glass," from the pen of the Irish dramatist, Yeats. A musical interlude was given by Mrs. J. V. Sweetser, who sang the "Persian Serenade," with Mrs. Stafford at the piano. The programme concluded with another contribution from Mrs. Manchester in her reading of "A Minuet," by Louis N. Parker.

The next regular programme of the club will be February 7, when Mrs. Herbert A. Cable, president of the Woman's Legislative Council of California, will give an address entitled "The Business of Being a Club Woman." In lighter vein are the two pre-Lenten social events, the concert to be given by the Caldron Club of Pasadena the evening of February 6, under the auspices of the Social Service Committee, and the Valentine tea, Thursday afternoon, February 15, sponsored by the Furnishing Committee of the club.

Woman's City Club.

A national authority on conservation,' George H. Maxwell, will speak on that subject at the Woman's City Club tomorrow, prior to the scheduled programme in which Carl McStay, representative of the Automobile Club of Southern California, will speak on organization and its relation to good roads. Luncheon begins at noon and the programme at 1 o'clock.

Hollywood Club.

The announcement that the Hollywood Woman's Club will present the eminent English actress, Miss Constance Crawley, and her company of players in "Morag of the Glen," by Fiona McLeod, at the clubhouse, Monday evening, February 12, holds much of interest. It is the first time that this masterpiece by one of England's most distinguished and brilliant writers has been staged in this country, and it is filled with weird beauty, atmosphere and dramatic intensity. The performance is under the direction of Clarence B. McGehee. It marks Miss Crawley's return to the speaking stage after three seasons of retirement. Arthur Maude will appear as Miss Crawley's leading man in conjunction with a specially selected cast of players.

Numerous smart dinner parties by members of the club will precede the performance.

The Art Committee was responsible for the last regular programme of the club, on Wednesday, when May Gearhart, supervisor of drawing in the Los Angeles schools, gave an illustrated discourse on her work.

Fred C. Nelles is to be the speaker next Wednesday, when his subject will be "Our Boys." Mr. Nelles is the superintendent of the Whittier State School.

Eduoard Vyscekal gave an interesting talk before the art section of the club on Wednesday last, endeavoring to convey the artists' personal expression in their paintings. An exhibition of the portraits painted by Max Weiczorek, will be on view at the club during February.

Celebrating the tenth anniversary of the Hollywood Library, the city librarians will be the guests of the Hollywood Club this afternoon.

Congress of Mothers.

Presidents, chairmen and representatives of the Parent-Teacher Association assembled in enthusiastic conference at The Times Assembly Rooms on Tuesday last, under the auspices of the California Congress of Mothers.

Mrs. Willoughby Redman, a recreation commissioner of the city, spoke interestingly on the playground movement, a subject which she has studied in various parts of the world. Our nine Los Angeles playgrounds and the two now constructing, are a subject of keen interest to the Congress of Mothers, who enjoyed Mrs. Rodman's talk.

Mrs. E. R. Volk spoke briefly on child hygiene, particularly as regards the care of children's teeth, declaring that 93 per cent. of them needing dental attention.

Dr. Lulu Petters spoke in reference to the desirability of giving children essential sex information in the right reverent manner, as a means of combating the present highly regrettable state of affairs.

After various other contributions to a notable meeting, a resolution was passed advocating a measure preventing anyone under the age of 14 from obtaining a hunting license, there being no age limit on the question at present.

At Ebell.

The Ebell Club will hear Miss Beulah Wright, dean of the college of oratory, in an interpretive recital "Short Stories with an Ethical Import," tomorrow afternoon.

Last Monday Kate Foley, instructor of the blind, gave a most interesting discourse on her work, and the fact that she has herself been blind from infancy, lent an added sympathy to her hearers. Ebell is a generous contributor on behalf of this work, providing free transportation for blind pupils to the classes. Brooks Fletcher, also gave a discourse on many serious subjects, treated in lighter vein.

The art section heard Mrs. James Sears Montague on "The French Drama" on Wednesday, speaking of Brieux as the vivsectionist of morals.

Students of the Polytechnic High School presented the third act of "The Melting Pot," under the direction of Miss Alice Craig, with marked success.

Cosmos Club.

Dr. A. W. Rider, who made especially emphatic the need for a better understanding of the Japanese socially and industrially in order to prevent a misunderstanding of them politically, presented his valuable lecture on "The Beauties of Japan" before the Cosmos Club Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Ydo Brownly preceded the lecture with a group of brilliant little songs, including the popular "Japanese Love Song." Both sides of the bond question were briefly presented by Griffen Jones and Dr. John R. Haynes.

The parliamentary law department has changed its time of meeting to the second and fourth Wednesdays, from 11 to 12, in the directors' room of the Ebell clubhouse.

The Ramblers' section will have their monthly outing Monday, February 5, to visit the Los Angeles soap factory. The party will meet at the factory, No. 632 East First street, at 2 o'clock. Next Wednesday there will be special department meetings. The Shakespeare class will meet at the home of the curator, Mrs. R. C. P. Smith, No. 1044 Grattan street, for an open meeting on "Antony and Cleopatra." The director of the music section, Mrs. Myrtle Decker Abbott, has called an extra rehearsal of the Cosmos Club chorus at her studio in the Mozart Theater Building, at 2 o'clock. The Spanish class will meet with its instructor, Senora de Whenthoff, in her studio, No. 522 Auditorium Building, at 1 o'clock.

The Landmarks Committee is giving a card party for the benefit of the Cosmos Club Building Association at the home of Mrs. W. I. Clendennon, No. 3202 West Eighteenth street, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The presidents of local associations will give reports, and a parliamentary drill will be conducted by Mrs. C. B. Emmons. "The History and Landmarks of California" will be taken up by the president at 1:30 o'clock.

Forbes, author of "History and Landmarks of California," and chairman of the History and Landmarks Committee of the federated clubs, will give a talk on "The Fremont-Pico Memorial Park." Verse Writers.

The Verse Writers' Club, Miss Grace Denen, president, held its weekly meeting Thursday evening. The three poems chosen by secret ballot from those submitted for the week were "Mocking Birds are Coming Back," "The Air Man" and "The Rich Man," the latter by Ben Field, the authors of the others to be announced later.

Miss Katherine Wimp gave two piano selections. Main Dixon addressed the club, his subject being the marketing and publishing of poetry, giving in detail lists of magazines and newspapers dealing in current poetry. Mr. Dixon also favored the club with some reading from a well-known "light" in the modern poetry firmament.

The next meeting will be held at 7:45 p.m. on Thursday, at No. 202 Trinity Auditorium.

Highland Park Ebell.

Dr. Hubert G. Shearin of Occidental College spoke before the Highland Park Ebell on Tuesday morning, taking "The Priest, the Peasant and the Play" for his subject. Drama he traced from the sacred drama of the church through its logical extension to folk plays, finally reaching a grand climax in the genius of Shakespeare.

A dance is to be given at the clubhouse on Friday evening.

Immigration Question.

"Illiteracy" and "Immigration" were the subjects of the programmes at the last meeting of the Tierra Alta chapter of the Daughters of the Revolution. Mrs. Maynard Thorpe Thayer spoke on the urgent need of Americanizing aliens, and advocated a great augmentation of educational effort. The Federation.

Friday Club.

Dr. Albert Shiels will speak on art in relation to education at next Friday's session of the Friday Morning Club. Mrs. R. J. Waters will also contribute a talk on "Industrial Art in the Schools."

South Side Ebell.

Mrs. Elizabeth Dixon entertained the art section of the South Side Ebell at her home for the last meeting, when the curator of the art museum at Exposition Park read a paper on "Art." She laid much stress on color. Mrs. Pulling also spoke on the same subject as relating to daily life, and both speakers deprecated modern taste in fashions and ostentation.

Mrs. Lloyd Harmon and Mrs. W. A. Galentine were both present and contributed talks, and Mrs. M. E. Johnson played on the emotion of her audience, first in pathetic, then in humorous vein, with some bright and homely remarks on the sort of thing everyone experiences, with a keen understanding of the genus feminine.

Jewish Council of Women.

The next meeting of the Jewish Council of Women at B'nai B'rith Temple will take place on Thursday, when Mrs. W. A. Galentine will speak on "The Twentieth Century Utopia." Julis Krans and Mrs. Anna Schulmann will furnish a violin solo with pianoforte accompaniment.

lessness, and as the facts become known, will undoubtedly receive well-deserved and universal public condemnation.

While the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce has never yet opposed and will not attempt to oppose organized labor as such, it cannot without making a vigorous protest against the practices, allow the present attacks upon the commerce of the Coast to go unchallenged.

This chamber demands that the integrity of all contractual relations between employers and employees must be scrupulously observed. This chamber must protest against the violation of agreements or the arbitrary attempt to cancel same.

The Chamber of Commerce stands at all times for the maintenance of law and order in labor disputes on the part of both parties to the controversy.

The Chamber of Commerce favors the open shop and insists upon the right to employ union or nonunion workers, in whole or in part, as the parties involved may elect. Under no circumstances should the employment of union men exclusively be enforced by duress or coercion, but should be wholly the result of free agreement. The Chamber of Commerce maintains the principle that no body of men has the right to deprive other men of the opportunity to labor.

Therefore, the Chamber of Commerce pledges its entire organization and the resources it represents to the maintenance of these principles, and will oppose any attempt on the part of any interest, business or organization which tries to throttle the commercial freedom of San Francisco.

PICKETING ENDED BY VOTERS' ACT.

NORTHERN CITY COPIES LOS ANGELES ORDINANCE.

Its Adoption at the Polls Secured Through Remarkable Campaign of Publicity by Letter, Handbills, Newspaper Advertising and Use of Hundreds of Telephones.

In San Francisco's determination to uphold the open-shop principle and eliminate violations of law that have been constantly attendant upon strikes and picketing, it took advantage of the experience of Los Angeles, with its anti-picketing ordinance.

Shortly after the formation of the Law and Order Committee of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce it determined that picketing and its attendant acts of violence must be done away with.

An initiative petition was formed, the proposed ordinance being similar in wording to the anti-picketing ordinance of Los Angeles—which has been upheld by the Supreme Court of California—and signatures were obtained sufficient to place the question on the ballot at the election of last November 7.

Then began a notable campaign of publicity. An appeal was made to every registered voter in San Francisco to give his aid toward elimination of picketing. The record of what was a direct outgrowth of picketing was published in every newspaper in San Francisco. It presented an unanswerable argument. The claim of "peaceful picketing" in the face of this showing was simply absurd.

The voters were appealed to by letter, handbills and advertisements, and on the days just preceding the election 400 telephone girls were employed, working two shifts at 175 telephones, to call up every voter who could be reached and urge him to vote for the ordinance prohibiting picketing. The day before the election an advertisement under the headline, "An Indictment of Picketing," appeared in every daily paper in San Francisco, including those in foreign languages.

The result was an indorsement of the anti-picketing law, and thus, if it is properly enforced, the wiping out of vicious and un-American practices that have long prevailed in the northern city.

Brow-beating.

UNIONS THREATEN WAR IF SALOONISTS DISOBEY.

EMPLOYING tactics characteristic of their thoroughly-discredited organization, labor-union officials have threatened to oppose the saloonists in their fight against the proposed 21 per cent. alcohol ordinance unless they immediately discharge all employees, including "swampers" and window washers, who do not now belong to unions. The ultimatum was given the saloonists at their largely-attended meeting at the Turner Hall, Friday.

The threatening, brow-beating unionites further declared that the proprietors of all wholesale liquor houses, hotels and cafes in which liquor is dispensed must thoroughly unionize their employees or expect the Bartenders' Union and the Trades Union Liberty League to fight for the ordinance.

The matter was presented to the saloonists by Secretary Muri of the Trades Union Liberty League of San Francisco. He is reported to have declared, "We will now organize every angle of the liquor traffic in Los Angeles or die in the attempt."

Meeting with the saloonists were several representatives of local breweries and wholesale houses. The gathering was intended to be secret, but some of the saloonists were so maddened by the threat from the unionites that they openly rebelled and yesterday made statements to the effect that while they are opposed to the proposed ordinance they would rather accept it than to become slaves of the labor-union bosses.

Thomas Roulo, formerly connected with the saloon business, was chairman of the meeting, but after announcing several speakers resigned the position and made the announcement that he is to be a candidate for the council. C. F. A. Last of the Royal Arch was then elected chairman.

Grand Organiser Blumberger of the Royal Arch of San Francisco, was present and he advised the saloonists to fight the ordinance to the last ditch.

The following committee was appointed to take up the unionite proposition:

Joe Fitzpatrick, Harry Fryman, Joe Gloia, Gus Lang, William Rudolph, Secundi Guasti and E. H. McCulloch. It is said at least two of these were not consulted and will not serve on the committee. The committee will meet tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

To finance their campaign against the Goodwin ordinance the Retail Liquor Dealers' Association has decided to assess each saloonist 25 cents per barrel for all the beer purchased up to the date of the election.

INDEPENDENCE DECLARATION OF BOND-BROKEN BAY CITY.

AMONG many striking statements made by Frederick J. Koster, president of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, in his address before 2000 merchants of that city, when the open-shop policy was adopted, are the following:

"This meeting is of the members of the Chamber of Commerce, of the merchants, manufacturers and business men of San Francisco and their associates, called for the purpose of considering the intolerable conditions prevailing upon the water front, and that disease permeating this community, of which the water-front situation is at present the most outstanding manifestation, to the end that positive and determined action may be undertaken toward the permanent eradication of that disease and of giving every element of the community full notice of that determination.

"We don't intend leaning upon anyone on the outside in this matter—we are going to do the job ourselves, and do it thoroughly. . . . We are here in the interest of San Francisco, to see that law and order shall be maintained to the end that there may be guaranteed to every law-abiding individual the God-given right to work and to live in peace and safety.

"There need be no mistake about our programme unless deliberately misinterpreted, deliberately misstated. . . . We demand the maintenance of law and order. We insist upon the scrupulous maintenance of contracts. We insist upon the right to employ union labor or nonunion labor, in whole or in part.

"We will, under no circumstances, tolerate a condition where, as has been the case in the present water-front situation, goods or products are refused handling because of some taint of unfairness arbitrarily applied.

"It is time that San Francisco free its reputation, at home and abroad, of being a class-ruled city, and anything within it that depends upon lawlessness and violence for its success must be stamped out. . . . This is no time for shallow, momentary enthusiasm. It is grim determination to tackle the biggest job we've ever undertaken—the job of every one of us—and it is bigger than our individual business."

Beside Golden Gate.

DEFINITE GAINS WON IN FIGHT FOR OPEN SHOP.

REAL and tangible results have already been obtained by the business men of San Francisco since they decided to sustain the open-shop principle. First came the settlement of the troubles along the water front. In this the Water Front Employers' Union, employing about 50 per cent. of the longshoremen of San Francisco, entered into an agreement with the San Francisco Riggers' and Stevedores' Union of the International Longshoremen's Association, agreeing to employ members of that union when available, and the union agreeing to do all work and to handle all freight, regardless of how or where it originates, and without any question as to whether the freight is what the unions designate as "fair" or "unfair."

Three unions in the culinary crafts, the cooks, the cooks' helpers and the waiters, went out on strike to try to compel an eight-hour day at the prevailing wages. A compromise was offered and was rejected. An offer to arbitrate on a basis of wages and hours obtained elsewhere was rejected. The strike was marked by a series of annoying acts and outrages and insults by pickets of the culinary crafts. The strike continued, with its attendant troubles and disregard for law on the part of the unionists, from the latter part of July until the early part of November.

Then the antipicketing ordinance was passed, and December 16 the unions called off the strike, convinced of the hopelessness of their situation.

The longshoremen's strike, as affecting lumber dealers and steam schooner owners, was finally settled under open-shop conditions. Thirty lumber dealers signed an agreement to act as a unit; they organized the American Stevedore Company on an open-shop basis, to supply stevedores, union or nonunion, to all firms desiring stevedore service. The lumbermen, who had closed their plants June 1, reopened them July 28, with a public declaration of open-shop conditions, employing without discrimination union or nonunion stevedores. November 22 the Lumber Handlers' Union voted to return to work under the former schedule of hours and wages, but under open-shop conditions.

When the structural steel workers went out on strike, six of the largest structural steel firms in San Francisco banded themselves to remain as a unit in maintaining open-shop conditions, and they continue to maintain such conditions in the steel industry.

The Bay and River Steamboatmen's Union went on strike, because a demand for a wage increase of 10 per cent. for deckhands was not granted. The Steamboat Owners' Association offered to prove by their books that the business would not justify this increase. After the strike, the association began to operate its boats under open-shop conditions. The strike collapsed, many of the strikers returning to work, and wherever vacancies arose the former employees were taken back without prejudice.

These are but incidents in the campaign being waged for the establishment of the open-shop policy in individual concerns. They show the trend of the times in San Francisco, and that a good beginning has been made, backed by the Law and Order Committee of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

TRAIN YOUR HAIR AS AN ACTRESS DOES.

No class of people devotes as much time to beauty as do actresses, and no class must be more careful to retain and develop their charms. Inquiry develops the information that in hair care they find it dangerous to shampoo with any makeshift hair cleanser. The majority say that to have the best hair wash and scalp stimulator at a cost of about three cents, one need only get a package of canthrox from your druggist; dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water and your shampoo is ready. This makes enough shampoo liquid to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head. After its use the hair dries rapidly, with uniform color. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are quickly dissolved and entirely disappear when you rinse the hair. After this your hair will be so fluffy that it will look much heavier than it is. Its lustre and softness will also delight you, while the stimulated scalp gains the health which insures hair growth.

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind, could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eye two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent. in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family."

"Experience."

PORTRAYS YOUTH'S WAY

BIG MODERN MORALITY PLAY IS SHOWLAND HEADLINER.

Instead of "Have you had experience?" the question this week will be "Have you seen 'Experience'?" The big modern morality drama will open an engagement of a week at the Mason tomorrow night. This remarkable play is said to portray a touch of every thought and emotion with which ambitious youth is blessed and afflicted. The success of this attraction in the East has been remarkable, in view of the purpose that is given voice in its action.

At the Morosco "A Woman's Way" is to be discovered. The ways of women may sometimes be smiled at, at other times they may challenge our tears and still again they may mean tragedy, but the play at the local stock theater is meant to be laughed at, and the actors who are to present the charming comedy will probably feel blue if the audience doesn't express merriment.

At the vaudeville houses there is to be a medley of mirth and music, contorted physical culture and problem playlets.

Mason.

With a cast of eighty-two players, including a bevy of beautiful girls, George V. Hobart's noted play, "Experience" comes to the Mason tomorrow night. The big production comes to Los Angeles after a successful run of more than two years in New York, Boston, Chicago and Philadelphia. "Experience" is a modern morality play and comes to this city stamped by the approval of the Catholic Theater Movement, Protestant ministers and Rabbis of the Hebrew faith. It is a play which thousands of people in Los Angeles have read but probably few have had the opportunity to see. The story is that of a youth who leaves his home to win name and fortune and who becomes so dazzled by the splendors of the primrose path that he refuses to heed the voice of opportunity. After having run the gamut of life's empty joys he is saved to himself at last by the memory of a mother's love which comes to bless him as he walks the street of forgotten days. It is an entertainment with a big lesson, a living sermon that entertains. In the cast are Conrad Nagel, Edmund Elton, Duncan Penwarden, George Berry, Louise Gerard, Florence Flinn, Lillie Leslie, Edna Fenton, Alice Palmer, Maude Furniss and Betty Blythe, the latter a well-known Los Angeles actress.

Morosco.

A new leading woman and a brand new play are the dual features of the new bill at the Morosco starting with today's matinee. The new "lead" is Bertha Mann, who comes to Los Angeles from tremendous success in New York, and who is said to be as beautiful as she is talented. The new play is Grace George's famous comedy, "A Woman's Way," produced under the personal direction of Fred J. Butler. The comedy is founded upon the cleverness of a young wife, who, upon learning that her husband has overstepped the border that makes the home a completely happy institution, starts out in a systematic way to win him back. She does this first by inviting "the other woman" to her home and the lively comedy of the play begins when the husband finds them both at the one fireside. The cast surrounding Miss Mann will include all of the Morosco favorites with Richard Dix, Joseph Eggenton, Warner Baxter, Mary Baker, Douglas MacLean, Lola May, Lillian Elliott,

BY JEANNE REDMAN.

AFTER all my preachments about the new music, we are going back to Italy—or rather, Italy is coming back to us.

The Boston National Grand Opera Company will come to Los Angeles for one week, beginning the 19th of February, and will give the following: "Aida," "Madame Butterfly," "Iris," "La Tosca," "Faust" and "La Boheme." The only work having any pretense of newness is "Iris," Mascagni's Japanese opera, with scenery produced by Arishima of Tokio, a famous Japanese artist. The little Japanese soprano, Tamaki Miura, who sang with this organization when it was here last year, is with them again, and will sing "Madame Butterfly" as well as "Iris." She will prove a drawing card, for she is an artist of high accomplishment.

The other operas to be given here are, of course, familiar to the point of being household words, like "Sapolio" and "Pearline." They will be better cast, and better given than anything of this sort heard here since the Chicago Opera Company, a few years ago, which lost so much money that it won't come back. Somehow, the Italians have cornered the opera market, and the critics berate the managers for never giving anything new, while composers, American and European, stand about hungrily, their pockets literally bulging with manuscript. Of course, the operas about to be produced are good; there is nothing to be said against them; but no music, not even Beethoven's Fifth, can stand constant repetition; the reason we tire so soon of popular airs is not so much because they are bad music, but because we hear them all the time. I would find it a physical impossibility to sit through a performance of "Everybody's Doin' It," but I could not do much better with the intermezzo from "Cavalleria Rusticana."

After reading the announcement of the Boston company I went, with this thought of hungry composers in my mind, to the source of all information about attractions, musical and otherwise, which have been given here in the last thirty years. I went to Mr. Behymer, known sometimes as an ogre of superhuman proportions, and to his friends as "Bee."

Mr. Behymer holds the measure of our musical culture, if we will winter in Los Angeles, in the palm of his hand. It rests with him whether we shall hear the greatest musicians in the world, or the poorest. I told him this. "Where is your conscience?" I asked, "why do we have to hear the Italians eternally, and never the Germans or anybody else?" The response was quick and honest. "Because I am not a philanthropist." But he used to be; it is not very long ago that he sold tickets to a prize fight, in order to make up for a concert at the Simpson Auditorium for which he was responsible. Even his enemies will acknowledge that no more could be asked of him.

There is an expression, "having one's finger on the pulse of the public." This is what Behymer has all the time. He knows just what Los Angeles will pay to see, but even so, the days of his losses are not over. He wants to be a useful citizen, and so continues in a field which has no limit to its boundaries for improvement—the public taste.

Los Angeles will not buy good music for herself. That is the simple truth. If it were not that other cities subsidize to bring the great attractions out to the West, we never would hear them. In order to get Yvette Guilbert here Behymer has made a round of a dozen cities to assure her a welcome. Denver, Cleveland, San Francisco and even small towns west of Chicago are responsible for our privilege. We never subsidize a cent for grand opera, while Atlanta (Ga.) goes to the extent of $100,000 every year. They run special trains within a radius of 100 miles, and the money expended results in a clearinghouse increase of over $2,000,000, while the opera is in season. That is the point which it is so hard for the business man of this city to understand—that music is not only an entertainment for those who like it, but it is of the greatest possible benefit to the reputation of the city. It is not enough that we should build and grow commercially; if we want to avoid the fate of Carthage we shall have to give some thought and money to the arts, as Rome did.

Speaking with regard to music alone, $6,000,000 changes hands here every year. In pianos, organs and Victrolas the music houses of this city clear $2,500,000 every year. These are dry figures, but surely they indicate that music is more than a charm to soothe the savage breast. When the National Boston Opera Company closed its tour in Denver last year the subscribers stayed in the building for over two hours, while the scenery, etc., was being packed, and in that two hours they subscribed $20,000 to bring the opera back this year. While our impresario makes an arrangement with the business men of Cleveland, O., that they will stand any losses incurred by the company during its stay in Los Angeles!

The musicians and the critics have a theory that if the best and the most interesting in modern music should come to the Coast it would be appreciated. But we did not like the Russian ballet—we cannot deny that—and we do go to hear the old Italians. That is not meant to be derogatory to the Italians; they have kept music alive in this country, but we must not be so grateful to them that we cannot endure anything else. There can be too much gratitude as well as too much of any other good thing.

We have an affinity with the Italians. We are not so bored as the English, nor so sentimental as the Germans, nor so sophisticated as the French. We are frankly melodramatic, like the Italians. There are certain well-worn bits of operatic "business" which will take in America, and Italy supplies it. There are "sure things"—such as having any man in a performance carry any young and beautiful woman anywhere in his arms; that always can be counted upon to give a thrill. Our motion pictures exemplify this fact in almost every show. And renunciation, of the Camille type, takes in America. In Germany or ancient Greece, the renunciation is all right, but it must not be quite so personal; if it is for the sake of the country it will go, but in America and in Italy it must be for a man, and, if possible, it must be a bad woman giving up her love for a good young man. I suppose the thing could be inverted, and the bad man renounce his love for the good young woman, except that even in Italian opera, there must be some semblance of truth to life. Before long, however, Italian opera and America

TRAVELOGUING DE LUXE

ENTERTAINMENT TO GO ON WHILE YOU SEE THE WORLD.

By Grace Kingsley.

Picture travelogues have heretofore been mentally pigeonholed by a goodly number of persons as in a class with grand opera, Shakespeare, Gordon Craig, caviare and the "old masters." In other words, travelogues and other educational films haven't been particularly popular with a great many patrons of what Julian Johnson terms the See-ayter.

My friend the earnest student of film drama, otherwise known as the fan, when he attends a film performance, doesn't care a hang about the birthplace of Aristophanes, nor mummies of the interesting but passe Rameses II, and his famous papa, nor the bacillus peculiar to the flea, nor the way the ladies of Boorah-Boola-Gah comb their hair, nor the delicate processes pursued in munitions factories, nor lately exhumed Sanskrit tablets. What the average picture fan hankers to see is Douglas Fairbanks falling over Niagara, Charlie Chaplin stopping a custard pie, Theda Bara executing the latest vampire wriggle, or Harry Carey leaping into the flames a-horseback.

It has remained for the Universal to come to the rescue with the medicine of instruction well disguised in the sugar of entertainment. The inspiration is that of H. O. Davis, vice-president and general manager of that lively and entertaining company. To be specific, Mr. Davis announces that the Universal is to engage in the making of a series of spectacular photoplays of an interesting and thrilling nature, the setting of which shall be the national parks of this country, and amid scenery of unusual interest in adjoining or nearby territory. Already one of these, 'God's Crucible," staged in the Grand Canyon of Arizona, has been presented with signal success.

Next June Yosemite is to be invaded by a company of Universal players, who will use the marvelous background as a setting for a big feature picture. Glacier Park scenes will also be utilized in like manner. Another company will go to the Hawaiian Islands, another to South America, and in all these the wonderful scenery will be a very prominent feature of the picture.

"In this way," said Mr. Davis, "pictures will be made highly educational. The best of our actors will be sent to portray the stories, and the stories themselves will be the most entertaining we can obtain, so that there will be no letting down of intrinsic interest in the dramatic quality of the pictures. Later we hope to send companies to Japan and India.

"One of the biggest of these features will be a picturization of Shipman's 'John Ermine,' which will be made at Yellowstone Park, and will require the services of some 5000 players."

What's In a Name?

A big cry is going up at Universal City from authors, actors and directors because of the changes in titles suffered by some of their favorite stories, and which happens when the pictures are sent to New York, where much of the titling is done. There was a mighty roar when "The Wrong Side of Paradise" came back "The Girl from Morgan's," and "Mary, Keep Your Feet Still," became "Her Soul's Inspiration."

Lynn Reynolds declares he is sure his next picture will return with the title of "Frozen Love," and Rex Ingram is equally certain that "The Flower of Doom" will reappear as "The Poisoned Bathing Suit."

Plethora-of-Talents Note.

Rex Ingram, U director, has more gifts than he needs by far. This handsome youth (oh, yes, he's all of that, too,) not only is a most talented director, a good actor, and a scenario writer of much ability, but if he wanted to make his living as a sculptor, he could probably do so.

The other day at Universal City he was busy molding from life a bust of the well-known Russian actor, Nicholas Dunaew, to be used in the production, "Ships that Pass," in which Dunaew is featured.

Just Like College.

These motion picture studios are becoming regular universities, with artists, linguists and everything. Out at Universal one Thomas H. Gubbins, for several years a resident of China, is employed as first aid in the direction of pictures in which Chinese are used. Gubbins speaks eight different dialects, and his knowledge is often invaluable.

Ancient History Stuff.

Harry Carey, in a reminiscent moment at Universal City, the other day, related how his company in the early days in New York, didn't film Rex Beach's "The Barrier."

"In the company with me were Mary Pickford, James Kirkwood and Owen Moore. Beach offered the story to me for about $500. And we couldn't raise the money to make it," said Mr. Carey.

A Brief for Charlie.

Maybe Charlie Chaplin is a tightwad with those who also possess wads, but there are certainly times when he isn't, with the poor and unfortunate. He himself, however, never relates these instances—not even to his press agent.

Eunice Hughes, a niece of Rupert Hughes, by the way, who played in his latest picture, "Easy Street," told me the other day that during the taking of that picture a hundred youngsters from St. Andrew's Orphanage were used.

"Charlie came and sat down by us when the scene was finished," said Miss Hughes. "He seemed sad and quiet, but he didn't say anything. By and by we found out what was troubling his mind. It was those orphans. He called his chauffeur, gave him a lot of money and told him to go downtown and bring back an autoload of candy and playthings for the kids. The man returned in about an hour, and you never saw such a happy lot of youngsters in your life."

Keep Warm by Suggestion.

Charlie Chaplin's next picture play, there is a rumor, will have to

LAURELS TO SYMPHONY.

SUCCESS OF RECENT CONCERTS GRATIFIES DIRECTORS.

By Edwin Schallert.

Success unparalleled in the past two seasons attended the last two "special feature" concerts of the Symphony Orchestra. Not since the presentation of Beethoven's Choral Symphony, two years ago at Clune's Auditorium, has there been such a large attendance, according to the management, as at the most recent event, which brought to light Cadman's "Thunderbird" suite. It is good to chronicle the awakening of interest in the local orchestra, and it is to be hoped that the prospects for its continuance will not fall of their promise.

The "special feature" idea has proved a fruitful one in bringing the public to the concerts, especially at the last two programmes and the directors of the orchestra board have several other unusual attractions to mark coming concerts. Besides these novelties, the fact that the orchestra is playing better than ever is having an effect on the attendance. The frequency of the concerts this season is affording the members of the organization greater familiarity with the scope of symphonic work, and is necessitating more rehearsals, results of which are apparent in the quality of the renditions.

Manager Blanchard has expressed gratification over the success that has greeted the first five pairs of concerts. "It certainly presages a bright future for the organization," he said yesterday. "Not only has the interest in the orchestra increased locally, but we have had more out-of-the city bookings for concerts than ever. We will give thirteen outside of Los Angeles this season, compared with five last year. Santa Barbara has just concluded arrangements for two programmes February 19 and March 11. This will be the orchestra's first engagement there. Three concerts are scheduled for Pasadena, February 6, March 9 and March 23. The orchestra will go to Fullerton March 30, and will give a concert in Ontario the first week in April."

Friday afternoon and Saturday evening of this week the orchestra will present the sixth programme of the season. That extraordinarily interesting Symphony of Tschaikowsky, the No. 4 in F minor, is to be given as the main number. The soloist will be Axel Simonsen, the popular and gifted 'cellist, who will play Joseph Hoffman's "Variations Symphoniques." The remaining composition on the programme will be Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" overture.

The Tschaikowsky symphony, which has been heard but rarely here, has unusual variety of design. The scherzo of the work, played by the strings pizzicato (plucked) has alwals lent much to the popular appeal. The symphony, as a whole, is full of romance, and is dedicated to the composer's friend, Frau von Meck, who, although she never met Tschaikowsky, lent him great financial assistance during his days of extreme poverty.

The orchestra has devoted special attention to the study of this work under the direction of Adolf Tandler, and the rendition, it is promised, will be unusually satisfying.

Thanks, Mr. Film-maker.

The bane of the orchestral musician's carerer as far as his advance in work of higher class goes, is his inability, for financial reasons, to avoid the drudgery of cafe and theater playing. The poor quality of the music that he must render interferes with the attainment of the proficiency which would be his, could he devote his talents continually to a higher type. Under present conditions, it seems impossible in the case of the local symphony for the player to make his living, without some outside employment.

Of late, however, there has been a certain degree of artistic compensation in this extraneous employment, which is probably showing its beneficial influence now, in the opportunity for the musician to play in the orchestras for big feature pictures. Here the quality of the music is frequently well above the ordinary, and certainly avoids the routine of the popular song and other claptrap—not to say, of course, that theater and cafe orchestra give their attention exclusively to work of this kind, for even in the cafe and cafeteria the quality of compositions presented is becoming better. However, there is a certain operatic atmosphere to playing in a large motion-picture orchestra, such as that which accompanies "Joan the Woman," for instance, under some of the very able conductors who have been at the head of these bodies.

"Joan the Woman" Music.

Speaking of the picture, "Joan the Woman," a few words regarding the melody and harmony that accompanies it would not appear amiss at the present time. While all motion-picture music must necessarily be hastily put together, I think that there is evidence in this instance that more care was exercised in the desire to obtain the proper effects than for most features.

It is plain that writers of music for features in nearly every instance are endeavoring to follow the Wagner scheme of guiding themes. The application of this scheme to film-music writing is even more apt and necessary than for opera. Many modern opera composers, notably Puccini, forgo the "leit-motiv" for the sake of an aria or so. In pictures the continuous action generally prohibits this. The composer has to stick pretty close to the unfolding thereof, restraining his muse accordingly.

There is a spontaneous quality to much of the music composed by William Furst for "Joan the Woman" film, oftentimes lacking in picture music. Guiding themes are used, but not with necessarily photographic insistence. There is a smooth flow to the music as a whole, and it is not burdened with excessive detail. The value of silence is emphasized, too, at times.

Some striking effects are obtained in an orchestral way, and the management of the instruments, by the composer, who also directs the orchestra here, is very clever in the more stressful dramatic moments. Combined with the lyrical sentiment in other passages, this and the clever following of the thread of the story, place the melodic setting for the picture in a niche quite by itself. A more perfect setting might be obtained by a little more variation, not in the orchestral, but in the harmonic and contrapuntal treatment of the themes, to suit the changes of ideas, but the present music is adequate, especially in the exaltation of much of its feeling.

Minneapolis Orchestra.

Los Angeles is shortly to have an opportunity of hearing a uniquely-successful musical organization. The Minneapolis Symphony will open its engagement here next Sunday afternoon, with a popular concert at Clune's Auditorium, following this with three appearances at Trinity Auditorium, one Monday evening and two on Tuesday. There are to be solo features. Marcella Craft will sing a Wagnerian number as well as the final scene from "Salome," by Richard Strauss, Tuesday evening; Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnole" for violin and orchestra will be presented by Richard Czerwonky Tuesday afternoon, and Saint-Saens's Concerto for violon 'cello and orchestra in A minor, by Cornelius Van Vliet Monday afternoon. Several solo numbers will also be given at the popular concert.

Among the novelties to be presented by the orchestra during its stay here are the following: Ballet suite by Max Reger, Sunday afternoon; tone poem, "Don Juan" by Richard Strauss, Monday evening; Symphony No. 2 in E minor, by Rachmaninoff, and "Fireworks," fantasie, by Stravinsky, Tuesday afternoon, and the big feature, "An Alpine Symphony," latest orchestral work by Richard Strauss, Tuesday evening.

The principal number of the Sunday-afternoon programme will be the Symphony No. 4 in F minor by Tschaikowsky, which is to be played by the Los Angeles Orchestra at its concerts this week. So the music lover may have three opportunities in as many days to hear the same work and two different organizations interpreting.

The Minneapolis Orchestra will be under the direction of Emil Oberhoffer. It is one of the foremost musical bodies of the Middle West and has had big success in the large eastern cities.

Cavalieri and Muratore.

No approaching event will excite wider interest than the recital by Lina Cavalieri, the beautiful lyric soprano, and Lucien Muratore, at Shrine Auditorium February 15. Both Cavalieri and Muratore are bright stars of the operatice firmament. Their success in Chicago this season has been surpassing, and their appearance here this season has just recently been arranged.

Cadman Date Changed.

The date of the recital of Charles Wakefield Cadman and the Princess Tsianina has been changed to March 3, according to announcement by L. E. Behymer. Interest in the appearance of the gifted composer will be doubled, no doubt, by the recent success of his "Thunderbird" suite, presented by the Symphony Orchestra. The novelty of Princess Tsianina's work is always a source of much enjoyment.

Fascinating Artist Due Soon.

Yvette Guilbert, that unusual and fascinating interpretative artist, who sings those rare types of French songs, will be heard in two recitals here, matinee February 10 and the evening of the 12th. Mme. Guilbert occupies a unique position in the artistic world. Her voice is not sufficient to call her a singer, yet her interpretations are all accompanied by musical settings arranged by her able pianist—Gustave Ferrari. She has a faculty for creating vivid impressions in her songs, because she so clearly visualized the character she would portray, and there is a story to each charming number she gives. Emily Gresser, an American violinist of marked ability, will be heard at Mme. Guilbert's concerts.

The first programme by Yvette Guilbert will be devoted to legends of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, and marriage songs of the seventh, and eighteenth. The second programme will depict "ten types of women in ten different songs." The idea of each epoch or century is further brought to mind by the elaborate and historically correct costumes of Mme. Guilbert.

Another Opera Recital.

The Los Angeles English Opera Chorus, which recently appeared in public rehearsal before more than a thousand local music lovers, and won much applause with numbers from "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Faust," is soon to be heard again under the direction of Eduard Lebegott.

A concert will be given by the chorus of 250 voices some time in February, according to present plans, as a benefit for the Jewish War Sufferers' Relief Society. The singers will also be heard on a programme under the auspices of the Schubert Club in the near future.

In the meantime the organization is at work on new numbers from the two operas which are being studied, and these will be given at the coming performances.

An exhibition of the work of the ballet class is also being contemplated, according to Manager S. M. Pasquale, which will be the first public appearance of the seventy-five dancers.

Today at Trinity.

With a number of prominent and talented artists on the programme, the Schubert Club will stage an attractive entertainment at the Trinity Auditorium this afternoon. In addition to the musical features, Mae Shumway Enderly, a dramatic reader of note, who has made an enviable reputation on the Chautauqua circuits of the East and Middle West, will give a series of readings. She will portray the marriage customs of the various European countries with a lightning change of costume between each selection. Signor Menotti Frascona, the grand opera baritone, will be heard in his best arias, while Miss Emily Cotino, a singer of unusual ability, will render vocal selections. Mrs. G. Hallet Johnson, eminent pianist, will accompany Mrs. Enderly in her numbers. Frederick Herrmann, well-known local musician, has been engaged to open the programme with special music on the organ.

The one hundred and twentieth anniversary of the birth of Franz Schubert will be celebrated by the Schubert Club with a morning musicale Wednesday at the Hotel Alexandria. The programme includes a two-piano arrangement of a symphony to be given by Mme. Karl Neefe-Rudorf and Mrs. Graham F. Putnam. Other selections will be rendered by Roselyn Madden Sargent and Irving Andrews.

Harmonia Club.

Cesar-Franck and Charbrier will be the composers, excerpts from whose works will be given at the next meeting of the Harmonia Club. The affair will be under the leadership of Miss Pauline Barr. The following will take part in the rendition of the programme: Mrs. Harrison Albright, Mrs. Hazel White, Miss Charlotte Brooks, Mrs. Glover Stith, Miss Pauline Barr, Mrs. William G. Cross, Miss A. Martin and Mrs. William Dumeld.

Matinee Musical.

Presenting a programme of modern music, Mrs. Clara Siegenburg, pianist, and Mrs. Joseph Zuckerman, soprano, assisted by Mrs. Clayton J. Hinman, accompanist, delighted a large audience with their work last Thursday afternoon at the Matinee Musical Club meeting. Mrs. Sigenburg's interpretation of the various modern numbers, of which she has made a special study, was very interesting. Following was the programme: "Clair de Lune" (Debussy,) "Jeux d'eau" (Ravel,) Barcarole in G (Rubinstein) and Etude in F sharp (MacDowell,) Mrs. Siegenburg; "Vissi d'arte, vissi d'amore," from "La Tosca" (Puccini,) "Hindu Slumber Song" (Harriet Ware,) "M'ama, No M'ama" (Mascagni) and "Life and Death" (S. Coleridge Taylor,) Mrs. Zuckerman; "Lotus Land" (Cyril Scott,) "Anoranza" (Granados,) "Caprice Burlesque" (Gabrilowitsch) and Scher-

Typewriter Speed Secrets told by the Mistress of the Keys

Margaret B. Owen
Three Times World's Champion Typist

YOU WILL BECOME AWFULLY WEARY OF ME IF I KEEP TALKING TYPEWRITERS ALL THE WHILE, SO I AM GOING TO TAKE TIME OFF IN THIS LESSON TO DELIVER A LITTLE LECTURE TO THE STENOGRAPHERS. I COULD BE A STENOGRAPHER AND I AM PROUD OF IT. IT PLEASES ME TO KNOW THAT DICKENS WAS A DISCIPLE OF THE POT HOOKS AND DASHES, AND FOR THIS AND OTHER REASONS I GREATLY ADMIRE HIM.

AFTER you have conquered shorthand and typing, either in your home or the school, the time has arrived for you to put your ability to financial account. There are several ways to search for a position. In my mind more and better positions are obtained by asking your stenographic friends to keep a lookout for you. Of course there is the other way of registering at one of the employment bureaus which all the typewriter companies conduct, advertising in the newspapers, reading the "Help Wanted" ads, or be recommended for a place by the school from which you graduated.

If I could make your life retroactive, I would only wish that you were a graduate of a high school, or at the very least that you had passed through a thorough grammar school. Those who have made a failure of English and spelling also make a failure of business office life. I am sorry to say that there are any number of young people who believe that shorthand and typewriting are specialties that require no preliminary education.

THE GREATEST STUMBLING BLOCK.

So it is to the girl of fair education that my talks must be made. She is ready to take a position; she can spell, she can write shorthand at the rate of at least 100 words a minute and read it, but—she lacks experience. This is the greatest stumbling block in the progress of the position-seeking young lady. She must not, however, be discouraged. Everyone starts with the same handicap. We will assume that she has been suggested as the stenographer and typist to the official of some large company. This man has had much experience with office help and about the last thing he wants to do is to break in a new stenographer, so he will not be as good natured as you might expect.

Do not tell your prospective employer how many words you can write a minute. Tell him you think you can take his letters and are going to do the very best you can.

DICTATION SUGGESTIONS.

The ordinary man dictates from 80 to 100 words a minute, and any stenographer who is sure of her ability to take that number of words and read it without hesitation, is certain of a position.

Keep a pencil in the rubber band which you have put around the finished pages of your notebook.

Be sure you get everything down clearly in your shorthand notes. Whenever there is a pause in dictation, instead of gazing absently about, look back over your notes, so that you can read them like print when you are asked to do so, and, you know, this you will be called upon to do many, many times for there are a great many business men unable to dictate perfectly.

When your employer asks you what he "said last," always begin to read to him from the last period. Don't read to him from the middle of a sentence. Quote the entire sentence from the last period so that he may get the sense of what he is dictating.

STUDY LETTER WRITING.

Study letters wherever you find them, particularly if they come from up-to-date business houses. Watch the different forms of letter-writing.

Prepare yourself to be a perfect amanuensis rather than a lightning reporter. As the first you are sure of yourself, while the lightning reporter is oftentimes doubtful as to her notes.

GOOD WORK VS. CARELESSNESS.

Make it a rule to be slow but sure rather than rapid and careless.

Whatever you do make sense of your transcribed notes.

Don't forget that your employer dislikes to have it known that he made a mistake in dictation. Don't argue with him; take a reprimand and be glad to re-write the letter rather than try to convince him that he "dictated it that way."

It is always better to be prompt at the office than to use up all your gray matter in making excuses for tardiness.

The Oriental rug plays a very important part in the furnishing of our modern American home, whether it be bungalow or mansion.

It is more than merely utilitarian. It has come to be an evidence of culture, of refinement.

The purchase of an Oriental rug is an important matter, because it involves considerable expenditure and because when once purchased it becomes a lifelong companion in the home.

It is to be considered, therefore, as an opportunity that you may select your Oriental rug from such an institution as the California Furniture Company, where reliability is absolutely paramount and where you have the assurance that you will pay only what the rug you select is worth, regardless of its curio value.

The "California" shows a wonderful selection of rare Orientals which have been personally selected and which measure in every respect up to the high standard for which this institution is so well and favorably known.

The display is particularly complete in large size Kermanshahs, Kashans and Sarouks, which are unfortunately made very scarce through the difficulties of importation brought about by the European war.

A very special invitation is extended to those who are interested in Oriental rugs to come and see our interesting display.

Some very unusual and interesting Oriental specimens are shown in our windows.

Orpheum.

A superlative act entitled "The Age of Reason," which comes direct from the Washington Square Theater in New York, heads the interesting bill at the Orpheum, commencing tomorrow. "The Age of Reason" is a cutting satire on divorce, viewed from the child's standpoint, and it is said to be excellently interpreted by Vivian and Gertrude Tobin. Competing with the Misses Tobin for the honors of headliner comes Al Shayne, "the singing beauty" who, it is whispered, is neither a singer nor a beauty, but whose side-splitting jokes play a clever accompaniment to the contortions of his flexible "map." Another featured position goes to Stan Stanley, "the bouncing fellow" who, with the aid of his relatives, keeps the audience thrilled for fifteen minutes. Harry Mayo and Harry Tally, formerly with the Empire City Quartette, offer a series of songs that will appeal to melody lovers, while Ronair, Ward and Farron in "Are You Lonesome?" do a patter song and dance act that is said to be a hummer. The bill retains for another week Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Barrie in "The Rube," charming Nellie Nichols and "The Volunteers."

Pantages.

A new departure in vaudeville musical comedy will be Ethel Whiteside's presentation of "All Aboard" at Pantages this week. There are to be as many "chorus men" as chorus girls and the big chorus of both sexes supports an extremely talented cast, featuring Bob Harmon, Jack Ellsworth and Ardelle Cleaves. Moss and Frye are two gentlemen of color whose rollicking songs and rich comedy forms one of the best "two-piece" vaudeville acts ever booked on the Pantages circuit. Slim, vivacious and with an engaging personality, Nancy Fair offers a series of songs and character impersonations that bid fair to garner a goodly share of applause. Olympia Desvall and company present a number of well-trained animals and birds, while the Novell brothers, acrobatic clowns, will start the big bill with a rush.

The thirteenth chapter of "The Lass of the Lumberlands" completes the programme.

Hippodrome.

Of course, nobody will go to the Hippodrome tomorrow with the avowed intention of seeing Gladys Vance, "The Girl with the Mirror Dress," but everybody that goes will be certain to see her unless they blindfold themselves during that snappy act—which they probably won't. Opening the programme will be Emil Wille and company in a hoop-rolling novelty, and they will be followed by Williams and Fuller, who guarantee to put to rout any little blue devils that may be lurking around the house. Another tip-top feature is the Three Melody Girls, while the Freshman company consists of a bevy of beauties entirely surrounding Bud Walsh and Fritzie Fritz, a team of crazy cut-ups. The eccentric comedian, Charles Sweet, will be among those present and he is always a welcome guest. Completing the programme, Minetti and Sidelli will present a hazardous acrobatic feature. As usual, good photoplays and the Pathe news will be included in the bill.

Stop, look and listen, for we have a classy bunch of clever people with us on stage and screen this week.

GERMAN SHOPS RUN DOWN.

Machinery is Worn Out and Time will be Required to Replace It.

[Pittsburgh Gazette Times:] Interesting notes on several phases of German industry are contained in reports from the American Association of Commerce and Trade which have just reached the United States from Berlin.

The German machine industry, it is declared, is now in the process of a general readjustment back to the production of implements of peace times as well as war. The fact that for two years many of the machine-producing factories have been concentrating on implements of war, in order to save themselves from stagnation, has caused the supply of machines for all other purposes to decrease. "And," the report continues, "since the competition of normal times has practically ceased, the demand for machines for peace production has steadily increased.

"This is the case, for instance, with agricultural implements, manufacturers not being able at the present time to satisfy the demand, and works furnishing equipments and supplies to mining, steel and iron concerns are occupied to full capacity and hardly equal to the task of filling orders.

"It will be a tremendous undertaking after the war, to replace the wornout machine equipment of German factories, a work that will require several years to accomplish."

SOCIETY.

A DEBUTANTE'S LETTER

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 25.

Marie, Dear: Pasadena was never so crowded before and the place just teems with interesting notables. Every three big hotels full of 'em, with wealth and fashion and distinction from all over the country.

The opening of the Hotel Green on Tuesday night was such a gay affair, with Henry Newby radiating hospitality and Mr. and Mrs. Lindley just oozing conscious pride. Mrs. C. C. Green, wife of the proprietor, returned a few days before. After dinner the ballroom was so crowded that you never would have suspected that several merry parties had slipped off to the "Old Mill," which, being a sort of informal resort to the Huntington, just outside the Pasadena city limits, seems to have a peculiar fascination for certain merry coteries. There is something about it that is invitingly queer, its hoary old walls, its cramped quarters, its colored mammy cook and its general informality making a most piquant contrast to the palatial luxuriance of the hotels. Which people do so love playing "simple," don't they?

Of course, the "Silver Queen" was at the Green—no party over there could be quite complete without her. But hereafter she must be known as the Queen of the Flowers, for such she has been elected for the sumptuous bal des fleurs charity ball, which is to come off at the Maryland on February 1. Won't some of those charming debutantes give a gorgeous time finding out which flower they can represent most faithfully, for everyone is to impersonate a flower for the occasion. Dainty little Virginia Reis is suffering from an embarrassment of suggestions, from Cecil Brunners to drooping daffodils, for which her friends regard her as a suitable counterpart. Margery has solemnly declared herself a hardy geranium. She says that only her most fatuous admirers could liken her to anything more fragile.

In which connection Robert Fulton of Des Moines, who is a guest at the Maryland and whose book, "The Twentieth Century Unlimited," has just been published, has a clever paragraph on matrimony.

"Most men and women take a chance on getting married once in a lifetime. In the deal both parties are confident they hold the royal flush, but Cupid's proverbial blindness sometimes leads to disappointing mistakes—kings turn out knaves and queens but bob-tailed flushes."

And as Margery says, the man who marries her thinking he has plucked a blush rose, only to discover her a suffragette geranium, is in for an uncomfortable enlightenment.

While merchant princes are as thick as berries over there, they are saying that two famous artists have somewhat queered their pitch. Maurice de Wolf and Edward B. Davis, you see, are not only artists of note, but prominent business men as well—which is unfair competition. It is quite as disconcerting as to find a suffragette is also a beauty. Miss Valerie Timkin of Canton, who is a 17-year-old little charmer who is painstakingly chaperoning a rather fussy mamma this year. She hasn't made her debut yet, but she is busily acquiring social experience. She certainly evinces the most dazzling taste in gowns.

Do you know that Mr. and Mrs. Howard Howard of Oklahoma had chosen the lovely Neustadt place? Howard is another oil magnate and his friends whisper confidentially that he is to be the next Governor of his State.

Speaking of talking of new homes, Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Parkinson of Ballyhawlie oil magnates, have purchased the Merritt place near Hillsdale. There is considerable land attached to it, which adjoins the J. W. Macdonald territory at Eagle Rock. They are having it done over and intend giving a big housewarming party in a week or two. The hospitality of this kindly, popular couple is well known and we had better not send any invitations if they don't want accepted. They are the sort of people who delight in doing good by stealth and many a heart has been brightened by their kindness.

Really, it is rather reprehensible the way the Pasadena hotels spoil their guests. Some sort of special entertainment to amuse their ennui is always on the boards. The latest acquisition is the Cherry Blossom Players for February 13 at the Maryland, and after that a series of performances by Constance Binney and Arthur Maude, with Florence McGehee directing. Did you ever hear of such distinguished names for the idle rich?

The Hollywood Woman's Club has accepted this trio for the night of February 12, when they will present "Horae of the Glen," by Fiona Macleod, for the first time in this country. Constance Crawley is one of the few actresses who really command social distinction with dramatic ability.

Mr. and Mrs. Orien Jenison, Mrs. and papa-in-law of Marshall Daniells Jenison, whose recent marriage was the event of the week, left such a merry tea-party at the Alexandria on Thursday, to entertain numerous friends who have been lavishly entertaining them while here. They return to Lansing, Mich., where the newly-weds next month, after visiting both San Francisco and New Orleans.

Mrs. Robert Lingan, Evelyn Lantz's beautiful little New York friend, is having such a gay time. And as she does not return home until early in June, she is busy making friends right and left.

Fiona came upon a very irate Englishwoman the other day, accompanied by a small boy of seven. He had borrowed 25 cents from that lady's mamma and bought himself a Japanese pompadour haircut! Gone were his flowing locks. She could have swallowed most any other kind of haircut with greater equanimity. She was doing her level best to cover it up with a British man-of-war cap, emblazoned with "H.M.S. Benjamin" across the ribbon. She moaned every time a special edition was demanded that he raise it. She assured her it was probably an affair of peace, but that small boy looked as if he knew he had started a war all over again.

Have you had the good fortune to meet Lady Mary Russell of London and Germany, who is sojourning at the Glenwood in Riverside? She of "Elizabeth and her German Garden" fame. She is the sweetest and most adorable wild-rose sort of beauty and it is hard to believe her the mamma of her 19-year-old daughter. Alice says she has the sort of voice that she has sat up nights trying to acquire. Of course, there is a delightful husband along. Can he be the same that she calls "The Man of Wrath" in her books? How can she call him names and adore him so humbly in a breath?

Another frightfully impressive visitor at the Glenwood is Eugene Grubb, the potato king. His name lacks poetry, yet he is accused of a secret passion for poetry, writes it on his shirt cuffs and all that sort of thing.

And, of couse, you must meet Count Frederic Reventlow of Denmark. He is making a tour of California and is coming on from the Glenwood to Pasadena. He is another poetic sort of chap, who has woodland myth similes for all sorts of California customs.

That darling kindly, but frightfully eminent Egyptologist, Prof. Archibald Sayce of Oxford, Eng., is still in California. He is about 70, but so delightfully interesting that most any of us would desert a youthful Apollo for the joy of listening to him.

You simply must not miss the Allies' Red Cross carnival on February 16 and 17 at the Shrine. It is going to be great fun, a regular fancy-dress ball, with, among other lures, a young regiment of Harlequins and Columbines. The Ballet Russe won't be in it. It is to be hoped the Columbines will make sure that their extremities will stand the exposure.

Mr. and Mrs. William Meade Orr are introducing a charming visitor to Southern California in Mrs. Horton Singer. They held court for her at their fascinating Alhambra home on Thursday afternoon.

Of course, everybody is going to the Garden Court dance on Tuesday evening. It is opening with such a stylish bevy of patronesses that it is almost as compelling socially as a first night at the opera.

I hear Pauline Mahan, who has spent several winters here, is going to marry Tom Klivane in New York next month. You remember they met here and he cut out a previous fiance in a whirling love campaign. They will live in New York but expect to be regular visitors to California all the same.

So long, cherie, your loving

BETTY.

Society's Circus.

Los Angeles' four hundred had a circus at the Midwick Country Club last night, with members of the smart set star performers and every seat reserved long before the big show opened.

Pink lemonade, side shows, clowns, bewitching riding girls, prancing horses and animals galore, from the long-necked giraffe, elephant, lions and leopards, to a wee trained mouse, were in evidence, and what matters it if they were diminutive? Nothing was omitted that one finds in a "sure-nuff" circus. Parachutes there were, too, and balloons—there were over 1000 by actual count, and in all the gay carnival colors.

Beautiful effects there were, originated to meet the exactness of modern luxury—such as the palm-room with a moonlight effect at the end of the semi-circular veranda which overlooks the swimming pool, and the long porch, canvased in and transformed into an Oriental-room, where amid a wealth of tapestries and a wonderful collection of Oriental rugs, brass lanterns and bronzes, one could recline on a comfy divan and smoke or drink (coffee) served by a dark-skinned Zouave attendant. A Turk carried the viands. The place in its entirety was heated with open braziers, giving a finished effect to the well executed scheme.

It was all very bizarre and delightful, and everybody entered into the spirit of the carnival enthusiastically, with the result that 1917's annual fancy dress costume ball of Midwick will go down in history; it went beyond the high-water mark set by the Fashion Show of two years ago, that was headed by Mrs. Miner and Mrs. MacGowan. And that is some record.

The main dining-room was festive in bright red, somber black and snowy white streamers—tufted overhead to suggest Omar's tent—a bit luxurious, to be sure. But this was an unusual circus—a de luxe attraction. Wafted by the breeze were hundreds and hundreds of black, red, yellow and white balloons suspended by tiny, firm threads, and blown hither and yon with telling effect, while on each of the tables, done in Italian green, were parachutes held down by wee favor quirts or riding whips—to make the horses in the ring go round. The assembly and ball-rooms were transformed into a spacious garden of Italian green and orange, spiked cypresses alternating with illumined mandarin trees blossoming for the night, with their rich clustered orange fruit, to produce just the proper degree of light. Overhead were lights hidden in great yellow bowls, from which radiated gay streamers of green. To offset this were huge baskets of golden acacia plumage—the same flowers that banked solidly the mantel.

Dinner was served at 8 o'clock, the blue book of Pasadena and Los Angeles being largely represented. And the grill, where the clock was turned back so Sunday morning would not come until all had departed, served the breakfast question to perfection—from 1 a.m., on.

Ebony and orange tarleton covered all the fixtures in futuristic artistry.

Great originality was displayed by the various hosts in accentuating the circus motif. Especially clever was the large circular table where Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Williams and Dr. and Mrs. Thomas R. McNab seated their guests, who numbered Dr. and Mrs. Dudley Fulton (the later appearing as a dragon fly), Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Chesney, Dr. and Mrs. Guy Cochran, Mrs. and Mrs. Richard Jewett Schweppe, Mr. and Mrs. William May Garland, Mr. and Mrs. Russell McDonald Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Coburn Turner (a ballet girl in blue tulle and pink roses), Mr. and Mrs. William Kay Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Seyler, Jr., Messrs. Richard Garvey and Walter Keys. The entire center of the table was made into a circus "lot," with rings for horses and a complete side show in miniature—the tent tops a-flying with cleverly worded pennants.

There was a tent for the snake-charmer, another for the tatooed man, a midway, a side show where one found the fat lady weighing 750 pounds—a woman content to live without reading "Eat and Grow Thin." The only iron-jawed woman, in captivity was on exhibit, next tent to the two-headed calf; and in one wee tent was "housed" the zoo, with a variety of animals walking forth to feed. Trained flees there were held captive, too, and the dog-faced boy. But Charlotte, the famous skater with an ice rink all her own, drew the best gate receipts—except, perhaps the little tent with live chickens (one, a beautiful girl doll, was reclining just outside the door). And there were sword swallowers, the wild man from Barneo, Sandow, the strong man, the Siamese twins, Eani (Eats 'Em Alive) and the ossified man—yes, even a Hawaiian village. Mrs. Williams and Mrs. McNab must have lost sleep scheming the clever and diversified side show they offered their guests. Mrs. McNab went as a Vanity Fair poster and Mrs. Williams donned an exquisite ballet costume.

The circus ring decoration was also adopted by W. R. Millar, Donald O'Melveny and Alex McDonald for their tables.

Capt. and Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner, Mr. and Mrs. E. Avery Leistkow and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bettingen, and S. W. Forsman had at his table a coterie numbering ten. Among the hostesses was Mrs. C. Montagu Ward, who also did the honors over a table for a dozen, and Miss Caroline Winston and her sister, Marguerite, were there in fetching fancy dress. James B. Hobbs had a few friends, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Baker hal a jolly crowd with them, mostly from Los Angeles.

One of the largest parties was that given jointly by Mrs. Frederick H. Stevens and Mrs. Joseph M. Hixon of the Executive Committee, who helped plan the function.

Miss Carroll Stewart of New York was the honores of one group over which her brother, Hugh E. Stewart, and Mrs. Stewart presided.

The personnel of members in charge of the various committees is the answer to the great success of the ball: Executive, Mrs. Frederick H. Stevens, Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner, Mrs. Joseph M. Hixon, Richard J. Schweppe and E. Avery McCarthy; Dinner, Donald McGilvray, Mrs. John S. Cravens; Dancing and Music, William May Garland and Miss Phila Miller; Decorations, Mrs. Joseph M. Hixon, Mrs. Russell McD. Taylor and assistants; Grill, Mrs. William S. Hook, Jr., Samuel Cupples Pierce and assistants; Door Service, Butlers, etc., Donald O'Melveny and Alexander MacDonald; the Wagon, Spiritos y Tobacos, Robert A. Rowan, Norwood W. Howard, Bruce Macneil and assistants; Nohost Tables, Mrs. Samuel Cupples Pierce and Mrs. John G. Mott and assistants; Favors, Mrs. P. H. Guthrie, Mrs. Ralph Williams and Mrs. Nutting Wigton; Oriental Room, Mrs. Henry Seward Van Dyke, Miss Mildred Landreth, Miss Helen Sherk, Mrs. E. M. Fowler and assistants.

For the Kerckhoff Buds.

Peach blossoms, narcissi, hyacinths, orchids and all the choice buds of spring adorned the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Mason on Andrews boulevard yesterday afternoon, when their second debutante courtesy to the Kerckhoff girls—Gertrude and Marion—in the form of a dansant was shared gy the entire galaxy of society girls who are enjoying their first season, and 200 of the younger marrieds and younger set, besides.

This home is ideal for entertaining, especially for a dance, with the rooms thrown together and opening onto the lanai. The music room, too, was cleared and decked in floral dress, and the dining-room attracted with its rich service and wealth of fragrant blossoms. Mrs. Mason asked several intimate friends to preside over the samovars and to pour chocolate and coffee, though there was no formal list of assistants. Nor were the elders bidden as participants. Youth was the predominatine note.

These girls are coming in for much social attention, all but monopolizing the calendar. It is for them Mrs. James M. Cockins is to give a luncheon at Midwick February 6, and that affair is to be followed the 14th by the Schweppe Valentine ball at the California Club.

The past week they shared with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Kerckhoff, in giving a brilliant ball at the Alexandria—all in peach blossoms and pink rosebuds. This ball was the occasion for many dinner parties, Mr. and Mrs. James Rathwell Page entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Edward Laurence Doheny, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Connell, Mr. and Mrs. Russell McDonald Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Leo St. Clair Chandler and Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Schweppe.

Miss Mary Forve and her brother, Charles, entertained Miss Eleanor MacGowan, Miss Jane Richardson, Miss Beatrice Finlayson, Miss Louise Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. Wells Morris, Harrell J. Harrell, Hilliard MacGowan, Field Staunton and Parker Atkinson. Orchids decorated the table.

Mrs. Harold Wrenn and Mrs. Henry Jenson were joint hostesses for one dinner of eight covers.

In pink and silver, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Mott's table was one of the most attractive of the evening, with covers for Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. O'Melveny, Mr. and Mrs. Robert I. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. William May Garland, Capt and Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner and Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel M. Myrick and the hosts.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Avery McCarthy chose "bridey white" for their table, in compliment to Miss Eleanor Banning and Jack Macfarlan, other guests at their dinner prior to the Kerckhoff ball including Miss Eleanor Workman, Miss Katherine Mellus, Miss Katherine Banning, Miss Jean Macneil (who has but recently returned from school in Washington, D. C., and is enjoying all the debutante affairs.) Messrs. Bruce Macneil, Frederick Gay, Herbert Howard, Garretson Dulin, Willoughby Page Rodman and Joe Banning, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman James dispensed hospitality to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Jevne, Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Paul Chandler, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond W. Stephens, Mr. and Mrs. William Doran, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Griffith, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Brinton Barham, Miss Corey and one or two others; and Herbert Chesebro, at his home in Manhattan place, had Mr. and Mrs. Eugene O. McLaughlin, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Kerckhoff, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Miller, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Chesebro, Miss Marjorie Hines, Miss Rosita Kerckhoff, Miss Rosario Dockweiler, William Warfield, Henry Dockweiler and Wheeler Chase.

Debutante Luncheon.

For the Misses Gertrude and Marion Kerckhoff and Miss Eleanor MacGowan, Miss Cecile Call will give a luncheon at the California Club next Wednesday. Miss Call is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Call of No. 1033 Beacon street.

Southern Woman Feted.

Mrs. Charles Eastman of Nashville, Tenn., was the inspiration for a luncheon, over which Mrs. C. Q. Stanton presided, last Tuesday. Covers were laid for fifteen. The decorations were of palest pink and effected with rare taste by a combination of spring blossoms.

Wednesday Mrs. Stanton gave in compliment to Mrs. Eastman, her house guest, a tea for a larger number of guests. Mrs. Forrest Stanton and Mrs. Edwin Locksley Stanton, the hostess's daughters by marriage, poured.

Mrs. Eastman is now the guest of Mrs. W. D. Woolwine of Lake street, who complimented her with a dinner last Friday evening.

En Route to Honolulu.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Klein of the Darby have gone to San Francisco, where they will spend a few days before sailing on the Sonoma for the Hawaiian Islands.

In Prospect.

Mrs. Ira W. Shirley and Mrs. George H. Bishop have issued invitations to 100 guests for a dinner-dance, the evening of February 1 at the Huntington.

For a Writer.

Miss Helen Mathewson, at her new home, No. 56 Fremont place, complimented her house guest, Ila Wheeler Wilcox, with a luncheon, Friday. An imported lace cloth was centered with a rare Bohemian holder, containing a graceful arrangements of Killarney roses, violets and maidenhair, and covers were marked for fourteen.

Mrs. Wilcox is one of the literati now enjoying Southern California's sunshine and hospitality, and has been with Miss Mathewson for several months. Since the passing of her husband, she has lived quietly.

Miss Mathewson often entertains handsomely, her chanticler luncheon of a few years ago having made a stir by its originality. Her compliments to Mrs. Wilcox, however, have been informal functions that have afforded the writer's friends an opportunity for sociability, sans cermonie.

Dancing Party.

With red and green dominant, Mrs. Margaret E. Jenkins, her son, George Ross Jenkins, and cousin, William H. Cochran, entertained at their home on North Rampart boulevard Tuesday evening with a merry dancing party. The parlors were done in pepper boughs and red berries, with the lights subdued 'neath the same, and a motley of flowers decked the rooms. At midnight a buffet supper was served. Bidden were: Miss Louise Brewington, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Cutler Brown, Miss Zoe Brown, Sidney Butler, Miss Marie Camou, Miss Trixie Costello, Mrs. Elizabeth Converse, Mrs. Olive Gray, Dr. and Mrs. A. D. Houghton, Dr. W. H. Hodson, Mrs. Dorothy Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clay King, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Keller, James T. Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. Bradner W. Lee, Willard Newell, Dr. D. F. Neilson, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Ranger, Dr. Cecil Reynolds, Dr. E. Randolph, J. W. Robeson, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Whittemore, the Misses Whittemore, J. R. Whittemore and Mrs. Gloria Mayne-Windsor.

Tea in Pink.

One of the pleasant affairs of the week was the afternoon tea, at which Miss Dorothy Cushman of Polmesita place, Hollywood, was hostess to eighty-five of her friends, her mother, Mrs. Herbert Cushman, receiving with Miss Dorothy from 3 to 6 o'clock. Carnations were used to carry out a pink color scheme throughout the house, Mrs. H. D. Cushman, the young hostess's grandmother, presided at the tea table, and was assisted by Mrs. Frank Davidson and Miss Jessie Cushman. There was music.

At the Bullock Home.

Mrs. Fred W. Karn has come with her 12-year-old daughter, Marjorie, and son, Charles, a lad of 7, from their home in Woodstock, Ontario, Can., to visit her brother-in-law, J. G. Bullock, and nfeces, Margaret and Helen Bullock, of No. 2667 West Ninth street. Mrs. Karn's sister, Miss Florence Taylor, has been here several months, and the house is more than ever gay with the arrival of the trio of visitors.

First Post-nuptial Affair.

Mrs. Louis C. Belden, a young bride, who was before marriage Irene Bigelow, gave her first large post-nuptial social affair at her home, No. 143 Ridgewood place, the other afternoon, when nearly forty of her young friends were entertained at cards and tea. Mrs. Fred Dickey (Vera Loomis) and Miss Helen Schilling, who were in her bridal party, assisted Mrs. Belden, as did Miss Mildred Dawson. The rooms were decked in violets and enchantress carnations. Favors for high scores fell to Miss Frances Ackley and Miss Sarah Merritt.

Seventy-seventh Milestone.

Dr. E. B. Graham, in observance of his seventy-seventh birthday anniversary, last night entertained members of his family and a number of friends at dinner at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Robert N. Heath of No. 1537 Arlington avenue. Auction bridge was played after dinner. Red dominated in the decorations, and covers were marked for Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Perkins, Col. M. E. Post, Mr. and Mrs. P. O. Brewster, Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Barkwell, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. King, Miss Katherine Acer, Messrs. Leslie King and James Cook and the honoree and hosts.

Salon.

Mrs. Gaylord Wilshire, just back from Switzerland, gave, with her husband, their initial salon in their home on Elizabeth avenue, Pasadent, last Sunday evening. It was attended by fifty or sixty of the intellectual elite.

For years this hostess enjoyed a reign in London, her Sunday "at homes" attracting notables from artistic circles.

Edward Morphy was among the guests last Sunday and told some clever stories incident to his residence in several quarters of the world, notably India. Julian Hawthorne, Charles Wakefield Cadman, Upton Sinclair, Schultz, Seller and others were there to enjoy sociability over their coffee and participate in worth-while discussion.

Prenuptial Courtesy.

A breakfast for forty girls, to be followed by a matinee party, will be given at the Alexandria February 10 by Miss Estelle A. Cecilia Cross for Miss Madalina Souden, the fiancee of Christy Walsh. Mrs. William Samuel Cross, mother of the hostess, will chaperon.

Much Entertained.

Mrs. Walter Pomeroy of Menlo avenue has gone East, where she is being much entertained by friends and kin folk. Her itinerary will take her to Chicago, Omaha, St. Louis and New York, and she will be in New Orleans for the Mardi Gras.

Silver Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Fischer of No. 321 South Johnston street gave a large dinner party the 20th inst. in observance of their silver wedding anniversary. The decorations were carried out as far as possible in silver. The evening was spent with music and dancing.

Little Hostess.

Thirty-five boys and girls were guests Friday night at a dancing party given by Allene Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil H. Smith of Venice, in the Venice Pavilion, as a happy celebration of the hostess's thirteenth birthday. Interesting favors were dispensed and a dainty collation served, including a huge birthday cake containing the usual friendship ring, coin, thimble, button, etc., that are supposed to forecast the futures of the receiver.

Asked were Irene Barnett, Helen Kinney, Annette Gray, Anita Wilson, Nadine Parks, Beth Shaller, Myrtle Franklin, Eloise Rogers, Frances Reinhart, Dorothy Dilly, Dorothy Dean, Bernice Felts, Bessie Wilmot, Prudence Castle, Virginia Newcomb, Helena Elwood, Florence Edins, Richard Peabody, Jeffords Smith, Charles Rogers, Charles Simons, Herbert Simons, Jack Sipes, Jack Deland, Jack Fowley, Eugene Staley, Jerry Higgins, Fred Barnett and Clem Kinney.

Supper and Musicale.

Gloria Mayne-Windsor, assisted by her sister, Mrs. Philip Shanahan, entertained with a supper-dance and musical at their home, No. 900 Westlake avenue, the night of the 20th inst. The Misses Katherine and Bertha Fiske gave a group of musical variations in character—impressions modern, antique and futurist. The former read Kreisler's "Liebesfreud," and "Les Adieux," by Sarasate, and Miss Bertha Fiske represented the antique with three unusual and effective Chinese characterizations. A futurist, vanity fantasy closed their much-appreciated offering. Julene Berry, a San Franciscan, who is now making her home in Los Angeles, in Spanish dress danced an alluring bolero. Umberto Sistarelli, violinist; Louis Roccia, 'cellist, and Elsa Newton, pianist, played Sistarelli's "Nostalgia" and Chaminade's "Pierrot," and accompanied the hostess in her own songs.

Punch was dispensed from a nook and at midnight supper was served

Some pretty future debutantes.

Miss Katherine Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Ward, is now doing special work at the University of Southern California, but will enter the University of California in August. She was too young to go this year. Miss Dorothy Seymour, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Seymour, is also attending U.S.C., while waiting to enter Stanford next year. Miss Margaret Kellogg of Altadena is in a finishing school near New York City. Miss Dorothy Thompson, like the others, was graduated from Marlborough last summer.

A Musical Reproducing Instrument
—not a "talking machine"

STYLE H-S-1-2-3
Prices $75 Up

Hear the Starr Phonograph—then compare it with any other—if you would know the distinction between a truly MUSICAL reproducing instrument and a talking machine.

What will most impress you about the Starr Phonograph is the wonderful HUMAN quality of its vocal reproductions, so natural and of such power and volume that re-creation cannot be distinguished from the original voice recorded. Every distinct note sung, whether in solo or in chorus, is preserved in all its natural brilliance, richness and mellowness.

There is no other phonograph with such beauty of tone, because there is no other phonograph that is designed as the Starr—on correct principles of tone building—with a sounding board horn and throat of Silver Grain Spruce, of which musical violins and the sounding boards of the finest pianos are made.

The Starr plays all makes of disc records equally well, no purchase of extra parts necessary.

$5 puts the Starr in your home—then pay $5 monthly. Prices $75 up. These instruments have larger, handsomer cases and more powerful motors than any others at the price. Come in and see and hear the Starr.

TO the Waltham Colonial "A" undoubtedly belongs the distinction of being "America's masterpiece in watch-making."

It is the thinnest watch made in this country—beautiful of design—refined—smart—genteel.

Mechanically, it is as nearly perfect as it is possible to produce a watch. As a timepiece, it probably has no superior at any price.

In 14 karat and 18 karat gold cases, the prices range from $99.00 to $200.00. Other Walthams for men as low as $10.00.

Watch repairing and adjusting by experts. Exact time received at noon daily from Mare Island Naval Observatory.

The table held a low mound of violets and pink rosebuds and Enchantress carnations, from which pink ribbons radiated to individual corsages for the ladies.

Covers were laid for the Misses Marian Bisbee, Ruth Clampett, Hazel Walker, Laurel Dickinson, Ava Richards, Martha Tutin, Patton, Ott and Schneider, Mrs. Eaton, Mrs. Guy West, and for Messrs. MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

"I've joined the Never-Again Club. Never again will I use anything for corns but "Gets-It." Put 2 drops of "Gets-It" on, and from that second the corns begins to shrivel, instead of swelling up like a little white sponge. "Oh, Don't Touch It! It's So Sore!" "Gets-It" and It Will Never Be Sore!

Yes, "Gets-It" is the corn discovery of the age. More "Gets-It" is sold by many times than any other corn remedy in existence. Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast a Splendid Habit

Open sluices of the system each morning and wash away the poisonous, stagnant matter.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise; splitting headache, stuffy, from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, can, instead, both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phosphated hot water each morning.

We should drink, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before putting more food into the stomach.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast and it is said to be but a little while until the roses begin to appear in the cheeks. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism a real enthusiast on the subject of internal sanitation. Try it and you are assured that you will look better and feel better in every way shortly.

AFTER several postponements on account of the rain, an entertainment by the "suffragettes" took place at the Grange annex on Tuesday evening. They were queer, these suffragettes, lots of fun. SOCIETY.

evening, and the affair was much enjoyed by a number of the young people of this locality.

Mrs. Josephine Booth was hostess to the Afternoon Five Hundred Club at her home Wednesday. Cheery decorations of red geraniums and marigolds brightened the rooms.

The Thursday Evening Card Club enjoyed a meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Dunn on Saratoga street this week. California poppies and ferns formed the decorations. The members present were Messrs. and Mmes. N. J. Lindenfeld, M. Brinley, H. H. Hayward, E. C. McCampbell, George Rivard, Mrs. E. Pyle, Mrs. Mary Owens, the Misses Durrell, Messrs. W. Hager and James Walker.

Members of the Matrons' Needlework Club of Bardsdale, and a few other neighbors and friends of Mrs. D. H. Bartels, gathered at her home for a pleasant social afternoon. The affair was arranged as a surprise, and a delightful feature for the guest of honor was the presentation of a pretty tea set as a gift from the club members.

Oxnard.

AMONG the prettiest of the season's weddings was that at which Miss Mildred E. Appleton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Appleton of Simi, became the bride of Mr. Edgar W. Chamberlain, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Chamberlain of Burbank, the ceremony taking place at the country home of the bride's parents, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The Rev. H. McFarland of Simi performed the ceremony. The bride, gowned in white satin and real lace, with embroidered veil and chaplet of orange blossoms, carried a bouquet of orange blossoms. She entered on the arm of her father, to the strains of the "Lohengrin" Wedding March, played by a four-piece orchestra. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Helen Appleton, who wore pink-embroidered white voile, and carried pink and white carnations. Preceding the wedding party were two little girls dressed in white silk, as ushers, and a dainty flower girl, little Elvira Smith, niece of the groom. The ring was carried in a lily by little Margaret Appleton, youngest sister of the bride. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Charles Chamberlain. After the ceremony the bride and groom motored to Oxnard, and left there by train for San Diego, where they will spend their honeymoon. Following their departure the bride's family kept open house, the orchestra furnishing music for dancing, and an elaborate buffet luncheon was served. The bride and groom received many beautiful gifts.

The beautiful home recently completed by the Stanley Pidducks in Oceanview was the scene of a pleasant gathering Wednesday evening in the nature of a house-warming. The new home is one of the prettiest country residences in the county and was prettily decorated for the affair. An evening of cards was followed by the serving of refreshments. The guests were Messrs. and Mmes. J. J. Donlon, John Petit, Richard Pidduck, Earl Hart, James Old, Fred Pidduck and Miss Harriet Pidduck.

The personnel of the cast for "The Chimes of Normandy," the opera to be given next week under the direction of Miss Helen Petre for the benefit of the Spanish school, has been announced, and includes, besides a chorus of forty voices, a number of people prominent musically in the county, among them being Misses Alice Day, Julie Ave Camarillo, Maud Latham, Ora Carnes, Blanche Eastwood, Blanche Baker, Alta McNaughton, Corinne Donlon, Evangeline Carroll, Blanche Woodill, Mrs. William Lisko, Mrs. Dorothy Backus, Mrs. Leslie Gisler, Messrs. J. L. Foster, Carl Fisher, Elwood Whelan, Richard Pidduck, Harold Beck, Oswald Austin, Paul Lehmann, McKinley Stockton, C. H. Weaver and Leo Hanley.

San Gabriel.

A HAPPY EVENT was celebrated Wednesday, January 17, by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Van Norman, for many years residents and honored pioneers of this section of California. The auspicious celebration of their golden wedding anniversary took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Van Norman, No. 521 South Hobart boulevard, Los Angeles. Mr. and Mrs. Van Norman were surrounded by eight children and all their grandchildren. Besides the honored pair there were present Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Van Norman, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Van Norman, Mrs. M. M. Norman, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Scott, Vivian Scott, Vincent Scott, Mrs. F. E. Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Games and Mr. Dean Van Norman.

Mr. Frank R. Forgey, assistant cashier of the bank of San Gabriel, and Mrs. Forgey, are pleasantly domiciled in the Van Norman residence on Live Oak. Mr. and Mrs. Forgey are both popular and will prove an acquisition to the social set of the Mission City.

Miss Adarel Elmer entertained a party of friends at her home in Alhambra court Tuesday evening. A social time was spent over cards and with music, and at the appropriate hour refreshments were served. Present were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hatch, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Champion, Misses Mamie Straite, Harriet Dunbar, Loma Straite, Messrs. Wallace Dunbar, Richard Hazelhurst and Elbert Coulter.

Alhambra.

CHARMING in every detail was the 6:30 o'clock dinner with which Mrs. Hobart Thatcher entertained a coterie of musical friends at her home, No. 117 South Hidalgo, Wednesday evening. A Tiffany bowl of golden marigolds centered the table, and covers were laid for thirteen, including Mrs. Thatcher, Mrs. Ralph Hornby, Mrs. Carl Woodbury, Mrs. J. A. Jones, Mrs. Theodore Merchant, Miss Ruth Herring, Mrs. C. Hainey, Miss Octavia Hudson, Miss Harriett Dunbar, Miss Florence Chase and the Misses Ruth Morris and Hazel Brown of Los Angeles.

A quiet wedding that came as a surprise to the many Alhambra friends of the bride was that of Mrs. Lillian Mitchim and William Ebner, which was celebrated in Los Angeles January 13. The Rev. Walter P. Lee read the service. The bride was the wife of the late J. Frank Mitchim, a former newspaper man of this city. The groom is a well-known Hollywood capitalist, and after February 1 the couple will be at home at No. 6627 Franklin avenue, Hollywood.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to the natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S STAND.

Friends, it is time for this strife to cease;
Nor can we hope for abiding peace,
Save without victory; neither side,
Beaten nor crushed, but a fair divide,
Made on all issues—the end a draw—
Terms guaranteed under world-wide law;
Let thoughts of conquest aside be cast,
Peace between equals alone can last.

So I propose that the doctrine famed
As President Monroe's shall be renamed,
Broadened, enlarged, till its folds embrace
The right of all people to find a place
For peaceful pursuits, be they large or small,
Each for itself and one God for all;
On our new banner these words designed,
"A Wilson Doctrine for All Mankind."

Consent of the governed in every land
As fundamentally just shall stand,
And ever, forever, the paths of the sea
In law and in fact shall alike be free;
National pride shall at last give place
To a dominant thought, not a dominant race;
Nor nations uncertain still dread the hour
When safety depends on a "balance of power."

Friendly to all, the United States
For the call of humanity steadfast waits,
Ready to act and resolved to speak,
To stand as a shield for the poor and weak,
A beacon light where the storms beat hard,
A flaming sword at a gateway barred
To the lust of blood and the lure of greed,
First in the field for a Christian creed.

DEWEY FUNERAL CAUGHT BY FILM.

SPLENDID VIEWS OF CORTEGE IN ANIMATED WEEKLY.

Body of Nation's Hero Going to Last Rest, with Throngs Doing Honor to Memory, Shown on Picture Screen by Current Issue of "Times"-Universal.

Taps for a nation's hero is one of the features in the current issue of The Times-Universal Animated Weekly, as scenes are given of the funeral cortege of Admiral Dewey. The President is shown honoring the dead warrior, with the throngs of people who did honor to his memory.

Other views of timely interest are those of the cruiser Milwaukee wrecked while trying to rescue stranded American submarines. The rescue of members of the crew by means of the breeches buoy is seen.

Still another aquatic disaster is filmed in the stranding of the lake steamship Indiana. Tugs appear trying in vain to float the giant craft. Another victim of the ocean is the British schooner Wanola, driven ashore by a storm at Point Allerton, Mass. Still dealing with things nautical, are views of the new Spanish submarine Isaac Peral, the largest U-boat afloat, and which is a strictly "Made in America" product.

Around the war are filmed glimpses of Bulgarian soldiers marching to battle, and rushing their supply trains over the mountains near Erdlitz in the Balkans.

Of international interest are the scenes taken in Panama City, where throngs honor Dr. Valdes, Panama's new President, at his inauguration, and the arrival of the first Serbian Minister to the United States, and his reception by Secretary of State Lansing.

More about the "peace leak" is depicted in scenes from Washington, as the Congressional inquiry proceeds. The camera has caught some of the well-known figures involved in the investigation, such as Barney Baruch and "Tom" Lawson, who started the probe.

Regular heart interest is furnished in glimpse of the blind Congressman, T. D. Schnall of Minneapolis, who made the 2400-mile trip to Washington, D. C., with his 5-year-old son as his sole companion. The little fellow is busy showing the reporters how he would "protect daddy."

Of local interest are the scenes from the closing of the San Diego exposition. Mme. Schumann-Heink received a medal for singing and a world peace message was received.

Curious bits of pictured news come from Chicago, where electric taxis are making war on street cars, and from New York Harbor where 900 animals drown when tug rams a slaughter-house lighter. The sole survivor is one bedraggled bull. "Perfect 26's" of the masculine variety are shown at a fahsion display for men at Cincinnati, O., revealing the latest in trench coats, and evening dress.

The bill closes with cartoons by Hy Mayer.

FILLS LEGEND'S DEMANDS.

So "Experience" Actress Gets Earrings of Kings.

People are accustomed to thinking of actresses as spending a large part of the morning in sleep. But Alice Palmer, who plays Intoxication in "Experience," which comes to the Mason this week, declares sleep has no charm for her in the morning, when she can be in the open. She rises every morning at 7 o'clock and takes a long walk before breakfast. More than anything else, she enjoys swimming and believes that is one of the best exercises for women, as it gives them grace, ability and strength.

Last summer when she was in the Hawaiian Islands, Miss Palmer so pleased the natives by her diving and swimming that she was presented by them with a pair of earrings which once belonged to Kanshancha I, who was chief of the Hawaiian Islands and died in 1819. After the death of the King the earrings became the property of the widow, who was really the ruler of the islands after her husband's death, although he had been succeeded by his son.

The actress was told that there was a legend among the natives of the Hawaiian Islands that some time a beautiful white water nymph would visit them, whose skin would be as fair as alabaster, and that she would be just as much at home in water as on land. The natives said they had a council and by unanimous vote had decided Miss Palmer was the water nymph long foretold in Hawaiian legends. Naturally she is very proud of her earrings. They are of very quaint and curious design, a sort of inverted half-moon, made of beaten gold, and she wears them while playing Intoxication in "Experience."

REAL KIDDIES PLAY.

"Birds' Christmas Carol" Soon to Ring Out Message.

That there is a crying need for the right sort of picture plays for children has been long conceded, and it has remained for Mrs. Lule Warrenton to hew a way out of the beaten path and produce such plays.

Her film, "The Birds' Christmas Carol," by Kate Douglas Wiggin, is nearly ready for showing. After this is fairly launched, she will undertake a series of five-reelers, in answer to a demand from all parts of the country for photoplays parents can feel perfectly safe in permitting their children to see.

One of the cleverest and cutest little child actresses on the screen, Mary Louise Cooper, of Chicago, is the star of "The Birds' Christmas Carol."

CUT OUT FOR CAREER.

Diminutive Star, Who had "Nothing to Unlearn" When She Got First Job, is Following Magic Gleam of Fame in Film World.

Kathleen Clifford, the diminutive leading woman who has just joined the Balboa studio forces, promises to be one of the most interesting additions to Screenland in recent times. For one so young Miss Clifford has a remarkable career as a public favorite to her credit. She is well known in London and New York, and confidently looks to the films to add materially to her reputation. She is not yet 23 years of age.

Daughter of wealthy parents, Miss Clifford has the advantage of European travel as a child. The most of her education was looked after by a governess. She attended a private school in Dresden and was "finished" at Brighton, Eng. As a result her accomplishments are many.

As a 15-year-old girl, it was Miss Clifford's good fortune to attend a dinner where Charles Frohman, the foremost American producer, was also present. She told him she would like to go on the stage.

"What can you do?" asked Mr. Frohman.

"Nothing," responded Miss Clifford nonchalantly.

"Sing?"

"No."

"Dance?"

"No."

"Act?"

"No!"

"Well, then," remarked Mr. Frohman, "you surely ought to try for the stage. You have nothing to unlearn." Being pretty, petite and fetching, beside later showing ability, Miss Clifford was engaged and made her first appearance in "Top of the World." She achieved an instant hit, and was afterward starred in many notable productions, including "Little Dorrit," with Digby Bell.

FIONA M'LEOD PLAY IS PROGRAMME.

The Woman's Club of Hollywood will present the celebrated English actress, Constance Crawley, and her company of players in the poetic drama, "Morag of the Clan," by Fiona McLeod, for the first time in this country, February 12, at the clubhouse, it is announced. This will mark Miss Crawley's return to the speaking stage after three seasons of retirement, and the play is said to afford splendid opportunities for her dramatic genius, wonderful voice and picturesque beauty. She has always been associated with the best dramatic productions, notably at the head of her own Shakespearean and repertoire company here and in England, the Ben Greet Players, and other distinguished movements, and has won for herself a high place and eminent reputation in this country and abroad. Mr. Arthur Maude will appear as Miss Crawley's leading man. The production is to be under the direction of Clarence McGehee.

M'CLURE FILM SOON TO BE SHOWN HERE.

"The Seven Deadly Sins," newest motion-picture achievement of the McClure Pictures concern, is to be shown in this city at an early date. William A. Mead has been appointed representative for the production and has taken up his duties for the marketing of this series of seven-reel features. The group will be released by Super-Pictures, Inc., through the Triangle exchanges. The stars who take part in the pictures are Ann Murdoch, Holbrook Blinn, H. B. Warner, Charlotte Walker, Nance O'Neil and George LeGuere, a notable group of players.

LIVELY OLD PEOPLE.

Mrs. John Prail of Janesville, Minn., recently celebrated her 100th anniversary, and all the village joined in the event. Mrs. Prail was born in Hermansdorf, Germany. She attributes her long life to the fact that she has always worked and "never worried." She is an expert with the old-fashioned spinning wheel.

"Uncle" John Flannagan of Defiance, O., 91, recently arose at 5 o'clock in the morning, tended to the two teams of horses, did all the other chores around the house, did a day's work on the streets, went home, had supper, then walked downtown to a meeting of the Elks, and felt so good he issued a challenge for an endurance contest to all the other young men of advanced age in Ohio.

Charles Edwin and Edwin Charles Bradbury, twin brothers, who were born in Northampton Furnace, Pa., recently at their home in Newburyport, Mass., observed the eightieth anniversary of their birth. They are in perfect health.

MAGIC BATON HIS IN LIFE.

Sketch of the Late Dr. Hans Richter, Famous London Musical Conductor, by One Who Knew His Work Intimately.

BY JULES KOOPMAN.

There passed away quite recently a man who for more than thirty years was one of the most conspicuous figures in the musical life of London, Eng.—Dr. Hans Richter. This famous conductor founded the Richter Orchestra, from which he retired after the organization had existed twenty-five years to take charge of the Halle Orchestra in Manchester, the conductorship of which had been left vacant on the death of Sir Charles Halle, who founded it.

Dr. Richter did not entirely sever his connection, however, with the orchestra he had founded and which had secured for itself a foremost position among the musical organizations of the metropolis. As often as his duties in Manchester would allow him he would go to London as the guest of the Symphony Orchestra, as it became known, and conduct a number of its concerts.

It was by sheer force of musical intelligence and personality that Dr. Richter succeeded in making the Richter Orchestra the central point of attraction in London, it being readily admitted by the music-loving public, and especially among musicians, that he was one of the greatest, if not the greatest, living interpreter of the works of the old masters. His ability to bring out to the full the latent strength of the modern orchestra, its gradations in tone and color, was indeed wonderful.

Under his magic baton the music became a living force, at one time speaking with deep and impressive pathos, at others reverberating through the old St. James Hall in mighty accents and grand and superb tone. The orchestra, under the guidance of this master, became a willing and sympathetic instrument, the medium of expression of the most noble and glorious in the domain of music.

It was my privilege to have been a member of his orchestra for many years, and it is with a deep sense of appreciation and gratitude I call to mind the moments of genuine enjoyment I derived from my association, and from the clear understanding thus gained. I still see Dr. Richter—an imposing and commanding figure, the picture of conscious strength. As he stood in front of the orchestra, dignified and calm, his eyes half-hidden beneath his massive brow, he expressed and inspired confidence.

Dr. Richter was possessed of a prodigious memory, a keen understanding of pitch and tonality and a marvelous knowledge of the various instruments and their characteristics. Yet these accomplishments, though of a high order in themselves, pale into insignificance when considered in connection with his understanding and application of that basic essential in music known as rhythm. In that respect he excelled—in his terse and brief way of expression he called rhythm the frame; melody, the flesh.

With consummate and unerring skill the master directed his forces. He never indulged in long speeches, nor wasted time in long explanations. He knew that the members of his orchestra were conscientious, experienced musicians, and that long explanations were quite superfluous. One or two rehearsals, and on special occasions three, were allotted to each concert. It was on these occasions that his great leadership brilliantly asserted itself; his thorough and wonderful understanding of all essentials, combined with rare tact, enabled him to achieve the maximum of work and results within a limited time. Never once, however, did I see him act in a way likely to hurt the feelings of anyone in the orchestra; he never made use of unkind expressions—on the contrary, his efforts were always directed to encourage his musicians and to make them feel comfortable.

No visitors were allowed at the rehearsals. On this point the doctor was inexorable; he regarded practice as strictly a private affair. Being of a somewhat taciturn disposition, he naturally eschewed anything that suggested self-advertisement. He dressed very simply, and he lacked any tendency to indulge in stage effect or similar "clap-trap."

The elite of the musical world and of music lovers in general were to be found at the Richter concerts, and young and aspiring conductors from all parts of the country flocked to them, eagerly watching the master and making notes in the scores they brought with them.

It was looked upon as a rare privilege if the master would introduce a new composition, and on these occasions it was most interesting and sometimes amusing to behold his acumen in ferreting out errors from the scores. On a certain occasion his opinion was asked concerning a new composition which was being studied, and he dryly answered: "I am not a critic; I conduct—sapienti sat!"

At a concert on the anniversary of Wagner's death the "Siefried Idylle" was one of the numbers on the programme. When this piece was performed Dr. Richter was so overcome by his feelings that tears ran down his face.

On another occasion the late Mme. Nordica, who was a great favorite with the English public, and was occasionally heard at the concerts, was trying for the first time a solo, an extract from some act of Wagner's "Nibelungen," which was peculiarly difficult on account of the chromatic character of the music and the heavy complexity of the orchestral accompaniment. Mme. Nordica, however, proved herself equal to the heavy demands of the music and accomplished her task in excellent style. Dr. Richter, when she had finished, turned toward her and smilingly expressed his satisfaction and pleasure; the orchestra applauded, and the singer seemed to quite enjoy the spontaneous and friendly demonstrations, and gracefully acknowledged the compliment.

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

After eighteen years of experience with the initiative and referendum in South Dakota, Gov. Norbeck declares they are failures. Only one law was ever adopted there by the initiative—the primary law—and that proved so unworkable the Legislature had to repeal it.

Rear-Admiral A. W. Grant, head of Uncle Sam's submarine service, is the first officer of high rank ever to be put in charge of the submarine flotilla. He has been on the job for a year, and at the end of two more years will see the completion of a three-year building programme which will produce twelve fleet submarines and 130 coast submersibles. Admiral Grant is an advocate of the 800-ton type of submarine rather than a larger one of 1200 or 1500 tons favored by many officers for extensive cruising. He believes strongly also in coast defense types.

Alford H. Smith, who is a member of the Canadian commission to investigate the traffic problems of the Dominion, is president of the New York Central Railroad system. He began active life as a messenger boy, and later he was a laborer on a construction gang, working from this position on up, step by step, to the position of foreman, superintendent, general manager, and finally president. Therefore, he "knows the game" of railroading, including the laying of rails and the running of trains, literally "from the ground up." He still works from ten to sixteen hours a day as the executive director and custodian of some 26,000 miles of trackage and other properties representing an investment of about $1,400,000,000, and the same earning an annual revenue of about $300,000,000.

Richard H. Turner of Seattle celebrated his seventy-second birthday anniversary recently, and to prove to his friends as well as to himself that he is as vigorous as he was at 22, he walked through a driving rain to Tacoma, a distance by road of more than forty miles. The feat was only one of many that Mr. Turner has performed on his birthdays in recent years. On his seventieth birthday Mr. Turner scaled Mount Rainier, and, making the summit, walked around the jagged and broken crater, a feat in itself requiring all the skill of an expert mountaineer in his prime.

W. B. Biddle, who has been made president of the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad, entered railroad work in 1877 as a brakeman for the Santa Fe, and remained in the employ of that road until 1905. After leaving the Santa Fe he became third vice-president of the Rock Island and Frisco lines in 1905, and become vice-president of the Frisco in charge of traffic in 1910.

OVER THE SEA.

Sir Henry Dalziel, who, according to the cable dispatches, has purchased the London Pall Mall Gazette for the purpose of converting it into a ministerial organ, that is to say, into a newspaper supporting the cause of the new Premier, Lloyd George, is a Scotchman, who has represented Kircaldy in Parliament for the last quarter of a century or more. He is first and foremost a newspaper man, and started in as such at the age of 16, becoming at 19 a member of the London staff of the Glasgow Times. He entered Parliament at 24, and has sat in the Commons ever since. His particular friend and ally is Lloyd George, with whom he made a prolonged tour in South America some years ago, and it was through the influence of Lloyd George that he secured, first of all, a knighthood, and then a seat in the Privy Council.

Monsignor von Gerlach, the only German prelate in the Pope's retinue, has been forced to leave Rome because of the pressure brought by the Entente through the intermediary of the Italian government. It was stated that Monsignor von Gerlach, prior to Italy's entry into the war, was interested with Ambrogetti in a pro-Austrian paper at Viterbo. According to information in Rome, Monsignor von Gerlach was once a cavalry officer, who became a priest and won the favor of the present Pope when the latter was a cardinal.

Prince Golitzine, who succeeds Alexander Trepoff as Premier of Russia has always manifested strong reactionary principles, and as a member of the Imperial Council has always shown little sympathy for the progressive tendencies of the new regime. The new Premier says his watchword will be "Everything for the war, everything for victory." With this aim, he says, he "cannot stop to think of reform in the interior, but after victory will begin the reorganization of the internal life of Russia."

ACTIVE WOMEN.

Mrs. James Fuller Lord of Brookline, Mass., formerly Miss Marion Lawson, the second daughter of Thomas W. Lawson, sailed last week for France to become a war nurse. She was accompanied by Miss Ruth Rose of New York, an actress, long her intimate friend. Mrs. Lord has been planning for more than a year to go to France, and about two months ago she began to study elementary nursing to fit herself.

Miss Iva Shuster, 23 years old, who has been appointed stenographer in Magistrate Court, New York, at a salary of $2000 a year, is self-taught. Ten years ago she was a Westinghouse employee in Pittsburgh, and, in order to advance, taught herself shorthand at night. Becoming proficient, she obtained a berth as court stenographer in Arizona and a better one in San Francisco later. Going to New York, she worked in various city bureaus, and now has been selected from the civil service list for her new job.

Introducing Nurse Jeanette Leveau, sneeze detective, of Cleveland, O. Sneeze for Jeanette and she'll tell you what nationality you are. England might hire her to sneeze out a few spies—if Germany doesn't get her first. Baby sneezes and cries are a hobby with Miss Leveau.

Miss Letitia Curtis, owner of valuable oil lands, descendant of an Osage chieftain and relative of Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas, has given up a life of luxury to help the poor. She is a nurse at St. Mary's Hospital, Kansas City. Instead of a luxurious apartment, to which she had been used, Miss Curtis rooms with another nurse, both sleeping in one bed. No more dances nor social affairs for her. "I haven't seen my motor car for a week," says Miss Curtis. "I don't care. I love this new life. It is fine to be doing something. It is better than just spending money and hunting fun."

The Final Star.

Men, holding mastery over steel and stone,
Dreaming of gain alone,
Raise giant towers in challenge to the sky,
And set proud lights on high.
Beauty they seek not; but her royal sway
Returns like conquering day.

On cold, dark shafts, where shrouding vapor clings,
Her iris veil she flings,
Giving them tender outlines, many-hued,
In the air's solitude.
Those mighty temples, set for sordid power,
Wait on her changing hour,
And wear, in pageants of the day and night,
Her variant robes of light;
They worship, as at heaven's very bars,
Her priestly, marching stars;
And in her velvet darkness musing stand
To guard her magic land.

Time is her friend, and wills not to destroy
Her morning gleam of joy.
Ruin itself reads laughter in her eyes,
And finds a fairer guise.
All crafts, all projects, but her vassals are,
And she their final star.

Henry Wolf's Engravings.

We were reminded by the death, a year ago, of Henry Wolf in New York, that he was one of the greatest of the master engravers of the golden age of American wood engraving (now, alas! also, no more,) and proofs of his genius, if any were needed, are now made absolutely conclusive by the collection of ninety of his engravings, exquisitely printed, being held at Exposition Park.

Henry Wolf, who is the father of Hamilton Achille Wolf, a painter, resident in Los Angeles for some years, was born in Alsace in 1852 and came to America in 1871. Within a few years he became a noted wood engraver, and his activity in his art continued to the end of his life. He received an honorable mention for his exhibits at the Paris Salon in 1888, and the diploma and grand prize was awarded him in the section of etchings and engravings at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco a short time before his death, which occurred last March.

These, however, were but two among the numerous honors bestowed upon him throughout the twenty-eight years of his artistic activity. The Paris Salon gave him a gold medal in 1895, the Chicago exposition a first-class medal in 1893, the exposition at Rouen a silver medal, the St. Louis exposition, in 1904, a diploma and a grand medal of honor for distinguished services in promoting the art of engraving. He was also made an associate member of the National Academy, and later, a full member, a member of the American Federation of Arts, and of the International Society of Sculptors, Painters and Gravers of London, the Alliance Francaise and the Union Internationale des Beaux Arts et des Lettres of Paris. He served on many juries of awards, and was a life members of the Lotos Club.

Wolf's finest engravings were made from great paintings, and they were done with a sensitive sympathy which rendered all the subtlety and charm of the originals, suggesting the color itself by the closeness of their values and the resourcefulness of their technique. In the present exhibition will be found half a dozen original engravings, all landscapes, which show that he had the painter's instinct to a marked degree, and that he was an able artist as well as a consummate interpretative craftsman.

The very titles of his engravings open a gallery of varied delights and recollections to the lover of pictures. His breadth of vision and understanding was marvelous. In the collection at Exposition Park we find Vermeer's "Young Woman at a Window," Manet's "Boy with Sword," Whistler's "Carlyle" and "My Mother" and "Miss Alexander," Velasquez's "Don Carlos" and "Spanish Girl," Corot's "River Scene," Gainsborough's "Lady Sheffield," Winslow Homer's "Eight Bells," Gerome's "The Carpet Merchant," John W. Alexander's "Quiet Hour," Homer Martin's "Harp of the Winds," Da Vinci's "Beatrice d'Este," Reynolds's "Lady Stanhope," Holbein's "Princess Christine," Botticelli's "Madonna," Sargent's "Miss Cary Thomas," Lenbach's "Prof. Emerson" and so on.

If you would make yourself conversant with great pictures marvelously interpreted, go and study this exhibition while the opportunity is yours.

Cadwallader Washburn.

Cadwallader Washburn, thirty-nine of whose etchings are now on exhibition in the gallery at Exposition Park, is the distinguished son of a no less distinguished father, and the benefits of much study, travel and general culture have been his. He began as an architect, and did not employ his talent in etching till 1903. Before that he was a regular exhibitor at the Paris Salon and other leading galleries of Europe, for his studies in architecture in the Boston School of Technology had developed into painting, and he had became a private pupil of William M. Chase, later to fall under the influence of Sorolla, with whom he had remained for two years at Madrid.

Washburn's plates delineate sunshine and air, even as Sorolla's paintings do. His first prints expressed the warmth and color of Spain, and these were followed, in 1904, by "The Norlandes," a series of landscapes in the medium of dry-point, and by a group of etchings from Havana, one group of the cathedrals of Old Mexico, and by sets from Venice, with scattered plates from Verona and Padua. Then came the Japanese plates, including the famous "Dragon Font of Kimovizu," the "Temple at Kitano" and "Buddhist Temple, Tokyo." The landscapes in the Japanese series were the early precursors of his coming power in this direction.

Washburn masses his trees superbly, giving but scant attention to the sharpened outline, and in his compositions there is almost always the quality of rhythmic arrangement, though there is that truth to nature which makes the composition seem inevitable. It is not "decorative" in the usual sense of that much used and abused word. Washburn knows the value of big spaces, of a careful distribution of lights and darks, of a mere suggestive touch where a more detailed statement would lead to a redundant confusion. He directs your eye, gently but firmly, to where he wants it to rest and linger.

The present exhibition is as diversified as it is interesting and beautiful. It has been chosen from his more recent work, and though we should have liked to see some of his earlier plates, the rich maturity of these offers us a complete satisfaction. They come from Old Mexico and New Mexico, from the recent exposition in San Francisco, from France and from New England, and include studies in architecture, portraiture and landscape.

The Indian portraits, made, I understand, for one of our leading magazines, are striking studies in characterization, with closer linear strokes than we find in the landscapes or bits from old architecture. Note the wonderful "Tribesman of Tuba," "High Caste Navajo Indian," "The Patriarch of the Tribe" and "Navajo Indian Judge."

"Sea Cliff, Santa Barbara," is strongly massed; "Marsh Creek" breathes all out-of-doors; "Meadow Path," "Barnegat Pier," "Boat Landing," "Sailing Boat Ashore," "Coast Landscape," "High Noon," "Riverside Path"—all these are admirable plates, with qualities that place Cadwallader Washburn in the front rank of American etchers.

The exhibition will remain at Exposition Park to February 15.

Paintings by Townsley.

In the exhibition of paintings that C. P. Townsley has been holding for the past few weeks at the Friday Morning Club and that will continue there to the end of the month, only a few pictures not hitherto shown either at Exposition Park or Old Throop are to be found. But for all that, the show is a very attractive and interesting one, for Townsley's work is of a quality that "grows upon one." It is neither startling nor sensational, but is characterized by soundness of method and sincerity of motive. Too, it is often delightfully fresh and stimulating in color.

The artist shows landscapes and figure studies, with an occasional piece of well-painted still-life. He is alert to all impressions of beauty, and he has a true instinct for what is paintable. If, now and again, he permits himself an interest in still-life accessories that is exactly on a par with the attention he gives to the human figure they surround, we forgive him because he paints those cushions and vases and tables so joyously and so well. Generally speaking, of course, such a procedure in painting is not to be applauded—but in art, as in life, we may sometimes dismiss the general in favor of the particular. There are no hard and fast rules.

Townsley has a genuine feeling for landscape, and though he conducts an Indoor school of figure painting in Pasadena with marked success, I incline to believe that he has a gayer time of it every summer when he teaches the classes in landscape at his Chase Summer School in Carmel. However this may be, his landscape and shore studies from Carmel and other parts of California, as well as those from Europe, form an important and attractive part of the present showing at the Friday Morning Club.

The early morning effect entitled "Midwinter in Southern California" has excellent atmospheric quality, triumphing over some exacting and elusive technical difficulties. "Point Lobos" gives us a fine scheme of blues and yellows and reds in a simple and vigorous way; "Summer," diffused sunlight on green slopes barred with bluish shadows, and trees that hold palpitating purples; "The Loop," a cypress etched with decorative effect against a gray-blue sky; "Cottage on the Moor," low-lying hills painted in gray-greens and pallid blues, the foreground yellow and green, all harmoniously toned.

Charming figures are "Siesta," a girl in a blue kimono trimmed in red, who is reading near a window against which red geraniums form a beautiful pattern of shapes and colors; "Evening," a young girl (probably the artist's gifted daughter,) seen at a piano in lamplight—and so on, all arrangements that are esthetically agreeable to the eye.

Pictures by Probst.

Fifteen studies in landscape and picturesque architecture by Thorwald Probst are now on exhibition in the Steckel gallery, to remain to the end of the month, and possibly a week longer. These are all European studies, and the most of them have already been spoken of in this column, for this is their second showing. Recent landscapes of Southern California by Probst will be shown in the Kanst gallery, the exhibition to open February 1.

Probst's feeling for landscape, his sympathy with its many moods, is far in advance of his technical expression. His brush work, indeed, is somewhat timid and inconclusive in many of the pictures, yet approaches decided strength and decision in others. This inequality may be due to the probable fact that he painted some of them at an earlier date than the others, but I think the main reason is that he has not yet gotten hold of himself as a painter. The true artist is there, always, without question, but the painter, the technician, does not keep pace with him. Only time and experience can bring about a complete reconciliation, and Probst is so sincere, so much in earnest, that there seems no question of the issue.

The largest of the canvases, "A Gray Day," also is one of the best, mists over moors in a cool sky, a windmill seen in the middle distance. Interesting, too, are "The Canal," the sunny "Florentine Scene," the delicate "Woods of 'Our Lady' Denmark," the "Street Scene, Ribe, Denmark." The artist is of Danish descent—or perhaps Danish birth?—and he paints his native country with that truth which is born of great love.

In Memory of Chase.

Tuesday was Chase Day at the Friday Morning Club. At the regular meeting of the Art Committee, which took place at 2:30 in the afternoon, a number of local artists, the most of whom had at one time studied with the famous American master of painting, gave anecdotes, reminiscences and appreciations of the personality and works of William M. Chase, one of the most engaging and picturesque figures in American art, and perhaps the most forceful and influential teacher we have ever known.

An interesting feature of the afternoon was the display of paintings by Chase, borrowed for the occasion from collectors in Los Angeles and neighboring cities of Southern California. The artist was an indefatigable worker, and painted still-life, landscape, figures and portraits with almost equal facility, and when he died, a few months ago, he was still in the heyday of his power as a technician, after fifty years of splendid effort for the cause of American art—in which, by the way, he believed with his whole heart and soul. A loosely-painted, fluent portrait of C. P. Townsley of Pasadena, who was associated as an instructor with Chase for many years, was one of the attractions of the show.

Royal Cortissoz, writing of Chase in the New York Tribune, says that he gave impetus to the "new movement in American art. If," he goes on to say, "among the pupils at the Art Students' League or among the elders in the Society of American Artists there stirred a fresh enthusiasm for good drawing, good brush work, good color, it was in generous measure Chase's doing. As a painter and as a teacher he was all for sound workmanship, and one has only to glance over the dry bones that continued to lie about in that transitional period to realize the high value of his services." The "transitional period" mentioned by Cortissoz was the early '70's, when Chase came to New York fresh from Munich and Paris.

Art Magazines.

Willard Huntington Wright has made himself the prophet of the moderns. In the January number of the International he offers an article on "Art and the Democratic Fallacy" (which reminds one, by the way, that h the callow days of extreme youth he once wrote a whole series of chapters on "The Uselessness of Art.") In the International Studio, also for January, he writes of "Modern Art," and in the current number of Arts and Decoration his subject is "The New Painting and American Snobbery." G. Frederic Lees contributes a paper on Henri Harpignies to the International Studio; W. T. Whitley, a second paper on "Arts and Crafts in the Royal Academy;" Hazel H. Adler, "The Decorative Arts in America;" John Getz, "Chinese Ceramic Collections in Museums;" W. H. de B. Nelson, "Provincetown in Art;" Antony Anderson, "From an Old Book."

The Fine Arts Journal has a profusely-illustrated article by Frank William Holslag on "Paintings at the University of Notre Dame;" Evelyn Marie Stuart discusses "Exhibitions at the Chicago Galleries;" J. C. Lord gives us "New York Art Notes," and Mahlstick, "Current Art Topics from London."

The cover of Arts and Decoration is from a self-portrait by Holbein. Harold Donaldson Eberlein writes of "Outdoor Embellishments and Panels;" De Witt H. Fessenden, of "American Adaptation of the French Chateau Type;" Walter A. Dyer, of "Furniture of the Italian Renaissance;" Edith M. Powell, of "Your Home and Its Decoration."

News and Notes.

The usual winter exhibition of the Wachtels will take place this year at Hotel Maryland, Pasadena, beginning February 10, and ending with the month. Each of the painters, Elmer Wachtel and Marion Kavanagh Wachtel, will show about fifteen canvases.

The rains interfered so much with the attendance at the exhibition of pictures held by Louis Bovey Sharp at the Kanst gallery that it has been decided to run it a few days beyond the scheduled time. It will not close before February 3.

Dell Meadows is having an exhibition of recent landscapes and shore marines from Laguna Beach and San Pedro at the Conservatory of Art and Music in Santa Ana. Miniatures by Catherine Clement of New York are also shown.

Seventeen paintings, nine of them new, will be exhibited by William Lees Judson at the Battey gallery, Pasadena, the exhibition to open January 29 and continue for two weeks.

Henrietta M. Shore has removed her studio from the Hollingsworth Building, and is now at No. 914 International Bank Building, Temple and Spring streets.

Drawings of Italy and France by Herman A. Webster are being shown in the Frederick Keppel gallery, New York, to February 3.

EXQUISITE FOUNTAIN BY MAUD DAGGETT.

Good judges pronounce Maud Daggett's latest work, the Mildred Raymond fountain on the Hotel Raymond grounds in Pasadena the finest achievement of the sculptor's art in Southern California. Its technique is masterful and the figure is almost alive in its portrayal of the care-free girl.

Dr. Robert Tait McKenzie of Philadelphia, who is recognized as one of the world's great sculptors of athletic figures, said recently of Miss Daggett's fountain, that it was one of the most attractive pieces of this kind of work he had ever found.

"I just happened to find it on one of my morning walks while staying at the Raymond," said Dr. McKenzie, "and I was struck by the elusive charm of the child's figure. The spirit of youth, fresh and sparkling, is portrayed, and I asked for more information regarding the sculptor who was responsible for it. It is positively refreshing, and is really what I should term an exquisite Orphee calling to all the birds. We shall hear big things of Miss Daggett, I am certain."

Nothing that Miss Daggett has done before can be compared to this new and thrilling expression of her art, which places her among the great sculptors of America.

Very Effective Method for Banishing Hairs

(Modes of Today)

At very little cost any woman can rid her face of hairy growths if she will use the delatone treatment. This is made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. This paste is spread upon the hairy surface for 2 or 3 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed, when every trace of hair will have vanished. No harm results from this treatment, but care should be used to buy real delatone.

MID THE SHOPS AND WITH THE SHOPPERS.

BY OLIVE GRAY.

Now is the time to buy:

The last cottony articles for the home in the final clearance of that big cotton sale, where it is the plan to sell at about one-half the usual price.

The silks for making summery frocks, San Tan, and several other weaves will be found in that sale on lower Broadway.

The new all-over frock of silk, which is among those just received at that popular store, not seventh quite—on Broadway.

Laces in a sale where laces are always of the best, especially in gold and silver.

Have you ever realized that fashion is the goad and at the same time the goal, of everything called dress, in the present day?

Were it not for fashion we would wear the same old clothes month after month—perhaps year after year. The same kind of hats, and shoes and shoes, and also underwear. A few might give out from time to time, but the limited amount of each would not serve to keep the wheels going; nor to keep alive the shops.

Were it not for fashion the same things in our homes would do for year after year. The same old chairs, same chairs and tables, the sideboards and beds.

To be sure, we might save money, and our monotonous life would be! Even though we individually and all industries would die or perish and in the end the term "prosperity" would become obsolete. Money in circulation is what makes "good times," just as blood in circulation keeps us in good health. Our clothes and our conduct is controlled by fashion's moods.

Three cheers for Dame Fashion! She is the dynamo behind the wheels of progress!

Clothes.

Fashion is just now fastened—we might say—upon skating. In fact, I sometimes think novelties in skate clothes make fashions popular. Then, too, the sport of skating is a fascinating one in our southern climate. Red cheeks, like winter apples, the tingle of the blood, and the invigorating breezes of the northern season appeals to us—and yet we do not wish for blizzards. The ice skating rink is the most of us, all the winter sports we want. The skate clothes are pretty, too—the jaunty caps and sweaters, high boots and smart, short skirts—all lend a girlish air which we are sure to welcome, and to reluctantly.

Why Hurry.

There are so many ways of spending money, nowadays," said a woman sat near me at a dansant recently, "that it keeps one busy all the time first for golfing, then for motoring and now for the skating season. Why, it costs a fortune! I have made up my mind there is nothing for me but to marry a millionaire, and do it soon, to save myself from bankruptcy." I hope the desired millionaire did not overhear, or he might shy at the plan of being utilized merely as a check book. And yet—what is a girl to do when so much cash is needed to "keep in the swim" (and in the case of golf,) especially when one's money is not at all good enough.

"Khaki."

Khaki is the name of a new silk which has ambitions to share the honors with khaki kool. It is in the same colors with sports patterns in contrasting tones, and it takes an expert to distinguish it from khaki kool and yet it is not the price! At the big store on upper Broadway, during the coming week, it will be found for less.

Into This Hat.

If you would buy a hat to go with everything, those new ones in black are the very ones you want. The color is a shade of blue that goes well with old rose, or with gold or almost any of the color-ings which are to be seen. For a "first hat," which is the most difficult to select, it is well to choose one which is universal and can be worn with any suit or gown.

Shop-up.

The first store on upper Broadway although "black" is the first thing you think about when you hear mention it, black is not, by any means, all that is in stock—at the Turkish store, there will be a sale next week in which all departments participate. We all know that saving is carried by this house is a habit, and when a sale occurs it means saving which we appreciate.

Just Meatless.

The skillful chef who is holding cooking school in that big store on upper Broadway will teach us how to prepare meatless meat dishes. The English speak of drinking whatever they happen to drink as not admitted with other intentions as "neat." And the chef will teach us how to do the reverse of that. In Southern California, where we need so little meat and have something to take the place of it, such instruction is most valuable.

"But Only."

It is true that they speak of khaki kool at that popular store where the street splits off from Broadway, but it is a fact that the sports suits alike that of other years, are suitable for better wear than they were designed to sports clothes. I speak of it as "new" and although khaki kool appeared last season, so novel are the shades and color-ings which have appeared that they may properly be applied to its late development.

Must Cut Down.

The way to cut down the high cost of living is available to almost everyone in Southern California. Have a garden! And now is the time to start. Not only will a well-kept garden provide the summer supply of vegetables and fruit, but even a small one on a city lot will produce enough of both to last during the entire winter. The canning and preserving under the direction of government bulletins is far from difficult. And with the price of dollar-per-dozen eggs and 60-cent-pound butter, it behooves us to produce some means of saving in the household accounts.

Uniformity in Uniforms.

"Because I was so fortunate as to secure materials in large quantities," said the lady who manufactures uniforms and school and outing clothes, "I have been enabled to keep down the cost of the garments which I put out." Then she told me of her increasing trade in outfitting nurses, college girls and in making to order riding and hiking clothes. "I like to have people come right here," said she, "as I am then sure that garments fit and look more distinctive than do the usual made-to-order clothes." Sailor suits for girls—those Peter Thompsonish ones—are one of her specialties and, having purchased, long ago, hundreds of yards of finest serges, it is possible to continue at original prices in spite of the scarcity of the material. I feel proud of any woman who has made a success of business and has shown so much foresight in her planning as to be able to compete, during years of "high cost," and gain ground continually.

Under Fashion's Reign.

Lace will be used with flowers and ribbon for spring millinery.

Silk jersey is one of the best materials for practical petticoats.

Some of the brilliant sports colors are slightly dulled with black.

Supple satins will be much in favor for spring afternoon dresses.

Fabrics are used instead of leather whenever possible for shoe-tops.

An indefinable sense of well-being is always given by a silk petticoat.

Most hat trimmings for spring are flat, and jet will be extensively used.

Rookie brown, which will be used again this spring, is close to khaki color.

do with summer resorts and their amusements.

—o—

Dwan Comes West.

Allan Dwan is reported to have severed his connection with the Artcraft, and to be coming West. He has received offers both from the Fine Arts and from the Fichtenburg concern, and it is probable that he will direct for one of these.

—o—

Fox Blue Ribboner.

William Farnum's Fox feature, picturized from Dickens's "Tale of Two Cities," is nearly complete, under the competent direction Frank Lloyd, who wastes no time loafing on the job. The great sets, especially that of the French Bastile, are among the most remarkable ever built for a picture. Archeological and historical accuracy, as well as faithfulness to the Dickens story, are distinguishing characteristics of what promises to be one of the most appealing and spectacular pictures the Fox company has ever put out.

Mme. La Farge is played by the Countess Rosita Marstini, who is reported to display remarkable histrionic ability in the role. Mme. Marstini, as will be remembered, was formerly a San Francisco society woman, who not long ago, finding it necessary to earn her bread, went on the stage. She recently completed a tour of the Pantages circuit in a dramatic sketch by Will Wyatt, in which she scored a hit.

—o—

Dusty Gets Busy.

Dustin Farnum, another Fox star, has just completed "North of Fifty-three," many of the scenes of which were taken in Truckee. His next picture will be a film version of "The Scarlet Pimpernel."

—o—

Commercial Note.

Dustin Farnum is a great friend of "Sonny" Jim Van Trees, heir of the Morosco camera man, and frequently bestows gifts of playthings and goodies on the youngster. The other day "Dusty" took the boy over to the park, and together they built and sailed a miniature motor boat, from all which "Sonny" apparently deduced that Farnum was a sort of every-day Santa Claus. The plot thickened when a little baby sister to youthful Jimmy arrived. The event somewhat dislocated Jimmy's olfactory feature. So the other night "Dusty" was not surprised to hear over the phone a childish voice announcing in enterprising and hopeful tones:

"Thay, Dushtin Farnum, if you'll give me a pair o' roller skates I'll give you the new baby!"

—o—

More Moores!

Tom Moore, one of the best actors known to filmdom, and brother of Owen Moore, Mary Pickford's husband, is coming West, and will support Mae Murray in her next Lasky picture.

—o—

P. A. Flounders.

And now it's the pictures which are to set the fashions, instead of following them. At least it begins to look that way. Miss A. B. Hoffman, the clever costume designer out at the Lasky studio, is modernizing the costumes worn by Geraldine Farrar in "Joan the Woman"—of course, one does not refer to the armor tailor suit—and will display sets of them in a downtown shop window.

And it's up to Ken McGaffey to write about it! He doesn't in the least mind writing an ancient treatise on why Marc Antony left home, or helping to decipher illuminated manuscripts from ancient monasteries, or any little thing like that. But when it comes to describing how a dress is cut on the bias and shirred down the back, he throws up his hands and goes down for the third time.

—o—

Silent Drama for His.

Where in the world is there a place for a deaf dog?

In the silent drama, of course!

The American studio at Santa Barbara has one on its pay roll. He's a good dog actor, too, even if he can't hear, and each pay day he is solemnly given credit for five bones a week.

—o—

Miss Younge Shifts.

Lucille Younge, who had the role of Mary Magdalene in Griffith's "Intolerance," and until recently was a member of the Fine Arts studio companies, has been engaged for the female heavy part in "High Play," Julius Grinnell Furthman's story, which is to be the next William Russell feature at the American studios.

—o—

Just Her Slow Day.

Following is one of Jackie Saunders's quiet days at the Balboa studios:

Up at 6 o'clock.

Practices on piano until 7 o'clock, then has breakfast and conference with maids and cook.

Drives to studio.

Makes up and drives to location.

Is shot in eight or ten scenes, then back to luncheon at 1 o'clock.

Drives to Los Angeles, twenty-five miles.

An hour at the hairdresser's.

An hour at the dressmaker's.

An hour at the photographer's.

A hasty dinner.

Drives back to studio. (It is now 9 o'clock.)

Works until 11 o'clock in indoor studio, and is home by midnight.

Up at 6 o'clock again.

—o—

Little Mary's Official Sister.

Little Mary Sunshine is to have an official sister.

That child actors and actresses are destined to big careers in the pictures is proved by the sucess of Baby Mary Osborne, of Balboa studios. Now another little girl will shortly make her appearance in films from that studio. Her name is being withheld maybe while they make her up a pretty one.

—o—

Regret Note.

The pink, silk shirt which an unidentified admirer sent to George Walsh, Fox star, at Christmas, has faded.

—o—

Omnipresent Hookey Man.

It is being borne in upon those kid actors at the Fox company that there is no such thing ha escaping the hookey man. A schoolroom is being built at the studio, all in accordance with the law thereunto appertaining. Thitherward like snails, crawl reluctantly, at least once a day, Francis Carpenter, Virginia Corbin, Carmen de Rue, Violet Radcliffe, Gordon Griffith, Joey Jacobs and Frankie Lee.

—o—

Film Garlands for Garland.

Hamlin Garland is en route to Los Angeles to assist Director William Wolbert in filming his (Garland's) famous Indian book, "The Captain of the Gray Horse Troop," in which Edith Storey and Antonio Moreno are co-starring for the Greater Vitagraph programme. Garland will aid all the departments of the western studio in designing the costumes for the Indians and soldiers, in the building of "sets," and with all the archeological details called for according to the epoch of the story.

Charles F. Loomis has been engaged as consulting director.

—o—

Not in a Story Either.

Mary Anderson, the Vitagraph star, has a quick wit and sure eyes and nerves. Coming back from location the other day, her automobile was going at a fast clip, and skidding around a corner she saw a 5-year-old youngster running across the street. The car could not stop in time, and the little chap was too frightened to dodge it; but Mary jumped to the runway of the car, caught up the boy in one arm and swung him into the car.

—o—

Balboa Gets Shirley.

Arthur Shirley, who played the lead in Thomas Dixon's "The Fall of a Nation," is Jackie Saunders's new leading man. He joined the Balboa forces last week.

—o—

Luxury Note.

These publicity experts at the various studios are getting to be luxurious beings. No sooner has the sensation about Ken McGaffey's car subsided than another of the pampered creatures lets us know he is being sent East to observe the spring styles in films. His name is Si Snyder, of Balboa, and the Scream Club and other intellectual gatherings will miss him.

—o—

He First Filmed Darkness.

Balboa has just brought Edgar Jones, the well known Metro director, to the Coast. He has gone to work at the Long Beach studio on a series of four-reel feature plays. Harry MacPherson will be his assistant. Jones formerly directed such stars as Mary Miles Minter, Marguerite Snow, Valli Valli and others. To his credit stands the first night scene ever filmed.

—o—

Canned Thrill.

Fighting for his life on a rocky ledge that hung out over a chasm, with a sheer drop of 1000 feet staring him in the face, was the new and thrilling experience of Robert McKim, during the filming of "The Iced Bullet," an Ince feature. The scene was taken near Pinecrest, in the San Bernardino range. The fight is said to be the most thrilling of its sort ever shown on the screen. McKim said the other day:

"It will be a long time and take a lot of persuasion before I will do it over again. I shall never forget the sensations I experienced on that rock. It seemed as if a breath of wind could have blown us into space."

—o—

Big Ince Features.

Thomas H. Ince has a number of features ready or almost ready for release. Among these are "The Last of the Ingrams," in which William Desmond is starred, supported by Robert McKim, Walt Whitman, Mary Armlyn and Thelma Salter; "Princess of the Dark," in which the radiant Australian beauty, Enid Bennett, is featured, supported by Jack Gilbert, Alfred Vosburgh and others; "The Gun Fighter," starring William S. Hart, with Margery Wilson supporting; "Chicken Casey," featuring Dorothy Dalton, supported by Charles Gunn, Howard Hickman and others, and "The Crab," with Frank Keenan.

—o—

Looked Serious, By Heck.

The grave scene marking the death of the heroine's father in the Triangle Fine Arts drama, "The Gir of the Timber Claims," written by Mary H. O'Connor, and featuring Constance Talmadge, has created a lot of excitement. The scene was staged in the Santa Cruz Mountains, where Director Paul Powell and his entire company worked for about three weeks getting the big tree atmosphere necessary to the production. The grave was dug and covered with flowers. Two weeks after the scene was taken, a woodman walking through the mountains found the loose ground with the roses and flowers on it. There had been no official notice of a death, and he made his way to the city of Santa Cruz, where the matter was reported to the city authorities.

Police officers were dispatched to the scene and they dug up the ground. No body was discovered. The mystery deepened, and it was not until the next day, when one of the woodmen who had taken part in the scene explained the matter to the authorities, that the mystery was solved.

—o—

Out of Obscurity.

Mrs. Charles Talmadge, mother of the famous Norma and Constance, refuses longer to shine by a reflected light and be known merely as a member of the Only Their Mothers' Club. She appears in a number of scenes of "The Girl of the Timber Claims," in which her daughter Constance is starred, this being her first appearance on any stage.

—o—

Matinee Girl Bulletin.

If you are a handsome actor with dreamy eyes, curly hair, a manly chest, and all the other pictorial features required in the geography of the successful matinee idol, it might be well for you to apply at the Fine Arts studio where they are making quite a collection of handsome actors. Kenneth Harlan, who is appearing in "Betsy's Burglar," with Constance Talmadge, is a regular Adonis, and another Greek-god type is Roy Stuart, playing opposite Bessie Love in "A Daughter of the Poor." And, of course, there are Wilfred Lucas and Mr. Armour.

—o—

Tells How It Happened.

"There are more good dramas in the pages of the average newspaper than in anything else I know of," remarked Jeanie MacPherson, author of "Joan, the Woman," in which Geraldine Farrar is seen as Joan of Arc, at the Majestic.

"A drama is only a reproduction of human emotions and their reactions, and in no place are the emotions more clearly set forth or at least suggested to the imaginative mind than in the terse phrases of the press. Really I got my first thought for writing 'Joan, the Woman,' from a story I saw in a newspaper. This story told of the French soldiers seeing visions of this famous Maid of Orleans over their trenches, inspiring them to deeds of bravery. The article also said that there was not a statue of the Maid in all France at whose feet the soldiers had not laid wreaths of flowers.

"My story, 'The Golden Chance,' also came from a newspaper article, as did 'The Dream Girl.' Dramatists may weave productions out of their own imaginations, but stories of actual life which the newspapers contain every day I believe have a far greater appeal and are far more human."

—o—

Can Eat Anyhow.

Harry Rattenberry is a walking advertisement for the restaurant of which he is proprietor in "Small Change," a comedy produced by Al Christie. That is, unless Harry is one of those cafe owners who "goes out to eat."

—o—

Educational Note.

Douglas Fairbanks is famous for his pink thoughts both on and off the screen. Now he is studying chirography, in order that he may be able to recognize the various types of screen patrons who have been sending him laudatory epistles, and in that way Fairbanks hones to learn whether his professed admirers are sincere in their comments. After diagnosing the handwriting on a recent letter from the east side of New York, Doug came to the following conclusion; which makes the w. k. Sherlock Holmes deductions look like a kindergartner trying to do a problem in algebra:

"This fan is 75 years old; has bad feet; troubled with corns and dandruff; is employed as a watchman at an undertaker's establishment; drinks only with meals—lives quiet life. Sports consist principally of playing checkers and looking at ladies' hats."

—o—

Can You Beat It?

Charlie Chaplin is the only man in the world, without doubt, who could wire across the continent for a statue of himself and get it within twenty-four hours.

When the famous comedian was requested to contribute a doll dressed like himself to a charity bazaar in Chicago, he telegraphed from Los Angeles to a famous doll shop in New York for a three-foot-high replica of himself, minus nothing from the famous derby down to the clumsy shoes. The doll arrived at its destination within twenty-four hours. Not even the stickpin in the flimsy red tie had been forgotten, and the cane hung on the bisque arm in the best Chaplinesque manner.

Just Can't Carp.

Wallace Reid has the role of a convict in his forthcoming production, in which he is supported by Myrtle Stedman, and spent all Sunday night at work in the prisoner's carpenter shop erected on the Lasky stage. The general opinion next morning was that as a carpenter Mr. Reid is a very fine ukelele player.

—o—

Lasky Bulletin.

The Lasky show shop is a busy place nowadays, with all the big stages and most of the "lot" in use.

Kathlyn Williams and Theodore Roberts have started work on their forthcoming co-starring vehicle, under the direction of George Melford. Little Billy Jacobs, Jack Dean, Mabel Van Buren, Hobart Bosworth and Tully Marshall are prominent in the support of Fannie Ward, in a feature being directed by Frank Reicher, and Sessue Hayakawa and his company, having returned from Honolulu, are completing their picture.

—o—

Her Winter Laces.

When she departed from New York for the Lasky Hollywood studio, Louise Huff apparently was under the spell of the picture postcards. She left all her furs in cold storage, and arrived in Los Angeles with a fine assortment of summer clothing. During the last cold snap Miss Huff was accompanied on her wanderings around the studio by a large oil stove.

—o—

Peace and Quiet Note.

Facetious persons now refer to the Morosco studio as "the deserted village," because three of the stars, Kathlyn Williams, Myrtle Stedman and Vivian Martin are now at work at the Lasky plant, leaving the entire studio to George Beban and his director, Donald Crisp, and to Director Edward Le Saint, who is making a production in which House Peters and Louise Huff are co-starred.

—o—

Nothing Sacred Now.

About the time Washington's birthday is observed this year, a new photoplayer, who is a great-great-grandniece of Gen. Washington, will be seen in a William Fox production. This new player with distinguished ancestry is Eleanor Washington, who is descended directly from John Augustin Washington, a full brother of the general. Miss Washington has been in motion pictures since 1912, when she began her career in the silent drama with the Majestic company.

—o—

No Pie for Shorty.

Shorty Hamilton and the custard pie drama must part, however, painful the separation. This is the edict of the author-director, William B. Clifford. From this time on the comedian and the slapstick are to know each other no more. Shorty has been instructed to emulate Nat Goodwin—in his comedy.

—o—

Real Plays for Mary.

Shortly to follow its release of Mary Pickford's latest offering, "The Pride of the Clan," which was shown recently at Clune's Broadway, the Artcraft Pictures Corporation announces the acquisition of Kate Douglas Wiggin's "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" as a forthcoming screen vehicle for "Little Mary." "A Poor Little Rich Girl," the Eleanor Gates stage play, will also be produced as a film with Mary Pickford starring.

Miss Snow with Cohan.

Marguerite Snow will play opposite George M. Cohan in the latter's first motion picture, which will be directed by Joseph Kaufman.

Miss Illington Comes.

Margaret Illington is expected at the Lasky studio this week.

To her many accomplishments Margarita Fischer, Pollard Picture Plays star, now adds rowing. San Diego has several rowing clubs composed exclusively of young society girls. Several of these have appeared in Miss Fischer's productions since the company was established in San Diego. Miss Fischer was invited to become a member of the Ziac Club, but hesitated about accepting on account of her harrowing experiences on the water in "A Pearl of Paradise."

Miss Fischer's admiring friends were insistent, and she finally consented to "try it just once." After one voyage from the clubhouse to Point Loma and return, a distance of ten miles, Miss Fischer became such an enthusiast that Director Pollard has had trouble in keeping her at the studio for work in "The Devil's Assistant."

Miss Fischer is now training with the "pick team" that is to engage in the Southern California championship contest to be held in April in San Diego Bay, when teams from Del Mar, Santa Barbara and other coast cities will contend for the handsome Spreckels cup.

"VAMPIRE'S" BEAUTY HINTS.

Hard to Keep Good Looking in Rough Parts, Says Actress.

"One of the most perplexing problems with which the motion-picture actress must contend is the preservation of her complexion," says Marie Wayne, the charming adventuress in Pathe's "Pearl of the Army" serial. "As Bertha Bonn I have already been through one wreck, several fires, and half a dozen vigorous hand-to-hand fights. That means that I have tasted of the grime and dirt of several of America's best-known railroads. I have received enough blows to appal even Jess Willard, and have eaten enough smoke to feaze a New York fire fighter.

"Just figure out for yourself what that means to one's facial appearance. A vampire without a perfect skin is inconceivable, isn't she? If I were giving advice to a girl ambitious to vamp for the films, I would urge her to study up on some good beauty hints. However, my own experience has shown that most beauty hints are utterly worthless. The camera is almost completely merciless. Freckles are a horror to the picture actress; so is roughness of the skin superinduced by too much exposure to sun and wind. So are the tiny wrinkles about the eyes which come from working in the glaring sun.

"I have found in my own case but one method of preserving a fair appearance—plenty of fresh air, fresh air tempered by the glowing sun in summer, and spiced by the invigorating wind in winter. Yet, with the fresh air must come all the sensible methods for taking care of the skin—parasols and big hats whenever possible. Country air, of course, is the thing. That and the most rigorous adherence to the mandates of cleanliness, and exercise, constitute my entire programme."

Growth.

FOX FILM'S WESTERN DEPARTMENT BOOMING

THE Fox Film Corporation in December celebrated the completion of its first year in Southern California. Within the past twelve months the company's western department has grown from an establishment covering less than an acre of ground and employing about thirty persons, to one using thirty acres and paying salaries to more than 500 persons.

To reach this high state of development the expenditure of more than $1,000,000 was required. Today in addition to the six comedy companies, there are also five dramatic companies acting in Fox western studios, with [illegible] rumors of the engagement of several more.

The present dramatic [illegible] are R. A. Walsh, Otis Turner, [illegible] Lloyd, William D. Taylor and [illegible] ard Stanton. Directors of the [illegible] edy subjects are Charles Parrott, [illegible] Feazee, Walter Reed, Harry [illegible] wards, Hank Mann, Tom Mix, [illegible] Henry Lehrman.

The quarters at present occupied by the Fox Film Corporation include five acres at Hollywood, [illegible] acres on Western avenue, [illegible] acres in locations at Silver Lake, San Fernando Valley and [illegible] worth.

In with some Small Change and invite her to the show, and His Ticklish Job was to get her in good humor—which he failed to do, for she called him a White Raven (sounds like a new kind of "blue moon,") and he left her, muttering that it was surely The Devil's Payday.

There is no moral to this tale except that it might be a good idea to see the features you think you'll like in person to learn what's in a name.

Majestic.

That a new epoch in photodramatic entertainment has been established by Cecil de Mille's masterpiece, "Joan the Woman," seems to be the opinion of thousands who have seen the big production which begins its third week at the Majestic tomorrow. One of the leading trade papers of the motion-picture industry, in an editorial concerning photoplay production, among other things has this to say of the Lasky spectacle: "'Joan the Woman' is a great picture. Many authorities say that it reaches the high water mark of picture production. As such we delight to point to the artistic recognition it so plainly deserves." The theme is a double one, that of patriotism and religious fervor, and Geraldine Farrar does some of her best work as the little saint who, inspired by a vision from Heaven, leads the French hosts to victory. The music for the production was written by the noted William Furst and the large orchestra is under his personal direction. Among the stars of the cast are William Conklin G. H. Geldert, Hugo Koch, Cleo Ridgeley, Charles Clary, Wallace Reid, Theodore Roberts, Hobart Bosworth, Raymond Hatton, Tully Marshall, William Elmer, Lillian Leighton, Marjorie Daw, Ernest Joy, Hal Clements and Walter Long.

Clune's Auditorium.

"The Eyes of the World" closes its fourth week and enters the fifth week tomorrow. There could be no better evidence of the popularity of the current production of Harold Bell Wright's great story than the fact that the fourth week's business exceeded the third. "The Eyes of the World" now has several records hung on its belt. It beat all attendance records at the Auditorium on the opening day; it beat all other films in its first week's attendance, established a new high water mark in Phoenix, Ariz., where it was shown simultaneously with its advent here, and made a new standard for attendance at San Diego. Both in Phoenix and San Diego the picture has been booked for a return engagement. "The Eyes of the World" is a magnificent visualization of the characters and scenes in Wright's book. The excellent music accompanying the picture is one of the biggest features of the entertainment.

Clune's Broadway.

"The Americano," heralded as one of the best photoplays in which Douglas Fairbanks has ever appeared, will be the attraction at Clune's Broadway this week. While the breezy personality of Mr. Fairbanks is given ample latitude, the picture itself is said to be replete with dramatic interest. It is the story of a revolution in the tropics, of swift loves and sudden deaths, political grafts and hair-raising adventure, deposed presidents and fair women, of dungeons and castles and graft—of militarism. In the midst of this maelstrom appears Douglas Fairbanks as Blaze Derringer, a young American who undertakes to quell the revolution, and who, of course, accomplishes his undertaking, but not until he has had some strenuous action. Anyone who has ever seen Mr. Fairbanks in a picture is a capable judge of whether or not he deserves the title of "The Strenuous."

—o—

Tally's Broadway.

The photoplay adaptation of Willard Mack's "Kick In" is the interesting attraction booked this week at Tally's Broadway Theater. "Kick In" is the play that set New York athrill and held the boards for two solid years in that fastidious metropolis. It is a story full of tense situations with a "kick" in every one, yet with a genuine laugh for every thrill. The author drew his characters from real life and it is the ring of sincerity that gives the final "punch" to the drama. The leading roles are taken by William Courtenay and Mollie King and their work from beginning to end is said to be flawless. In addition to "Kick In" there is to be another "Scenic Beautiful" picture entitled "American Game Trails."

—o—

Miller's.

Gladys Brockwell, "the girl with the mobile features," whose work in former Fox photodramas has gained her international fame, will be seen at Miller's Theater, beginning today, in Richard Stanton's latest sensational picture, "One Touch of Sin." Splendid acting is the dominant characteristic of this new play, not only on the part of the talented star, but also of her brilliant company which includes big jovial Willard Louis, little Frankie Lee, Carrie Clark Ward, Sedley Brown and Jack Standing. The picture was staged for the most part at "Golden City," the recently completed town built by the Fox company in Chatsworth Park, and the big fire which occurs in the story was staged in this wonder town. The silver mine in which two men carry on a terrific fight is one of the wonderfully realistic "sets" which was erected for the screen drama. The programme is rounded out by another of those side-splitting Fox film comedies called "His Ticklish Job," produced by Charles Parrott and featuring Hank Mann and a [illegible] of fun makers.

—o—

Alhambra.

"The Darling of Paris," the [illegible] ing Fox feature play wherein [illegible] mous Theda Bara in the role of [illegible] meralda, the gypsy girl, is the [illegible] traction at the Alhambra Theater beginning today. Miss Bara [illegible] new laurels to her crown in [illegible] splendid work, based upon [illegible] immortal story, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." The role is a [illegible] plex one and only an artist of [illegible] Bara's caliber could make it [illegible] vincing and true to life. The [illegible] ture is one of the most lavish [illegible] produced and thousands of [illegible] appear in the big scenes of the [illegible] duction. The excellent [illegible] players includes Herbert [illegible] Glen White, Walter Law, John [illegible] Dillion, Alice Gale and Cleo [illegible] In addition to "The Darling of Paris" there will be a [illegible] Christie comedy entitled "[illegible] Change," with the charming [illegible] Compson as the star [illegible]

—o—

Belasco.

The last week of D. W. Griffith's masterpiece, "The Clansman," will begin at the Belasco Theater tomorrow. So much has been [illegible] written concerning this [illegible] production that the most [illegible] comments that might be made [illegible] it now would only be a repetition that which has already been [illegible] Enough to say that "The Clansman" established a new standard in the photoplay world and that to the millions who have had the pleasure of seeing it "take off their hats" to the master mind that produced it. One of the principal features of the stupendous spectacle is the assassination of President [illegible] John Wilkes Booth. The scene of the historical Ford's Theater in Washington, where the [illegible] took place, is the most gorgeous stage scene ever screened. It is a perfect replica of Ford's Theater, and the same characters on the stage [illegible] were present on the fatal night.

Woodley.

In all the annals of the [illegible] screen no star has won such distinction in the delineation of [illegible] types as has George Beban, and the attraction in "His Supreme Moment," beginning tomorrow, at Woodley's. The picture shows Mr. Beban as Joe, the iceman, in a tenement section of an Italian district in the city. Into his basement home he brings his "sweetheart," who is none other than his little wife who has come to America to join her son. Of course there is a rival sweetheart in the story, but Joe does not know whether she comes under that category or not, and is disturbed over Joe's announcement of the coming of his "sweetheart" from Italy. How matters are finally straightened out is presented in a manner which only a master like Beban could devise. The play is supported by an excellent company including Helen Jerome Eddy, Nigel De Brulier, Kernan and Kathleen Kirkham.

Garrick.

"The Devil's Pay Day," by Franklyn Farnum and Lois Weber, is the unique title of a new Fox photoplay that will open tomorrow at the Garrick. It is the story of a country lass, with a wonderful voice, who love, marrying a man of wealth, but is infatuated by her faithful dog of a kind. As usual, however, [illegible] to the new setting of society and the very charm which had endeared her to the man of her choice. Cast aside, the girl [illegible] upon the man but fate [illegible] hands in a most interesting manner, leaving the audience with the impression that there is a higher court of justice than that recognized and practiced by society. Manager [illegible] is making elaborate preparations for the presentation of [illegible] the newest Charlie Chaplin comedy, which is billed for [illegible]

Ethel Barrymore, Frank Bacon and Beverly Bayne, [illegible] three luminaries that will [illegible] the Symphony this week, [illegible] rymore, with a repertoire worthy of her pre-eminence [illegible] in "The White Raven," [illegible] presents the star in a [illegible] unusual role. [illegible] earnest student of new music, [illegible] Deardorff-Shaw, pianiste of [illegible] ability, interested exceedingly [illegible] a large audience at her recital [illegible] Tuesday afternoon at the Hotel Huntington. Her unusual list of selections was the picturesque composition of Rhene-Baton in the "En [illegible]ngne" suite, which she brought [illegible] her hearers at her programme [illegible] last season; from Debussy and [illegible] and also that interesting [illegible]ful composer who has lately received so much attention abroad—[illegible]ch Wolfgang Korngold. Arrangements are being made to install a new organ at Miller's Theater, the work to be completed by March 1. The organ is to have a keyboard compass of sixty-one notes and a pedal compass of thirty-two notes. It will contain a full set of orchestral instruments, as well as piano, castanets, tambourines and other unusual attachments, including bird calls and siren. The work is being done by the California Organ Company of Van Nuys.

Molly Byerly Wilson has been successfully featuring songs by local composers on her programmes in the East, among these being the following: "Salutation of the Dawn," by Frederick Stevenson; "Ave Maria" and "Destiny," by Frank Colby, and "The Open Road," by Gertrude Ross.

The American Guild of Organists' representatives, who recently went to San Diego to organize a subchapter, were delightfully entertained during their stay by prominent residents of the southern city. In the party were Percy Shaul-Hallett, Mrs. Edith Rounds Smith, Ruth May Shaffner, Caroline C. Keller, Vernon Howell, Mr. and Mrs. Williams and Mr. and Mrs. Elliott.

Jessie Welman will present a number of her pupils in recital this afternoon at the residence of Mrs. S. F. Zombro, No. 418 South Ardmore. The following young girls will sing: Miss Louise Carter, Miss Jean Dorman, Miss Louise Lothrop, Miss Julia Koebig, Miss Luella Jennings and Miss Helen Root. Miss Lily Rowley will give a series of pianologues and also accompany the singers.

An interesting concert was given under the auspices of the South Side Ebell Club last Thursday evening at the Vernon branch library, on the corner of Forty-fifth street and Central avenue. The following took part: Wilhelmj Albers, Miss May Borham and Mrs. W. E. Steinman.

A pleasing programme was presented last Friday evening at a recital complimentary to natives of the State of Utah at Hotel Northern. Those who took part included: Lusiie Johnson, soprano; Verda Egbert, reader; the Beesley Trio of piano, violin and 'cello; a male quartette composed of Harold M. Anderson, Lyman Noyes, Byron Jenson and Clifford Cummings; Mrs. Mabel Anderson Yoerke, Miss Ineb Robinson, Mrs. C. C. Snyder, Miss Deema Bunas, Miss Marjorie Chiles and Clifford R. Cummings, who gave vocal solos, and Miss Grace Johnson, reader.

FEARED ROBBERY.

Mexicans Rise Up in Wrath when the Universal Film Makers Begin to Take Statues from Plaza Mission for Use in Picture.

When a large auto truck drove up in front of the Church of Our Lady of the Angels, in the downtown district of Los Angeles, where the majority of the residents are Mexicans, and a half dozen men who had entered the church reappeared with several statues, crosses and other altar belongings, several scores of sons of the southern republic became excited and set upon the truck men who were taking the church properties away from them.

News that the church was being robbed by Americans spread in the neighborhood, and soon several hundred Mexicans appeared upon the scene and prepared to handle the men roughly for their apparent act of sacrilege.

Arthur Forde, assistant to Lois Weber, the Universal director, who was with the men, tried to explain to the excited Mexicans, who now had worked themselves into a real frenzy, that the articles were being borrowed a day for use in an interior church scene which was to be made at Universal City for a motion picture. But Forde might just as well have talked Greek to them, as they could understand no English.

Finally, while the assistant director was talking at a rapid rate and gesticulating in explanation of what was going on, three or four policemen arrived on the scene and separated the excited sons of Mexico from the truck men, who were allowed to proceed with the removal of the church properties. These then were taken to Universal City, used during the day, and returned to the church the following morning.

MAKE SETS AT NIGHT.

Valuable Saving in Time Thus Effected at Universal.

The careful application of efficiency has reduced nearly one-half the time of producing plays for the screen at Universal City and at the same time the excellence of the finished product has been increased immeasurably.

At the present time about eighteen days are consumed in making the usual five-reel photoplay, whereas in the past a month to six weeks, and frequently two months, was the time usually taken to complete a feature of that length.

When H. O. Davis, vice-president of the Universal, assumed charge at the film capital he at once commenced a careful study of the production methods, and finally evolved a plan whereby time and labor could be saved, including incidentally avoiding waits for sets.

As soon as a photoplay of any character is turned over to a director for production complete scene plots are prepared in the office of O. L. Sellers, manager of productions. An arrangement also is made whereby the work on exteriors and interiors is alternated during production of the picture so that there is continuous activity by the company.

At night the sets are erected for the use of the director on the following day, and if these require more time for construction the director continues on location. Under the former method long waits for sets were the usual thing, which resulted in serious and expensive loss of time for the entire company. As it is now, the erection of the sets is commenced even before the estimate of the cost of production is made, in order that advantage may be taken of the night hours.

All the directors at Universal City has to do now is to give the production manager an idea of the character of sets he needs and then the matter is laid before the art director, who has the drawings made at once for the stage carpenters. Without any confusion the arrangements proceed and when the director has his cast ready he finds a card with his name on it tacked to the walls of his sets.

PREMIERE OF "YOUTH."

Allegorical Pantomine to be Given at Y.W.C.A. Event.

The Hollywood Studio Club will give the first presentation of "Youth," an allegorical pantomine, written especially for them by Alfred Orme, at the Y.W.C.A. Gala Night, at Trinity Auditorium, Tuesday. The performance will be under the direction of Miriam Meredith, assisted by Marjorie Riley. The cast will be as follows: Youth, Eleanor Bamber; Ease, Peggy Hagar; Fear, Marjorie Riley; Avatar, Florence Noar; Good, Wanda Hathaway; Love, Mildred Harris.

This feature is one of the most attractive on the interesting programme. The occasion is unique in that tickets have been placed at 10 cents,—just enough to cover the expense of the evening at Trinity, the object being to gather together 2000 of the Y.W.C.A. members and their friends.

New Purpose.

MAY USE PICTURE TO AID RECRUITING.

FOREIGN GOVERNMENTS MUCH INTERESTED IN BIG FILM.

"Joan the Woman" is Viewed by Representatives, Who Recommend its Showing Abroad to Stimulate Patriotic Feeling Among People of Allied Nations.

Negotiations are now under way between the representatives of the French government and Jesse L. Lasky, for the purchasing rights to show "Joan the Woman,"—the current Majestic attraction,—in England and France as a part of an advertising campaign for the respective governments of those countries to secure more recruits for their armies. Geraldine Farrar, star of the production, will also sing for phonographic records to be heard in connection with the film.

Since the outbreak of the war, it is said Joan of Arc has been the patron saint of the French soldiers in the treaches, and reports frequently tell these soldiers have seen her in visions, urging them on to renewed efforts on the battlefield. There is not a statue of Joan of Arc in all France, so authorities say, which is not covered with wreaths, placed there by the soldiers of the army.

"Joan the Woman" was recently exhibited privately in Washington, D. C., to members of the French Embassy, and was most enthusiastically received. It is said the resident representatives of the French government recommended that the picture be shown throughout France.

Jesse L. Lasky and Cecil B. DeMille, director-general of the Lasky Company, who is responsible for the success of "Joan the Woman," are said to be enthusiastic over the idea of having their masterpiece presented under the auspices of the French government, and will do all in their power to aid in the presentation.

The English government is now making arrangements for a vast advertising campaign to secure recruits for their army, and have used the cinema in various ways as a means of gaining volunteers. But this will be the first time, it is said, a photodramatic story in its entirety, dealing with history, has ever been used in this manner.

STORY OF YOUTH.

Morality Comedy Drama "Experience" Due Here Soon.

In "Experience," his modern morality comedy-drama, which comes to the Mason Operahouse tomorrow night, George V. Hobart, the author, has taken the universal experience of mankind, the struggles, the sins, the temptations—all the elements which persuade men for right or wrong, and has woven them into a play of intense reality. Into the production he has poured the exhilarating happenings of every-day life, making a drama of universal appeal, with Youth as the hero. The episodes through which Youth passes in his efforts to solve the riddle of life are just the sort of things that really happen to most of us, and it is said that everyone sees himself in the production.

The famous New York-Boston-Philadelphia company will present the production. There are eighty-two members in the cast, as well as a lovely chorus. The features of popular appeal include a Golden Cabaret in which the beauty chorus appears, and a Primose Path of Pleasure, which will present a Fashion Show. In the Corridors of Chance act, a famous New York gambling house is shown with every modern gaming device in full operation, including a large roulette wheel.

No expense has been spared in staging and costuming the production, which is said to be one of the most sumptuous in stage history.

SAD STORY GETS COIN.

Detective Bessie Love Trails Down Hard Luck Fiction, Though.

Bessie Love unearthed a "sympathy game" last week, when her interest in a young English boy and his story of want and of three starving sisters led her to what was supposed to be his home, with help for himself and family. Bessie's investigation also brought to light the fact hat Mabel Normand, Fay Tincher, Eddie Dillon, William Russell and Paul Powell had already given the boy assistance. The house number he gave Bessie, undoubtedly in the belief that she would not investigate it, was nothing but a vacant lot; a grocery store reference also proved to be a vacant lot.

The boy's story was that if he had $10 to buy a bicycle, he could start to work immediately as errand boy in a grocery store. He was eager to accept a $10 check at once. Bessie said she would give him the check, but her sympathy being also with the three little sisters, whom he declared to be starving, she set out to find and help them.

Going up to Santa Barbara, the young Englishman sought the home of William Russell, told the latter his story, received his assistance, and disappeared. There may be other film folk to whom this impostor has told his story and from whom he has received aid.

CAN'T ESCAPE TOUGH PARTS.

Actress Would be Ingenue, but They Won't Let Her.

"Ever since I created the part of Aggie Lynch, the little blackmailer in 'Within the Law' when it was first produced in Chicago, I have been playing tough girl parts. I have tried to escape them and get back to romantic or emotional ingenue roles, but all to no avail. I can't seem to convince any one that I can do anything but tough parts."

This is the wail of Susanne Willa, who plays the part of Myrtle in "Kick In," which will be shown at Tally's Broadway this week.

Miss Willa has a series of successes to her credit in "tough" parts. She played the lead in "Stop Thief" for Cohan and Harris for a year, and then went with Helen Ware in "The Revolt." And she played the "tough" girl in "The Co-Respondent," with Irene Fenwick, at the Booth Theater in New York City.

Miss Willa is a Los Angeles girl. Her parents objected to her going on the stage, and she ran away from home. She played small bits with Maude Adams and Olga Nethersole in repertoire and then went into the Belasco Stock Company here.

STUDENT MAKES HIT WITH POPULAR SONG.

From college student to popular song composer is the record of Sydney King Russell, 18 years of age, student in the University of California, and resident of Los Angeles, who has recently finished his most successful composition, which has already run into its second edition, "My Flower of Waikiki." Mr. Russell recently returned from Honolulu, where he introduced the song with great success, owing to its syncopated swing and its adaptibility to the Hawaiian instruments. It has also found favor with American lovers of ragtime.

"My Husband's Gift

on our anniversary," said she to her companion, "was refurnishing whatever room I choose; and I am in a quandary.

"Shall I select the living-room? That is the room most used by all the family and by our guests as well. I was never satisfied with the furnishings, which do not exactly 'gibe.' Moreover, some things in that room look a trifle worn.

"The dining room is almost as bad," said she. "When I ask friends to dine, I wish for a new sideboard or buffet, and am sorry that our chairs are not less ordinary. I think it a mistake to buy poor furniture at the start, anticipating that it will soon be replaced; for time slips on and on, and one defers the renovation, just because it's possible to 'get along' with those.

"In my own room, I want so much that I scarcely dare begin."

"Why not," asked her friend, "buy something for each room? You have no idea how much better each will look, if you place therein a single high-class article—a chair, a table, a good lounge or desk, will lend an air to your living room and will cost far less than to refurnish wholly. Buy for the dining room a set of chairs, or a good buffet and wait for other things. The same with your own bedroom. Get a fine chiffonier or a dressing table. Later, you may complete each room; and in the meantime, your house will look far better furnished than had you lavished all of your anniversary present upon a single room."

"What a capital idea! I'll tell Harold! I 'm sure he will agree; for it will extend his generous gift throughout the entire house, making each room 'happy,' as I shall say to him."

BUSINESS TALKS TO WOMEN

BY ELLEN LANE SPENCER, Author of "The Efficient Secretary."

EASY JOBS AT GOOD PAY.

What is your ambition?

To get a nice, easy job, with short hours and good pay?

I wanted such a job when I graduated out in the business world. I still want such a job, but after years' search, and after comparing notes with many others who have sought the same thing, I have reluctantly concluded there are none.

The fact that business is booming, that people engage in it for profit, and that it continues and prospers, is proof enough that there is money in the business world worth the dollar that is legitimately asked, more or less.

When you start out earning a salary of $8 dollars a week, the chances are that you are worth a lot more than that, but you are paid that because you will ultimately attain the value if you improve as you should, and from that time until your salary is increased, your employer will make up the loss.

You can only honestly increase your salary by increasing your worth. Any man who is wise enough to make his business succeed is wise enough to know what each employee is worth to him, and to pay at once any increase or decrease in value to his business.

A business man may be glad once on an order for stationery, printing, or office furniture—but where there is but one cent—or when he promises a salary of so much a week in return for so much work, he must first figure on what during the year he will have to pay that amount fifty-two times over, and he will not consent to pay it unless it buys something of the value of fifty-two times his weekly salary.

That is why there are so many successful business houses that offer good salaries for easy jobs.

BITS OF VERSE.

The Great Adventure.

Hurled from the peak of Jove
With a roar like the end of doom,
Shoots the hurtling hulk of a world in bulk
And the lanes of space make room.

Like a witch astride her nag
Venomous, snarling, blind
'Tis flung where the chart of fate is hung
And its flame hair floats behind.

In the glow of a hell-lit way
It speeds like a mad thought cast
While the waves of space that it spurns apace
Bruise its undivining boast.

And always the comet flies
Through the fields of the ether miles,
While a million years are as waning fears,
Or as hope's wan afterwhiles.

And always its way lies on
In the flame of its raging star
Its tail is a dream that has been scheme—
But its head is nothingness.

O fate to filch our tears!
O destiny tipped with guile!
For the question flies where the answer lies,
Nor sees nor knows at all!
—[Olin L. Lyman, in New York Sun.

Faces.

There are faces enough on the city street;
There are faces enough on the village spare,
For the faces worth while
Are the faces that smile
When they meet with a welcome stare.

There are faces enough that reek of wealth
And the flower that rules the mart
But the faces we need
Are the faces that lead
When the weakest have gone to the wall.

There are faces enough of the worldly sort
That have worshipped at shrines of self;
But the faces divine
Are distilling the wine
That is free from the dregs of pelf.
—[Alf Davis, in Minneapolis Journal.

The Three Hills.

There is a hill in England,
Green fields and a school I knew
Where the balls fly fast in summer
And the whispering elms grow.
A little hill, a dear hill,
And the playing-fields below.

There is a hill in Jewry,
Three crosses pierce the sky
On the midmost He is dying
To save all those who die.
A little hill, a kind hill,
To souls in jeopardy.

There is a hill in Flanders,
Heaped with a thousand slain
Where the shells fly night and tide
And the ghosts that die in vain.
A little hill, a hard hill,
To the souls that died in pain.
—[Everard Owen, in London Times.

The Men I Like to Meet.

There are many pleasant men
Whom one would like to meet,
Editors and barbers
And men who shovel snow;
There are laymen, there are men,
But the ones I like to know
Are the men who pat the horses
When they pass them on the street.

It's jolly, on the avenue,
To bow and raise your hat
To some one so distinguished
That your comrade says, that?"
But the man I really honor
When the stinging storm blows
Is the one who always says a stroke
Some horse's frozen nose.
—[Christopher Morley, in Life.

It is a well-known axiom, largely credible, we believe, because it is one of the innumerable things said to have been uttered by Napoleon, that who rules India rules the world. India is so rich that Russia and Germany have long coveted the golden stream that for some centuries has poured into British coffers. Germany, believing she was entitled to a place in the sun, laid plans along the line of least resistance, to extend her influence toward India, bisect the English line of communication, and interpose her influence between England and the east. Statesmen have long believed, or pretended to believe, that the British Empire would fall if India was taken away.

So, according to M. Cheradame, Germany conceived the plan of extending her authority over Austria-Hungary, Turkey, Bulgaria and thus (excepting Serbia and Rumania) having a Teutonic empire that stretched directly into the heart of the Orient. Serbia and Rumania could be—as they have been—easily crushed. In M. Cheradame's opinion neither Austria, Serbia, Bulgaria nor Turkey will ever again be free—if Germany can prevent it. Her "empire" will be the most strategically located of any on earth; with the seaports controlled, including Constantinople, Germany will able to dictate largely the commerce of the world and carry out effectively the Pan-German plans for colonization.

That is what M. Cheradame refers to when he speaks of "unmasking the German peace plan." He thinks Germany may even be willing to return Alsace-Loraine to France to secure peace that will leave her in control of a polyglot chain to the Persian Gulf.

As is usual when any of the Allies' publicists writes of the German peril, M. Cheradame warns the United States against the Germans in this country and cites the infamous Delbruck law which permits a German to become a citizen of any other country and secretly retain the rights, allegiance to, and protection of, German citizenship. He also warns the United States of Germany's plans in South America and gives alarming figures concerning the colonial influence that has been developed by the Kaiser in Argentina and Brazil.

...Sedgwick is a new essayist ...the versatile Owen Wister ...writer in a preface. Of ...Wister seems determined ...hide himself, at least nu... ...in prefacing books other ...ers, thereby crowding in ...and field the hitherto un... ...pre-eminence of one T.

Mr. Wister's preface is interesting. Nay, to share that gentleman's indubitable opinion of it, valuable. To hear him tell it, one would think that he was the first to recognize and proclaim that American essayists are infinitely superior to American fictioneers.

Says Mr. Wister: "I merely look the present ground over, glance at our bursting shelf of fiction, compare it to our decent shelf of essays; observe the railroad book stalls and inelegant Leisure in petticoats, survey the best-seller belt—and offer my American thanks to our American essayists for saving our face. Yes; that is indeed what they do; they save our face. We can point to them without blushing. Amid the weltering insanity of present American Letters it is their pens chiefly that write the leavening sentences of wit, thought and cultivation; it is their books mainly that we send to friends in the civilized world, because they show that all of us do not live in the best-seller belt, that some of us are writers and readers with civilized intelligence."

Such blasting reference to the "best-seller belt" may possibly be construed as a confession of repentance on the part of the author of the "Virginian."

But the spotlight must be switched off Mr. Wister. After all, this isn't his book. Mr. Sedgwick wrote it.

All of the other essays have titles that would, if any one of them were used to name the book, be forbidding in the market place. Only graybeards and esthetic old maids, such as those for whom Mr. Sedgwick has apologized, would anticipate the elegance of subject matter inspired by such titles as, "De Senectute," "The Religion of the Past," "Credo Quia Possible," "A Forsaken God," "The Classics Again," "Literature and Cosmopolitanism."

The elegance is there, however, and moreover, the clarity of keen thought. "De Senectute," a dialogue between two young students and a wise old man, is a genial and penetrating exposition of the advantages of gray hairs. It is perhaps a protest against the cockiness of youth; the Oslerizing attitude of bright young men who have just acquired diplomas and know all about everything of importance. The essay may be said to take nothing but the title from one M. T. Cicero, who, a few years ago, wrote on the same subject.

The most distinctive feature of these essays is Mr. Sedgwick's theology. It is conservative; and rather scorns the necessity of reconciling science and religion. In four essays this particular view is more or less displayed; and in one "Credo Quia Possible," it is the theme. With dignified toleration he views the various conceptions of God, and he is impatient as one of poise can be of the wrangling over terms to designate the manifest energy of the world. "Even," he asks, "if the proper dogmatic adjective for this energy is 'physico-chemical,' may not the adjective 'divine' be appropriate also?" In another place he says: "The 'god' of the future is but a concentrated aggregation of unknown forces, and both aggregation and concatenation are assumptions. They claim reverence for the reign of law, with its uniform and measured impartiality, in place of the arbitrary and tyrannical actions of a jealous God; but they have no reverence. Even if they will kneel to the downward fall of an apple, and the elliptical orbits of the planets, even if they will sing hymns to the swell and ebb of the tide, and praise the union of hydrogen and oxygen, they have no right to take our words, our associations, our frippery of old thoughts and emotions. Unless they are prepared to bestow an adequate allotment of ecstacy on each electric volt, they have no right to clap all the volts together in one symbolic whole and bow down before them. The only rational attitude toward the 'god' of the future is distrust."

Mr. Sedgwick is no trickster with words; he is rarely epigrammatical, never paradoxical, and avoids the clap-trap phrase as a pestilence.

"A Lark Went Singing and Other Poems."

In his introduction, Richard Burton says: "In this modest book, "A Lark Went Singing," there will be unfeigned delight for all who still desire poetry, not for the exploitation of creed or mode or personality—but for its own sweet sake."

Ruth Gertrude Harding, the author, has a lyrical note as pure, as free-voiced, as exalted as any of the poets of the day. "A Lark Went Singing" (Edmund D. Brookes, Minneapolis) illustrates those fine qualities. Consider this:

"The gypsy stars are camped around the moon—
That nomads'-fire along the road of Night—
And resting there before they take their flight,
What lullabies the older stars must croon:
Songs of the byways where with silent shoon
Age-long they wander; where at early light
Their caravan slips quietly from sight
And hides its trail across the sky at noon.
That secret trail! To think where it began
Or where it ends? . . . when, myriad moon-fires glow
In camps at even where God's high roads be?
When tribes of stars, unguessed, undreamed by man,
Too far for these the earth-seen stars to go,
Find trail on trail . . . to deeper mystery?"

It is not fortunate that in the fifth line "shoon" (shoes) should be needed; but the poem is one that appeals strongly to us, and the first line brilliantly conjures up the mood that is sustained to the end.

Another poem, "A Mecca Rug," founded on a conception dear to poets, is a fine example of the vividity and delicacy of Mrs. Harding's verse:

"Worn old carpet with colors rare,
Didst think it sacrilege
That late tonight in the shadows there
One held me close and kissed my hair?
A breath that stirred in the languid air
Rose from thy faded edge.

"A chant from the mosque by the inland sea
Was heavy in my ears:
There came some dusky memory . . . .
When I was I in Araby,
Long, long ago I fashioned thee,
Scroll of a Thousand Years.

"A temple-rug, with the niche for prayer
That my lord's dark knees oft pressed:
The shield, the comb and the crescent there
Are symbols his tribe was wont to wear;
Mine the weaving? Then mine the prayer. . . .
May Allah guard his rest!

"A chant from the mosque by the inland sea,
And the smart of forgotten tears.
Dost know what tonight's new love may be?
Perchance it will all be clear to me
When I shall be I in Araby
At the end of a thousand years!'

There are some fifty poems in this small volume, and either of those quoted show the shimmering, exalted spirit of her verse. It is very pleasing to find a poet of her ability untroubled by the esthetic creeds of the day, and content to use a medium that she has mastered rather than experimenting with a form which as yet has not shown itself to offer anything richer than "A Lark Went Singing."

"The Long Road of Woman's Memory."

Jane Addams's book, "The Long Road of Woman's Memory" (The Macmillan Company) would not be so disappointing were it not for the expectation aroused on the slip-cover by the statement that "the underlying purpose of the book is to show wherein modern civilization goes back to old tribal customs, to explain, in other words, the scientific theory of race memory."

Prof. Patrick in "The Psychology of Relaxation" and Bergson in "Creative Evolution" and Mrs. Parsons and Anna Payson Call in numerous books have gone too thoroughly into that identical subject for Miss Addams's superficial interpreted Hull House incidents to be of more than the slightest value toward the so-called "underlying purpose." The report of "the devil's baby," said to be sheltered at Hull House, which attracted swarms of curious and superstitious, is intensely interesting; and does in fact show the psychology of a racial heritage—but a psychology which Miss Addams treats as incidental to the inconvenience she and her assistants experienced in denying the existence of the mythic monstrosity. The other incidents have less value in racial psychology and are very loosely handled. Her own personal experiences before the ancient places of Egypt are also interesting, but very vaguely interpreted. In other words, Miss Addams has not shown herself to be a competent psychologist.

"On Vital Reserves."

"On Vital Reserves" (Henry Holt & Co.) contains two essays by the late William James: "The Energies of Men" and "The Gospel of Relaxation." The former explains there are geysers of unsuspected energy in most people who go through life unaware of their reserve force unless some trenchant emotion, like religious ecstacy, unavoidably intense pressure of work, or systematic discipline of the will, tap the reservoirs beneath the strata of consciousness. The latter essay warns the American people that they are using up their nervous energy in fretful hustling; and that they are proud without sane reason for differing from the calm, phlegmatic Britisher who may be a little sluggish of manner, but has tremendous energies in reserve.

Prof. James is revolted by the suggestion that the day is coming when men and women will not need muscles and muscular energy, having so perfected science that all labor will be performed by mechanisms; and toothless, stomachless, the race will suck nutriment through a glass tube and have no work or amusement but that of the intellect. He says muscles and muscular development, work and play, will always be needed to give the brain balance and that physical sport is as much a character builder as intellectual labor.

"The Unwelcome Man."

"The Unwelcome Man" by Waldo Frank (Little, Brown & Co.) is an extremely earnest book about an extremely earnest youth, whom nobody loves or understands; and the novel seems to have been designed as a vessel in which to serve the rather heady wine of sophistication that is at present a popular beverage among intellectual young men.

Quincy Burt is the eighth child of a New York family, suddenly made wealthy by a piece of mining property. He is spiritually sensitive, introspective, instinctively rebellious toward conventions, decent, however, but rather solicitously nurses the melancholy satisfaction that he is not loved at home, not popular in college and not understood by the girl to whom he is devoted.

The purpose of the book is to convey Mr. Frank's views on ethics, education, love and sundry sociological odds and ends. The plot design is rather vague, but its hope is no doubt to show the inhibition of personality in a clever youth, who, if loved, encouraged and "understood," might have developed into a rare genius. As a narrative the story has no more fluidity than a series of postcards; but Mr. Frank obviously cares nothing about narrative qualities. His characters are vivid: Prof. Deering; Garsted, Quincy's one friend; Mardsen, the invalid brother; Burt, Sr. and Jonas, Jr., are drawn with admirable definitive strokes.

The prose of the book is put together with extreme care, with palpable care, and the psychology of Quincy, as far as it goes, is so detailed and realistic that one quickly realizes him as belonging to the ubiquitous type of young men that like to be coddled and "understood." It is carefully made evident that Quincy was the ugly duckling of an unlovely, mediocre family; but an ugly duckling that never learned to fly because of his unlovely family and associates.

Quincy's episode with the one girl, Clarice, is—so far as our understanding goes—too nebulous, too fatuous, for the intensity Mr. Frank has put into the writing of it. But the gentle fiasco, peculiarly magnified into a spiritual catastrophe, is also due to Quincy's hyper-sensitiveness—the fact that he is not "understood."

The author is avowedly Quincy's protagonist. Mr. Frank loves his hero and solicits sympathy for the poor fellow's unwelcomeness in the cold world. But Quincy's troubles are as much due to not understanding as to not being understood.

But all things considered, we would say that the really disfiguring fault of the novel is that it ends without establishing a sense of completion. It ends abruptly while Quincy is still a youth—and the story is then rounded out with a short, metaphysical epilogue that leaves the curious fumbling with their own imagination.

"Out of the House."

Miss M. E. F. Irwin's whimsy tragedy, "Come Out to Play," played the gamut of originality; whereas the latest novel, "Out of the House" (George H. Doran,) like the other, an English story, has merely a fantastic setting. The story of the former possessed a decided and unique appeal. The story of the latter has nothing but affected trapping to adorn the venerable situation of a young girl beloved and loving a young man to whom her relatives are opposed.

As a narrative, "Out of the House" is put together in the worst possible way. It begins in the middle of the story, then backs up to the heroine's babyhood, and goes even further back to sketch in a full length portraiture of the hero, a violinist, and the son of an Irish landlord who was murdered by his tenants. Quite accidentally, the hero rings the bell of the wrong house, and the heroine comes to the door. She lives with a sinister and sibyline aunt, who rules or tries to rule, the family; and is a character that might have been inspired by Walpole's "The Duchess of Wrexe." Four years after the door bell incident the hero and heroine meet; and though she is intended as the bride of a cousin, the young couple defy the jewel bedecked hag of an aunt and are happy ever after.

"Men, Women and Guns."

"Sapper," in his first volume of stories, gave straight, vivid, clean-cut incidents of the war. They made "Michael Cassiday, Sergeant," one of the best war books that has worn the guise of fiction, which was, no doubt, largely due to the fact that there was very little fiction in it.

But "Sapper" seems to have convinced himself that he is a fictioneer; that he knows the tricks and is entitled to the elbow room of the professional. In "Men, Women and Guns" (George H. Doran Company,) he tries the conventional variations of the story writer, and the result is less felicitous. All the apologies and explanations that are made do give "The Motor Gun" the ring of reality; "Private Meyrick—Company Idiot," shows the story writer rather than the observer; and "James Henry," a dog story, is much the same. But "Sapper" knows the service and knows men and guns; he may know women, too, but they are not the essentials he seems to thing to good stories. The book is decidedly inferior to "Michael Cassidy."

"Pelle the Conqueror; Daybreak."

The last volume of Martin Anderson Nexo's formidable four-part novel, "Pelle the Conquerer" comes under the sub-title of "Daybreak" (Henry Holt & Co.) This completes the story of the Danish boy who became a shoemaker's apprentice, organized and led the labor unions of Copenhagen, and was thrown in prison on circumstantial evidence as a forger.

The last book is distinguished by the solution to labor trouble that it suggests, and by the hideous picture of the debauchery forced upon a young girl.

This concluding story opens with Pelle's release from prison, his return to a welcoming wife and children, and relates the severe struggle which gradually raises him to prosperity. Pelle organizes, not the workmen, but the industries; basing his structure on co-operation. Shoemakers need hides, so they become wholesalers, organize tanneries and finally the farmers as the first producers. He sees, or thinks that he sees, that mere revolt and strikes of workingmen gain nothing of importance.

Of the four books, the second, "Apprenticeship," seems to us unquestionably the finest. "Daybreak," notwithstanding the revolting passages about Johanna and the black days following Pelle's release from prison, has a quality of idealized sentiment that seems out of place and no part of the grim story related in the preceding books. The angelic wife, the tender friends, the fairy-book benefactor in the guise of a librarian, the facile success of Pelle's business once it is launched, give the story an American-serial-ending rather than the vigorous, sturdy conclusion that would have in it something of the finer quality of the preceding books.

"The Girl."

Katherine Keith is a new name, with new ideas and new mannerisms, which are surprising rather than impressive. The distinctive feature of the jumbled paragraphs strung together in sequence and intended to give an autobiographical sketch of a girl from childhood to maturity is that lack of reticence which finds expression in sentimentality. It is an erratic story, several undeveloped short stories, or incidents, rather, which picture a somewhat flighty maiden more or less quixotically in love with "ideals" (some of which are no less imaginary because they have a basis of flesh) though she is about as happy if the "ideal" is a stranger and she knows only his name.

The whole of it is utterly lacking in conveying to us the sense of reality, and does not substitute the whimsy or fantastic. This effect results nevertheless though she attempts to be realistic, particularly in relating the girl's love for an actor; her experience with the editor of a cheap, impoverished magazine. The climactic situation is absurd without the redeeming charm that often relieves absurdities. In college the girl is beloved by a father and son; and the three of them make a grotesque triangle. The father is preferred to his rough, awkward son; but the girl tells even him that it is all a dream.

What Miss Keith has tried to do we do not know. Perhaps she has succeeded.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS

The Unpopular Review.

The January-March number of the Unpopular Review, a quarterly, is extremely satisfying to wayward souls. Those of us who find ourselves in agreement with the Unpopular viewpoint may be pardoned for thinking that this quarterly carries a nicely adjusted ballast of commonsense—"commonsense" being firm opinions that exasperate their possessor because they are not axiomatic. And wayward souls are those heretical, or at variance with the popular movements, theories and ideas.

The current number contains several articles of interest to literary observers, meddlers and workmen. "Nature, Nurture and Novel-Writing" is a sort of left-handed defense of collegiate study as a training for young novelists; the defense being made on the basis that if the embryonic novelist has genius in him the college won't hurt him, and if he hasn't the divine flame, the college cannot possibly create it. "Modest Modernist Papers" is a cynical appraisement of the modernist poetry, being, of course, very unjust but extremely satisfying to the aforesaid wayward souls. "What is the Matter With the Theater?" answers the question with direct affirmations, calling attention to the iniquitous practice of charging "standard" prices for second-class productions, and a flat rate for seats on the ground floor; also to the rivalry of the two theatrical trusts that are busily engaged in trying to cut each other's throat; and to the fact that producers and playwrights seem to think New York is America.

Another article appears on Patience Worth—the only ghost since an apprehensive childhood that has ever held our interest or evoked our admiration. Patience, the witty, Elizabethan spinster, who speaks through the medium of a ouija board operated by Mrs. John H. Curran of St. Louis, and who was introduced to a skeptical and rather baffled public some months ago in a book entitled, "Patience Worth," has imposed upon the Curran household the duty of adopting a baby that should be named Patience Worth. Patience stipulated that the baby should be a girl, red haired, of Scotch-English parentage; and she gave her approval for the adoption of a child yet unborn, which turned out to be a red-headed girl of the desired ancestry. The editor of the Unpopular very deftly steers his comment between credulity and skepticism. He has complete faith in the honesty of Mrs. Curran, but like many other people, he doesn't know exactly what to think of the inimitable Patience.

The Book of Rings.

Dr. George Kunz's book about "Rings" is promised by the Lippincott Company soon. It tells all that is known about this fascinating subject. Here is an item: "The oldest of existing rings . . . of solid gold, weighs nearly an ounce and a half and bears the cartouche of Usertasen I, whose reign is dated from about 2748 B.C. This monarch is said to have founded the great institution at Heliopolis," where Moses was supposed to have been educated.

Millionaire's Autobiography.

Mr. Knopf will publish soon "Brian Banaker's Autobiography," which is said to be the remarkable autobiography of a young American millionaire up to his marriage at the age of 24. Banaker found himself past middle age in Southern France and there Mr. W. B. Trites, who showed very great promise and no mean achievement in "John Cave" and "Barbara Guynne" set down faithfully the story of Banaker's early life. The result is a book of rare charm and artistry.

Eleanor Hallowell Abbott.

The Century Company will shortly publish a new novel by Eleanor Hallowell Abbott, author of "Molly Make-Believe" entitled "The Stingy Receiver." The chief characters are said to be an invalid old lady with money, her doctor, and a whimsical young woman from Norway.

The Assault of Laughter.

In "The Mysterious Stranger"—the just-published posthumous book by Mark Twain, that authority on humor declares that most men possess only "a mongrel perception of humor." He elaborates his idea by saying: "The multitude see the comic side of a thousand low-grade and trival things—broad incongruities, mainly; grotesqueries, absurdities, evokers of the horse-laugh. The ten thousand high-grade comicalities which exist in the world are sealed from their full vision. Will a day come when the race will detect the funniness of these jovenilities and laugh at them—and by laughing at them destroy them? For your race, in its poverty, has unquestionably one really effective weapon—laughter. Power, money, persuasion, supplication, persecution—these can lift at a colossal humbug—push it a little—weaken it a little, century by century; but only laughter can blow it to rags and atoms at a blast. Against the assault of laughter nothing can stand."

Reviewing the Encyclopaedia.

An early announcement will be made of a book devoted to a critical examination of the Encyclopaedia Britannica in relation to its effect on the development of American culture. The author does not base his strictures on mere disproportions in space allotted to persons and subjects, but asserts that the treatment throughout is colored by the British point of view to such an extent as to distort values. Nor is it charged that the attitude is deliberately assumed, but that it is congenital and indigenous. The book will not be exhaustive but sufficient facts are promised to make owners of the Encyclopaedia wish to pursue further investigation for themselves.

Owen Wister,

In a preface to "An Apology for Old Maids" slams "best sellers," though in his day he has written them. But perhaps he has forgotten all about "The Virginian."

New Books.

Among the important spring publications of Robert M. McBride & Co., are two new novels, "Martin Valliant," by Warwick Deeping, and "The Torch Bearers of Bohemia" by V. I. Kryshanovskaya. The same house, will also publish shortly "Cabins, Camps and Cottages," by Richardson Wright, editor of House and Garden, "How to Make Concrete Garden Furniture and Accessories," by J. T. Fallen, "The Effective Small Home" by Lillian Bayliss Green, and "Dick Judson, Boy Scout Ranger," by George Frederick Park.

Psychoanalysis.

The recent sensational connection of psychoanalysis with the disappearance of a young woman in New York, called forth the following remarks by Dr. Beatrice M. Hinkle, translator of Jung's Psychology of the Unconscious.'

"Suicide and insanity were fairly common diseases before psychoanalysis was known, religion despondency, domestic and economic ills all being presented as causes driving the individual into one or other of these situations, but the real underlying cause, that of an unstable psychic mechanism, unable to adequately cope with life's problems, being rarely recognized by the lay mind.

"Every new scientific discovery or philosophy dealing with the human being or having any personal appeal, acts as a magnet attracting all manner of unstable minds and weak characters who eagerly espouse the new work, and with an enthusiasm only equalled by the superficiality of their knowledge, dash precipitately into one extreme or other as their own wishes direct them."

More New Books.

Among the fiction promised by the Scribners for the spring are the following: "The Castaways," a novel by W. W. Jacobs; "The Children of the Desert," a novel by Louis Dodge, author of "Bonnie May;" two new volumes of "The Stories of H. C. Bunner;" "Jan and Her Job," a romance of India and England by L. Allen Harker; "Bringing Out Barbara," a love story by Ethel Train, author of "Son;" a book of stories by C. B. Davis, "Her Own Sort;" and "The Hiding Places," a romance by Allen French.

Shane Leslie's New Book.

Since "The End of a Chapter," Shane Leslie's book of English and Irish memories and essays, the public has watched with interest for the next book from his pen. It is now about to be published by the Scribners, and is entitled "The Celt and the World." In it Mr. Leslie has turned to the great historic conflict of "The Celt and the Teuton, the first and second born of Aryan stock who have in different ways shown themselves dynamic forces in the world."

Cobb Lost.

Contesting in the Newspaper Men's Golf Tournament, Irwin S. Cobb, author of "Local Color," was recently defeated in his match with Heywood Broun, dramatic critic of the New York Tribune, by a score of 134 to 136. Cobb was considered by the judges to be the better player and at the twelfth hole was leading by a wide margin, when, to quote from the account of the spectator, "Broun, under the tutelage of Will McGeehan, donned his tortoise-shell glasses, which improved his game wonderfully and pulled him through two strokes in the lead. The cunning shown by both contestants in playing exactly opposite their coaches' instructions was the feature of the match."

WARREN T. POTTER.

About a year ago a young man opened an office in Los Angeles and had a painter put "publisher" on the door. The wise ones smiled; for we wise ones know—or did know—that all publishers die of economic ailment if they do not implant themselves in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago or Indianapolis; or else invite the optimistic author to pay for the publication. That is if the publisher hasn't a big book store of his own, or a printing plant, or something other than his own judgment and manuscripts.

Warren T. Potter confined himself to his judgment and manuscripts. He said there were possibilities in Los Angeles that reached up and down the Coast and eastward. He is much quieter than most men of 30; but if he had been any older he would probably have realized the hopelessness of bucking traditions and trying to publish books outside of New York. But he didn't. Nor did he ask the authors that came with manuscripts ready to have themselves initiated into the mysteries of literary fame, for a fee to defray the expense of publishing the "first editions."

Such confidence in himself made the wise ones smile all the broader. Mr. Potter didn't seem to realize that he was conducting himself like a philanthropist instead of a "business man." He is a publisher, not a printer; and though he had some ten years' experience in magazine and publishing work, still the idea of just making money out of the sale of books when all the big publishers of the East were complaining that it was hard to do, and explaining that theirs was the most precarious and unappreciated business on earth, seemed to most of us wise ones a will-o'-the-wisp that would lead him into a briar patch.

But at the end of a year he has published five books by local authors, and taken over for distribution two others, and has not only found the local and Coast booksellers ready to handle his books, but has succeeded in putting them for distribution into one of the largest book stores in Gotham.

His books are selling and the humorous part of it is that he doesn't seem surprised. He is not in the least aware that he has brought confusion upon the wise ones and bowled over tradition. Of course, he isn't entirely out of the woods yet, but he has cleared out a big homesite for himself and begun to raise profits.

He isn't visionary. He didn't expect to have the local bookdealers fall on his neck. Bookdealers are skittish gentlemen who know what it is to be bitten by visionaries. And having been forced to assist at the obituaries of many books, the sellers are shy of any printed document that is likely to use their shelves for a catacomb.

But Mr. Potter started off with an idyllic gift book, "The Day Before Marriage" by Mary Dale, and some people bought it. Any poet who has published a precious volume will probably understand better than anyone else just how encouraging that is. Then came "The Ku Klux Klan" by Annie Cooper Burton, a small book and not at all expensive. It moved and is still moving. "From the Creation of Man to Eternity" by Mary Viola Gross, a nonsectarian study of the Bible, followed. It had a wide appeal, and the demand threatens to be surprising. Rose L. Ellerbe's "Tales of California Yesterdays" literally walked right into the arms of an eager public, and if Mr. Potter had been more reckless he wouldn't have had to get out another edition. "The Quest of Little Blessing" by Anna Taggart Clark caught the end of the holiday trade, and the story of the little child's quaint search in which she became lost herself, is continuing to sell. Other books that have passed into Mr. Potter's hands are, "The Amulet," a theosophical novel of the Orient, by Mary Viola Gross; and "Los Angeles from the Sierras to the Sea," with etchings by Marion Holden Pope and poems by Charles Farwell Edson.

Dr. William Wistar Comfort, professor of romance languages at Cornell University, was chosen unanimously for president of Haverford College at a recent meeting of the corporation of the college. He formerly was an instructor in the college of which his father was an official for many years. He will succeed Dr. Isaac Sharpless, who will retire at the close of the scholastic year.

Our Italians.

must come to an understanding about fathers. In Italian opera the father plays almost as important a part in the love story as the lover, and in our life he plays no part whatsoever, except a pecuniary one. Girls in Italian opera renounce lovers for their fathers' sakes, and that is upsetting to an American audience, which, with Patrick Henry, finds no alternative between liberty and death. Then, too, before long the stabbing will get on our nerves, and we cannot perpetuate Italian opera without a certain amount of stabbing. Of course, there is a life in the cities of Italy which is not concerned with red nerckerchiefs or stilletti, but so far it has not penetrated our country nor their operas.

All the operahouses in this country are run by foreigners, and naturally they are interested in producing foreign operas. Furthermore, there is no American opera, and our American singers are forced when they get to the Metropolitan, or, in fact, to any of the big houses, to sing in foreign tongues. A few efforts have been made to translate foreign operas into English, and they have all been failures, because the translations are poor, and because we trust our tongue even less than we trust our composers.

In his address before the Friday Morning Club last week Frank Patterson urged the women's clubs to give the composer a chance, and to encourage him to write for the operatic stage. "There will not be any American managers of American operahouses," he said, "until there are some American operas, and the composer cannot afford to spend his time writing for the stage unless he expects to get a hearing." Which is quite true, and which can also be summed up in the statement that, as yet, we have no American music. Thus it is that Behymer gives us the Italians. But why not some new French? We have "Faust," but that is so familiar that it is almost Italian. Why not give us Charpentier, or Debussy, or even some more of Massanet and Saint-Saens? Why not give Richard Strauss, the greatest living composer, or Moussorgsky, or Rimsky-Korsako? The Russians are forging ahead musically more than any other nation just now, but the composers of the present will be dead a half century before we hear them. Mr. Behymer tells me that there is a man in this city who has heard "Trovatore" fifty-one times, and that he is ready to hear it again. But why sacrifice to the altars of musical mummies? The Verdi before "Othello" and "Aida" should be relegated to the organ-grinders of New York's East Side, and allowed to do its work there where it will be appreciated. Surely, it cannot be that Los Angeles has no ambition other than to hear Verdi for the rest of its life. I should be willing, at least, among my readers, to take a straw bollot on it. But the impresario knows his public, and Verdi it is.

The Boston National Opera Company will bring a Russian ballet with it, and will give the ballets in their places in "Faust" and "Iris." This is the organization with which Pavlowa danced last year, and it is an assemblage of superior artists, with no spectacular names, but a rich ensemble. The entire company is made up of artists of the first rank, and the settings are by Bakst and Urban. There are sixteen members of the Daighileff Russian ballet with this company, and the remainder are of the Boston company of last year. We had such difficulty in accepting the pure Russian recently, that it is to be hoped it will go better when flavored with our favorite Italian fare.

EDUCATORS.

Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale University, in an article entitled "The Fight for Public Health," says that he has made a complete study of the longevity of the Presidents, the Senators and Representatives of the United States. He finds that the average life of the Presidents after inauguration is below the average in the country and considerably below that of insured lives. Moreover, it is steadily diminishing.

Bill Bill Ferguson of Central Point, Or., cowboy expert in raising cattle, has been engaged by Mrs. Potter Palmer of Chicago as a nature tutor to her five grandchildren. The scene of Big Bill's activity will be on Mrs. Palmer's large estate at Saratoga, Fla. His pupils will be three boys and two girls, ranging from 4 to 12 years. He is also to put a herd of "baby" cattle, great milk producers, on the estate. He will teach the children all about birds and animals and their habits. He is six feet three inches and 30 years old.

The resignation of Barrett Wendell, for eighteen years professor of English at Harvard University, is announced. In accepting his resignation the Havard corporation voted to make him professor emeritus of English. Most of his courses will be assumed by Prof. Bliss Perry.

Dr. Arthur Huntington Nason, assistant professor of English at New York University since 1913, was promoted to full professorship at the last meeting of the University Council. Professor Nason is a graduate of Bowdoin College, where he took his M.A. degree in 1903, and in 1915 he was awarded his Ph.D. degree at Columbia. Dr. Nason was appointed instructor of English in New York University in 1905. He is also an instructor in the Union Theological Seminary, director of the recently-organized New York University Press, a member of the Andiron Club and of the Delta Kappa Epsilon Fraternity, and the author of several books, among them "Short Themes and Long" and "James Shirley, Dramatist."

MEN AND EVENTS.

Carl Lantis claims to be champion gopher catcher of Dickinson county, Kansas. At the county seat he was paid a bounty for 700 gophers. In addition to the bounty paid by the county the farmers pay 10 cents for each gopher caught. Mr. Lantis, who was formerly a school teacher, has abandoned that profession for this more profitable one of gopher trapping.

Lawrence Huntington of Philadelphia recently broke the long distance American piano record by playing for sixty-five hours and fourteen minutes without rest. By the terms of the contest both hands had to be kept going continuously. Attendants did all in their power to ease the strain. They kept Huntington's hands coated with chalk and groomed him as if they were seconding him at a prize fight. While he was pounding away, they would massage his arms to lessen the muscular tension as much as possible.

NORTH SOLVES OUR PROBLEM.

Flood Control Conditions are Same in Character.

Says Engineer of River Work in Washington.

Tells of Successful Means Used Near Tacoma.

Similarity of conditions requiring flood control in Los Angeles county to those which exist in the Puyallup River, between Tacoma and Seattle, are pointed out by J. H. Walter, principal assistant engineer of the Pacific Intercounty River Improvement, with headquarters at Tacoma, who is now in Los Angeles.

Mr. Walter has been here for several days, studying the machinery which might be best adapted for the flood control work in which he is engaged in the north, and he declares that the same problems are presented here as must be met in the north. The principles of stream rectification and bank protection must be followed in each case. While the problem of drift and trees carried by the northern streams is considerably greater than that carried by the streams here, the quickness with which the waters rise and the devastation caused thereby are similar.

The following covers, in substance, a statement made yesterday by Mr. Walter:

"THE RIVER CHANGES COURSE.

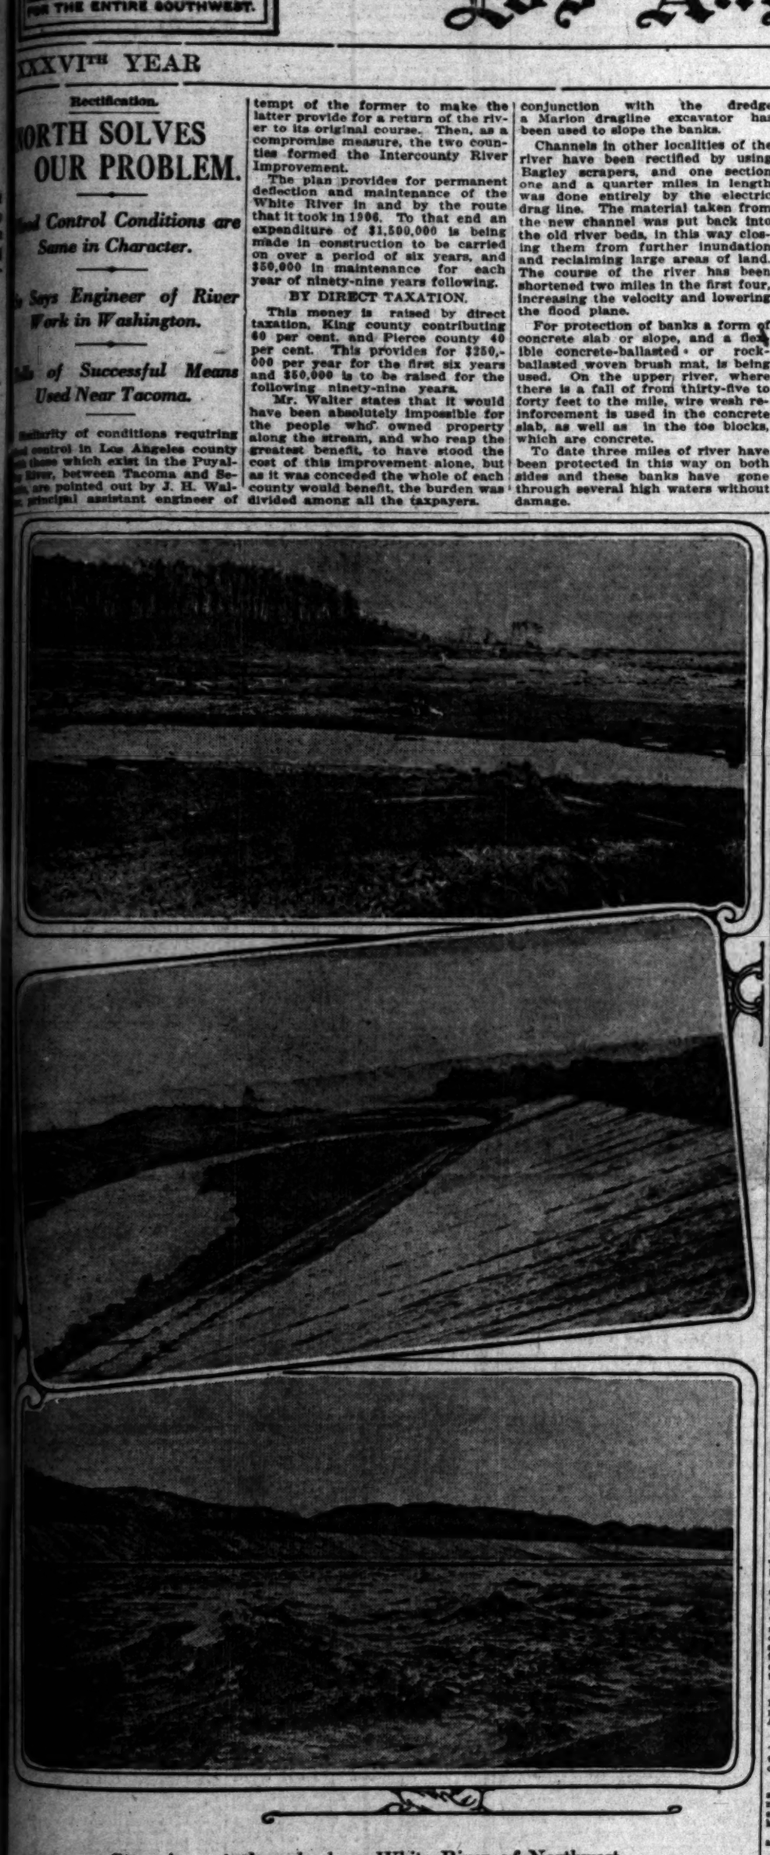
"The White River, which has its source in the snows of Mt. Tacoma, flows in a northerly and westerly direction to Puget Sound and is torrential and destructive. In 1906, with the coming of floods, the channel of the river was changed and it took a course south through the Stuck valley and thence on through Puyallup valley. It cut a wide swath over the valley land, making a tortuous course. Lands, houses, barns and in one or two human lives were destroyed. The river was deflected from side to side, in some places cutting out channels half a mile wide and in some places taking entirely new courses for the channel. The distance between Pierce county and King county followed in the attempt of the former to make the river latter provide for a return of the river to its original course. Then, as a compromise measure, the two counties formed the Intercounty River Improvement.

The plan provides for permanent deflection and maintenance of the White River in and by the route that it took in 1906. To that end an expenditure of $1,500,000 is being made in construction to be carried on over a period of six years, and $50,000 in maintenance for each year of ninety-nine years following.

BY DIRECT TAXATION.

This money is raised by direct taxation, King county contributing 40 per cent. and Pierce county 40 per cent. This provides for $250,000 per year for the first six years and $50,000 is to be raised for the following ninety-nine years.

Mr. Walter states that it would have been absolutely impossible for the people who owned property along the stream, and who reap the greatest benefit, to have stood the cost of this improvement alone, but as it was conceded the whole of each county would benefit, the burden was divided among all the taxpayers.



Steps in control work along White River of Northwest.

Upper picture shows the flood-ravaged country before control work was started. In the center is shown a section of the concrete slabs with which the red-edged channel was lined, and below, the waters turned into the man-made channel.

The handling of this flood control and improvement falls into three distinct divisions: Removal of drift, rectification of channels, and protection of banks.

Pierce county, from 1906 to 1913, spent large sums of money in deflecting bulkheads and for short rectifications, but it was inadequate. The chief engineer of the Intercounty River Improvement, W. J. Roberts, made a comprehensive study of conditions, outlined a general scheme and followed that up by detailed plans.

PLAN OF PROCEDURE.

Removal of drift was first undertaken, as this was the greatest menace. After clearing drifts, a barrier was constructed of concrete piers set about fifty feet apart and strung between with one-inch wire cables, for the purpose of catching the drift. When the drift increases to the point of becoming a menace it is removed and burned. It appears to have solved the problem of drift in that section. H. H. Wolf, a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, was in charge of that particular unit, and a detailed account by him can be found in the proceedings of the American Society.

The tower river is quite tortuous and it was considered advisable to rectify this. An electrically operated hydraulic dredge was used to move material in straightening the channel. It has operated a little over a year and has moved upward of 1,750,000 yards of earth. In conjunction with the dredge a Marion dragline excavator has been used to slope the banks.

Channels in other localities of the river have been rectified by using Bagley scrapers, and one section one and a quarter miles in length was done entirely by the electric drag line. The material taken from the new channel was put back into the old river beds, in this way closing them from further inundation and reclaiming large areas of land. The course of the river has been shortened two miles in the first four, increasing the velocity and lowering the flood plane.

For protection of banks a form of concrete slab or slope, and a flexible concrete-ballasted or rock-ballasted woven brush mat, is being used. On the upper river, where there is a fall of from thirty-five to forty feet to the mile, wire wash reinforcement is used in the concrete slab, as well as in the toe blocks, which are concrete.

To date three miles of river have been protected in this way on both sides and these banks have gone through several high waters without damage.

INDORSES LEMON JUICE FACTORY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RIVERSIDE, Jan. 27.—After a thorough investigation of the qualities of a lemon juice manufactured according to a certain process, the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce has indorsed a plan for the establishment of a plant in this city.

The action followed the receipt of the report of the Citrus By-products Committee, which has spent months in testing out a juice made after a formula worked out by Charles Cable.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Jan. 27.—Letters of administration were yesterday issued in the Superior Court to Knute Holstrum, in the estate of his brother, Carl Holstrum, who met with mysterious death near Placerville, and whose decomposed body was found under a tree at that place several weeks ago. El Dorado county authorities are still conducting an investigation, convinced that the deceased met with foul play. Holstrum left an estate valued at more than $30,000.

FOR SALE—CHANDLER SIX TOURING CARS 1915 and 1916 models, ranging in price from $600 to $950, on easiest possible terms. We are the sales agents for new Chandlers and these used cars are taken in trade on new cars from owners who wanted the latest style in motor cars and were willing to pay for it. Every used CHANDLER offered for sale in this company is thoroughly reliable and guaranteed the same as though it were a new car. In fact, it is as good as a new car for every purpose except that they have not the late body lines; however they do not look out of date, and that alone is a great deal more than can be said of the latest models of cheaper priced new cars. There has been very little mechanical changes in the CHANDLER; therefore mechanically those cars are practically the same as the 1917 model CHANDLER. When you see these cars you will certainly agree that it is better to purchase a high-grade used car than a cheap new one. Open Sundays, 11 to 4 p.m. Phone Main 8459—Home 60695. Address 1136 S. OLIVE STREET.

FOR SALE—LIGHT SIX-CYLINDER SEVEN-PASsenger late 1916 model Mitchell touring car at $850. This car was taken in trade on a new car from an owner who looked on an enclosed machine, and it readily shows that he was one who believed in taking care of his automobile, and we can say that as to the mechanical condition that we will not hesitate to give a guarantee as strong as the best man of the Chandler Six. Terms. Open Sundays, 11 to 4 p.m. Phone: 60695, or Main 8459. Address 1136 S. OLIVE ST.

FOR SALE—1917 CHANDLER TOURING CAR that is absolutely as good as a new car and costs $1650 cash. This car is taken in trade at a discount of $400; extra tire, opera curtains, Victoria plate curtains, etc. Price $1250. How is a car that is absolutely as good as a new car to have the opportunity of owning the first demonstrating, and in making that saving you are not sacrificing anything as it can be truthfully told from a new car and then only by seeing the slight wear in the tires. Open Sundays and Mondays, 11 to 4 p.m., 1136 SOUTH OLIVE ST. 60695, or Main 8459.

FOR SALE—MARMON, FIVE-PASSENGER, TOURing car, electrically started and lighted, late 1915 model, fully equipped in every respect for $2000, on reasonable terms. FOR SALE—ELECTRICALLY STARTED AND lighted, Overland 1914 model touring car at $250, on reasonable terms. This car is in excellent mechanical condition and we know you will get real service out of it, and therefore will issue a liberal guarantee. FOR SALE—ONE OF THE CLASSIEST CARS that you will find as you look at all the automobiles offered in this line, but it is as good as it looks. As we are not specialists in used cars, and as we know the one to be in perfect condition it will pay you to have a guarantee with it. Electrically started and lighted; wire wheels, and in fact the equipment that you will find on the latest model cars goes with this late 1915 "Monroe Special" Chevrolet roadster. Price $900, on reasonable terms and it cost just double that amount new, so you must appreciate that it is a high-grade car. Open Sundays, 11 to 4 p.m., 1136 S. Olive, or Main 8459. Address 1136 SOUTH OLIVE ST.

The Realty Market
SURVEY OF THE BROAD FIELD

Los Angeles Sunday Times

Part V: 16 Pages
THE EVER-HIGH TIDE.

XXXVITH YEAR | SUNDAY MORNING, JANUARY 28, 1917. | THE MART | Transactions in Homes and Lots, Bargains in Blocks and Squares.

FACT AND COMMENT.

Beginning March 1, one assessor and one tax collector will make assessments and collect taxes for both Los Angeles county and city. Next fall when taxes come due the public will be able to pay both city and county obligations at one time and place. Such is the purpose and effect of the consolidation of the offices of city assessor and tax collector with the corresponding departments of the county, which was voted overwhelmingly by the people of Los Angeles last fall and which has just been made a law by action of the State Legislature. The saving in time, money and convenience occasioned by this measure will be great. The wonder is that Los Angeles persisted so long in maintaining the expensive and cumbersome double system of taxation under which all the assessment and collecting work in the city was regularly duplicated year after year by the county and city tax officials. The economy of the plan from a money consideration is shown by the fact that it will cost the city $31,100 this year to have the county do its assessment work, whereas last year's cost under the old system was $71,000.

Most of the credit for the putting through of this great economy measure must be given to the Los Angeles Realty Board's Consolidation Committee, which, under the chairmanship of Herbert L. Cornish, worked unceasingly for the success of the plan at the last municipal election. Mr. Cornish personally was largely responsible for getting the measure ratified at the present session of the Legislature. But for the persistence in the matter, the public might have been permitted to wait over for another term, in which case the city would not have been in position to profit by the saving now effected.

Building Time.

Now is the season of the year when wise householders with private homes and back yards in the residence districts begin thinking about planting a garden. Seeds are an item of interest in many a family. In many a living-room table there is now being planted on paper the garden that is to be. The winter and spring season, with its own flowers and vegetables, is to yield to a more attractive period of planting. Never was there a time when the planting of gardens was calculated to interest so many people. The high cost of living has brought things to such a pass that the average family cannot afford to miss the opportunity for growing vegetables to be found in its own back yard or in adjoining vacant lots. Vegetables to the value of half the cost of food for home consumption in most families.

With a careful selection of seeds from a reliable seed house and a little planning as to the arrangement of beds, the average head of a family can make his back yard a highly-yielding area. The amount of work required in the ordinary city garden is not such as to take much time from even his periods of recreation, and the exercise gained by digging and delving in the ground always beneficial. It is a mistake for a householder not to do a little gardening every year, especially in Southern California, where the matchless growing weather insures such satisfying returns.

The Beginning.

The three days yet to be heard from in January has rolled up a building permit valuation of approximately $3,600,000, which is the second largest total ever reached in a single month in the structural annals of Los Angeles. Application has been made for a permit for the $600,000 theater and studio structure now being reared by the Stability Building Company at the southwest corner of Third and Broadway and if this big item is added to the month's total, January is sure to eclipse all records.

The month's valuation figure is in pleasing contrast to those of the past three years and is reminiscent of the busiest of the days that preceded the lump of 1914. Never has a year started out more promisingly with respect to building operations. Enough important projects are now assured for February to make the second month of 1917 live up to all the expectations aroused by the first.

With building rehabilitated to its old-time activity, it may be reasonably anticipated that the already noticeable improvement in the real estate market will continue. Dealers have been reporting an increasing amount of inquiry for all kinds of property throughout January and what is of greater importance, sales are steadily picking up.

TO HANDLE RANCH.

Large Tract at City's Edge to be Marketed by Local Firm.

As the result of negotiations concluded during the past week, the sales agency of the Laguna Land and Water Company's extensive holdings southeast of the city will be taken over by the firm of Campbell & Bentley. The property was formerly a part of the great De Baker estate and has only recently been acquired by a local syndicate for subdivision. It comprises 2700 acres adjoining Huntington Park and is bisected by the Los Angeles-Whittier line of the Pacific Electric Railway.

Representatives of Campbell & Bentley announce that the big tract is to be sold in parcels ranging from as small as half an acre up to farms of twenty or more acres. Part of it will be given over to industrial sites, for which its proximity to Los Angeles adapts it.

R. E. Chadwick, a San Diego and Los Angeles real estate man, will have charge of the sales force handling the property. February 1 is the date set for the formal opening.

FIRM KEPT BUSY.

The construction department of the Edwards & Wildey Company has recently started or completed a number of important contracts not only in Los Angeles but in other cities. The most recent contracts secured by the company were for the $55,000 High School at Kingman, Ariz., and the branch City Hall at Van Nuys in the San Fernando Valley. Among other buildings in course of erection by this firm are the following: Brick garage at Forty-third and Moneta for Joseph Engert, $8000; bungalow court at Thirtieth and Figueroa, for G. E. Leaton, $12,600; residence at Eagle Rock for Edward Klokke, $2500; brick garage on Brand boulevard, Glendale, for Mattison B. Jones, $4500; three colonial bungalows of eight rooms each on Edgemont boulevard, for California Bungalow Company, $8500; fourteen-room residence, corner Lily Crest and Edgemont, for Jasper L. Jones, $4000; and two ten-room residences in the Normal School district for its own account, cost $4000 each.

TO HANDLE REALTY.

Sydney B. Brown, a local realty man, has taken charge of the real estate department of the Southern California Home Builders. The company, which has been largely reorganized during the past year, will, it is understood, actively take up new development work within a short time.

Modern.

WILL REPLACE OLD LANDMARK

Big Apartment for Business College Site.

Fine Improvement Started on West Tenth.

Other Notable Enterprises are Now Shaping.

One of the largest apartment houses ever projected in Los Angeles is now being started at Nos. 953 to 957 West Seventh street by L. T. Mayo and associates. The building, which was planned and which will be constructed by the designing and contracting firm of which Mr. Mayo is the head, will occupy the site of what was long the home of the Brownsberger Commercial College and more recently of the Federation of State Societies. Its cost will, it is reported, be in the neighborhood of $150,000.

The lot, which has already been cleared of the old-time frame building familiar to a generation of Los Angeles people, has a frontage of seventy-two feet on Seventh by a depth of over 200 feet, there being also an "L"-shaped extension at the rear. The new improvement will be five stories in height and forty-five feet wide, running back almost to the full depth of the property and covering the angle at the rear, where its width will be 100 feet.

The structure will be of brick construction and will follow Tudor Gothic lines in-so-far as its facade is concerned. The front will be faced with brick and stone. Bay windows will be a feature. The entrance will be in marble. A garage for the use of the guests will be built just back of the building.

The structure will contain more than 200 rooms, in suites of two and three rooms each, together with a large and attractively finished lobby, billiard and social rooms. The baths throughout will be in tile.

Work has also just been started on a three-story brick apartment house for Harry J. and May P. Benedict, at the northwest corner of Tenth and Blaine streets. The building was planned and is being erected by Taylor Brothers. Its design will be along Spanish lines, the plastered walls being set off by iron balconies and the roof being of tile. The interior finish will be in mahogany and old ivory. Lobby, halls and rooms will be papered and decorated.

The lot has a frontage of 120 feet on Blaine street by sixty-seven feet on Tenth and the property is being so laid out that there will be a large court on the west side of the apartments. The building itself will be equipped in the most modern way, one of its features being electric elevator service. The place is to be operated by the owners.

The Atlas Building Company will start work within a few days upon a four-story brick apartment house at No. 671 South Coronado street for the Wilshire Hotel Company, of which E. J. Eisenmeyer is president. The plans for the structure were drawn by Peoples & Cheney and call for a building of 140 rooms to cover a ground area of 150x130 feet. The street front will be handsomely faced with ruffled brick and stone.

A two-story frame apartment house of forty rooms is to be started this week by John Delf at Sunset boulevard and Edgecliffe drive. The building will cover a ground area of 47x139 feet. W. F. Johns has had plans prepared for a twenty-room flat at No. 227 North Hobart boulevard. Work is to be begun at once on a sixteen-room flat for Florence E. Dycher at No. 1279 Elysian Park avenue. S. H. Rigby is having plans drawn for a sixteen-room flat at No. 1050 West Temple street.

Fine Improvements for Close-in Locations.

Modern apartment-houses now being started in Los Angeles.

The five-story structure above was planned and is being built by L. T. Mayor for himself and associates on West Seventh street. That below is being built for Harry J. and May P. Benedict at Tenth and Blaine streets by Taylor Brothers.

TO CHICAGO MAN.

Edward J. Sullivan of this city reports having sold 158 lots, comprising a portion of his holdings at Mission Beach in San Diego, to M. C. Lowry of Chicago. The consideration is not given. The Chicago man is stated to have bought the property for investment, intending to devote it to industrial purposes.

SOUTH END TRANSFERS.

The McCarthy Company reports the sale of a five-room chalet at No. 904 West Seventy-ninth street to G. L. Cennor for $2750, and the sale of a four-room bungalow at No. 315 East Seventieth street to F. Hyman for $1300.

ADDS TO HOLDINGS.

Los Angeles Capitalist Buys Six Thousand Acre Tract.

Carroll W. Gates, a Los Angeles capitalist, added to his already large holdings around Tulare Lake in Kings county during the past week by purchasing 6000 acres of land thirty miles south of Hanford from the heirs of the late F. C. Paulin, a wealthy Brentwood Park man, who died about a year ago. The sale was negotiated through Brown Bros. of this city, representing the German-American Trust and Savings Bank, administrator of the estate. The consideration is understood to have been in the neighborhood of $250,000.

The land is a portion of a tract of 10,000 acres purchased by Mr. Paulin and a number of well-known Los Angeles men in 1904 and 4000 acres of which was sold, following the installation of an extensive reclamation and irrigation system. Something like 150 miles of canals were constructed in the tract by the syndicate in question before any land was marketed. Mr. Paulin bought out his associates after the tract had been reduced to 6000 acres.

Mr. Gates expects to still further improve the drainage facilities of the property by the construction of ditches and levees and to develop the present pumping plant for getting water out of Tulare Lake onto the land to the full capacity needed for bringing the entireacreage under cultivation. Later he will probably subdivide the holding for the market.

SET EXHIBIT DATE.

The Southern California chapter of the American Institute of Architects has decided to hold this year's architectural exhibit the first two weeks in March. The exhibit, which will be the sixth to be held in this city by the chapter, will occupy a large space in the quarters of the Metropolitan exhibit of building materials in the Metropolitan Building at Fifth and Broadway. The committee appointed by the chapter to take charge of the event consists of Myron Hunt, S. Tilden Norton, A. F. Rosenheim, Sylvanus B. Marston and John C. Austin.

Flintridge.

HOME TO HAVE FINE SETTING.

COUNTRY PLACE PLANNED TO FIT SURROUNDINGS.

Large Dwelling of Rustic Type will be Built on Wooded Knoll Overlooking the Picturesque La Canada Valley—Other Projects for Same District.

A large and attractive country home, planned along unique lines and designed to fit into an unusually picturesque setting, is to be started within the next few days by E. R. Brainerd in Flintridge, the 1500-acre suburban subdivision now being opened by former United States Senator Frank P. Flint at La Canada. Working drawings for the place have just been completed by Arthur B. Benton, the architect.

The house will stand on a knoll near the fine home of Mr. Flint, directly fronting upon the sightly little public park that is one of the attractions of the new residence district. Its site commands a straight outlook toward the Sierra Madre Mountains at the northern edge of La Canada Valley and has extreme dimensions of 300x275 feet, being of irregular shape. Several clusters of live oaks contribute to the natural beauty of the property.

The residence is to be of rustic design, stone and rough shakes playing a large part in its exterior construction. Its plan is rambling, the architect having laid out the two wings that extend from the main portion at angles insuring the occupants the full benefit of the inspiring views in all directions. The central part and the east wing will be two stories, the west wing a single story, excepting for rooms over the porte cochere to be occupied by servants. The foundations will conform to the naturally uneven contour of the ground.

There will be sixteen rooms. The living-room will be 20x44 feet in size and will have large bays at both front and rear, the latter being circular in shape and opening directly into a large circular sunroom. Back of this will be a wide, paved terrace from which steps will lead to a garden and swimming pool. The dining-room, 20x15 feet, will have a breakfast-room annex. The bedrooms throughout will be large and airy and will look out over the valley.

The Realty Market — SURVEY OF THE BROAD FIELD

Part V: 16 Pages — THE EVER-HIGH TIDE.

XXXVITH YEAR — SUNDAY MORNING, JANUARY 28, 1917. — THE MART | Transactions in Houses and Lots, Bargains in Blocks and Acreage.

FACT AND COMMENT.

Beginning March 1, one assessor and one tax collector will make assessments and collect taxes for both Los Angeles county and city. Next fall when taxes come due the public will be able to pay both city and county obligations at one time and place. Such is the purpose and effect of the consolidation of the offices of city assessor and tax collector with the corresponding departments of the county, which was voted overwhelmingly by the people of Los Angeles last fall and which has just been made a law by legislation of the State Legislature. The saving in time, money and convenience occasioned by this measure will be great. The wonder is that Los Angeles persisted so long in maintaining the expensive and cumbersome double system of taxation under which all the assessment and collecting work in the city was regularly duplicated year after year by the county and city tax offices. The economy of the plan from a money consideration is shown by the fact that it will cost the city $50,000 this year to have the county do its assessment work, whereas last year's cost under the old system was $85,000.

Most of the credit for the putting through of this great economy measure must be given to the Los Angeles Realty Board's Consolidation Committee, which, under the chairmanship of Herbert L. Cornish, worked unceasingly for the success of the plan at the last municipal election. Mr. Cornish personally was largely responsible for getting the measure ratified at the present session of the Legislature. But for the persistence in the matter, the bill might have been permitted to die for another term, in which case the city would not have been in position to profit by the saving now effected.

Planting Time.

Now is the season of the year when wise householders with pride in homes and back yards in the residence districts begin thinking about planting a garden. Seeds are a topic of interest in many a family. And many a living-room table there now being platted on paper the plots that is to be. The winter growing season, with its own flowers and vegetables, is to yield to a more productive period of planting. Never was there a time when the subject of gardens was calculated to interest so many people. The high cost of living has brought things to such a pass that the average family cannot afford to miss the opportunity for growing vegetables to be found in its own back yard or in vacant lots. Vegetables run up half the cost of food for the consumption in most families.

With a careful selection of seeds from a reliable seed house and a little planning as to the arrangement of beds, the average head of a family can make his back yard a money-yielding area. The amount of labor required in the ordinary city garden is not such as to take much time from even his periods of recreation, and the exercise gained by digging and delving in the ground always beneficial. It is a mistake for a householder not to do a little gardening every year, especially in Southern California, where the matchless growing weather insures such satisfying returns.

Work Beginning.

The first three days yet to be heard from in January has rolled up a building permit valuation of approximately $1,600,000, which is the second largest total ever reached in a single month in the structural annals of Los Angeles. Application has been made for a permit for the $600,000 theater and studio structure now being reared by the Stability Building Company at the southwest corner of Third and Broadway and if this big item is added to the month's total, January is sure to eclipse all records.

The month's valuation figure is in pleasing contrast to those of the past three years and is reminiscent of the busiest of the days that preceded the lump of 1914. Never has a year started out more promisingly with respect to building operations. Enough important projects are now assured for February to make the second month of 1917 live up to all the expectations aroused by the first.

With building rehabilitated to its old-time activity, it may be reasonably anticipated that the already noticeable improvement in the real estate market will continue. Dealers have been reporting an increasing amount of inquiry for all kinds of property throughout January and what is of greater importance, sales are steadily picking up.

TO HANDLE RANCH.

Large Tract at City's Edge to be Marketed by Local Firm.

As the result of negotiations concluded during the past week, the sales agency of the Laguna Land and Water Company's extensive holdings southeast of the city will be taken over by the firm of Campbell & Bentley. The property was formerly a part of the great De Baker estate and has only recently been acquired by a local syndicate for subdivision. It comprises 2700 acres adjoining Huntington Park and is bisected by the Los Angeles-Whittier line of the Pacific Electric Railway.

Representatives of Campbell & Bentley announce that the big tract is to be sold in parcels ranging from as small as half an acre up to farms of twenty or more acres. Part of it will be given over to industrial sites, for which its proximity to Los Angeles adapts it.

H. E. Chadwick, a San Diego and Los Angeles real estate man, will have charge of the sales force handling the property. February 1 is the date set for the formal opening.

FIRM KEPT BUSY.

The construction department of the Edwards & Wildey Company has recently started or completed a number of important contracts not only in Los Angeles but in other cities. The most recent contracts secured by the company were for the $55,000 High School at Kingman, Ariz., and the branch City Hall at Van Nuys in the San Fernando Valley. Among other buildings in course of erection by this firm are the following: Brick garage at Forty-third and Moneta for Joseph Engert, $6000; bungalow court at Thirtieth and Figueroa, for G. E. Laston, $12,600; residence at Eagle Rock for Edward Klokke, $2500; brick garage on Brand boulevard, Glendale, for Mattison B. Jones, $4500; three colonial bungalows of eight rooms each on Edgemont boulevard, for California Bungalow Company, $8500; fourteen-room residence, corner Lily Crest and Edgemont, for Jasper L. Jones, $6000; and two ten-room residences in the Normal School district for its own account, cost $4000 each.

TO HANDLE REALTY.

Sydney B. Brown, a local realty man, has taken charge of the real estate department of the Southern California Home Builders. The company, which has been largely reorganized during the past year, will, it is understood, actively take up new development work within a short time.

Modern.

WILL REPLACE OLD LANDMARK

Big Apartment for Business College Site.

Fine Improvement Started on West Tenth.

Other Notable Enterprises are Now Shaping.

One of the largest apartment houses ever projected in Los Angeles is now being started at Nos. 953 to 957 West Seventh street by L. T. Mayo and associates. The building, which was planned and which will be constructed by the designing and contracting firm of which Mr. Mayo is the head, will occupy the site of what was long the home of the Brownsberger Commercial College and more recently of the Federation of State Societies. Its cost will, it is reported, be in the neighborhood of $150,000.

The lot, which has already been cleared of the old-time frame building familiar to a generation of Los Angeles people, has a frontage of seventy-two feet on Seventh by a depth of over 200 feet, there being also an "L"-shaped extension at the rear. The new improvement will be five stories in height and forty-five feet wide, running back almost to the full depth of the property and covering the angle at the rear, where its width will be 100 feet.

The structure will be of brick construction and will follow Tudor Gothic lines in-so-far as its facade is concerned. The front will be faced with brick and stone. Bay windows will be a feature. The entrance will be in marble. A garage for the use of the guests will be built just back of the building.

The structure will contain more than 200 rooms, in suites of two and three rooms each, together with a large and attractively finished lobby, billiard and social rooms. The baths throughout will be in tile.

Work has also just been started on a three-story brick apartment house for Harry J. and May P. Benedict, at the northwest corner of Tenth and Blaine streets. The building was planned and is being erected by Taylor Brothers. The design will be along Spanish lines, the plastered walls being set off by iron balconies and the roof being of tile. The interior finish will be in mahogany and old ivory. Lobby, halls and rooms will be papered and decorated.

The lot has a frontage of 120 feet on Blaine street by sixty-seven feet on Tenth, and the property is being so laid out that there will be a large court on the west side of the apartments. The building itself will be equipped in the most modern way, one of its features being electric elevator service. The place is to be operated by the owners.

The Atlas Building Company will start work within a few days upon a four-story brick apartment house at No. 671 South Coronado street for the Wilshire Hotel Company, of which E. J. Eisenmeyer is president. The plans for the structure were drawn by Peoples & Cheney and call for a building of 140 rooms to cover a ground area of 150x130 feet. The street front will be handsomely faced with ruffled brick and stone.

A two-story frame apartment house of forty rooms is to be started this week by John Delf at Sunset boulevard and Edgecliffe drive. The building will cover a ground area of 47x129 feet. W. F. Johns has had plans prepared for a twenty-room flat at No. 227 North Hobart boulevard. Work is to be begun at once on a sixteen-room flat for Florence E. Dycher at No. 1279 Elysian Park avenue. S. H. Rigby is having plans drawn for a sixteen-room flat at No. 1050 West Temple street.

Fine Improvements for Close-in Locations.

Modern apartment-houses now being started in Los Angeles.

The five-story structure above was planned and is being built by L. T. Mayor for himself and associates on West Seventh street. That below is being built for Harry J. and May P. Benedict at Tenth and Blaine streets by Taylor Brothers.

TO CHICAGO MAN.

Edward J. Sullivan of this city reports having sold 158 lots, comprising a portion of his holdings at Mission Beach in San Diego, to M. C. Lowry of Chicago. The consideration is not given. The Chicago man is stated to have bought the property for investment, intending to devote it to industrial purposes.

SOUTH END TRANSFERS.

The McCarthy Company reports the sale of a five-room chalet at No. 904 West Seventy-ninth street to G. L. Connor for $2750, and the sale of a four-room bungalow at No. 315 East Seventieth street to F. Hyman for $1300.

ADDS TO HOLDINGS.

Los Angeles Capitalist Buys Six Thousand Acre Tract.

Carroll W. Gates, a Los Angeles capitalist, added to his already large holdings around Tulare Lake in Kings county during the past week by purchasing 6000 acres of land thirty miles south of Hanford from the heirs of the late F. C. Paulin, a wealthy Brentwood Park man, who died about a year ago. The sale was negotiated through Brown Bros. of this city, representing the German-American Trust and Savings Bank, administrator of the estate. The consideration is understood to have been in the neighborhood of $250,000.

The land is a portion of a tract of 10,000 acres purchased by Mr. Paulin and a number of well-known Los Angeles men in 1904 and 4000 acres of which was sold, following the installation of an extensive reclamation and irrigation system. Something like 150 miles of canals were constructed in the tract by the syndicate in question before any land was marketed. Mr. Paulin bought out his associates after the tract had been reduced to 6000 acres.

Mr. Gates expects to still further improve the drainage facilities of the property by the construction of ditches and levees and to develop the present pumping plant for getting water out of Tulare Lake onto the land to the full capacity needed for bringing the entireacreage under cultivation. Later he will probably subdivide the holding for the market.

SET EXHIBIT DATE.

The Southern California chapter of the American Institute of Architects has decided to hold this year's architectural exhibit the first two weeks in March. The exhibit, which will be the sixth to be held in this city by the chapter, will occupy a large space in the quarters of the Metropolitan exhibit of building materials in the Metropolitan Building at Fifth and Broadway. The committee appointed by the chapter to take charge of the event consists of Myron Hunt, S. Tilden Norton, A. F. Rosenheim, Sylvanus B. Marston and John C. Austin.

Flintridge.

HOME TO HAVE FINE SETTING.

COUNTRY PLACE PLANNED TO FIT SURROUNDINGS.

Large Dwelling of Rustic Type will be Built on Wooded Knoll Overlooking the Picturesque La Canada Valley—Other Projects for Same District.

A large and attractive country home, planned along unique lines and designed to fit into an unusually picturesque setting, is to be started within the next few days by E. R. Brainerd in Flintridge, the 1500-acre suburban subdivision now being opened by former United States Senator Frank P. Flint at La Canada. Working drawings for the place have just been completed by Arthur B. Benton, the architect.

The house will stand on a knoll near the fine home of Mr. Flint, directly fronting upon the sightly little public park that is one of the attractions of the new residence district. Its site commands a straight outlook toward the Sierra Madre Mountains at the northern edge of La Canada Valley and has extreme dimensions of 300x275 feet, being of irregular shape. Several clusters of live oaks contribute to the natural beauty of the property.

The residence is to be of rustic design, stone and rough shakes playing a large part in its exterior construction. Its plan is rambling, the architect having laid out the two wings that extend from the main portion at angles insuring the occupants the full benefit of the inspiring views in all directions. The central part and the east wing will be two stories, the west wing a single story, excepting for rooms over the porte cochere to be occupied by servants. The foundations will conform to the naturally uneven contour of the ground.

There will be sixteen rooms. The living-room will be 20x44 feet in size and will have large bays at both front and rear, the latter being circular in shape and opening directly into a large circular sunroom. Back of this will be a wide, paved terrace from which steps will lead to a garden and swimming pool. The dining-room, 20x15 feet, will have a breakfast-room annex. The bedrooms throughout will be large and airy and will look out over the valley.

The Brainerd house is one of a number of fine places planned for the near future in Flintridge. Extensive general improvements are now being completed in the tract.

Stern, a local builder who has operated extensively in the North Wilshire district for the past three years, reports the following recent sales of houses built by himself: Six-room bungalow at No. 729 North Gramercy place, to George McIntosh, $4200; six-room bungalow at No. 623 North Gramercy, to Wallace G. Daniels, $4800; six-room bungalow at No. 645 North Gramercy, to Mary E. Squire, $4200; six-room bungalow at No. 619 North Gramercy, to Mrs. Jessie P. For an INVESTMENT or HOMESITE you may have a newly planted "Sunkist" orange, lemon or grapefruit grove. One that has been growing two, three, four, five years or longer. Full-bearing groves are obtainable at proportionate prices. Fontana groves are to be had in divisions of five, ten, fifteen, twenty or forty acres. A suitable estate for the retiring merchant or a profitable home for the man of comfortable means. Five or ten acres will provide a reasonable income.
Fontana groves are complete in every particular—including modern underground cement irrigation system and strong border rows of palm trees, pine trees and rose bushes.
The same efficient organization in charge of the FONTANA THOUSAND ACRES NOW UNDER CULTIVATION will take care of your property or direct and advise the newcomer.
The "Partnership of the Ten and the Orange" is an original Fontana plan that enables you to own a young grove—live on it at once—and practically pay for it while the trees are coming into maturity.
Experimenting and unnecessary costs are eliminated in the successful Fontana poultry plan. Able direction and supervision are yours by right of membership in the Fontana Co-operative Association.
Fontana is situated on three main line railroads—Pacific Electric, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific. Distance to best market in the West. Alfalfa land now getting for $450 per ton. Abundance of water, as river adjoins land, could divert or pump. No opportunity like this has been offered you in such land with such easy water conditions. My charge for locating you, $5 per acre. A New Way.

President Fulton Lane of the Board of Public Utilities, yesterday received word from Bremerton, Wash., that that city has voted to acquire a water plant for munici-pal operation by issuing bonds against the utility instead of against the city's credit. He says that plan could be adopted in Los An-geles if the people wished it.

A SATURDAY WEDDING.

Dwight Whiting and Miss Rosalind Morris are Married.

A pretty wedding occurred at 12:30 o'clock yesterday in St. John's Episcopal Church, Figueroa and Adams streets, the principals being Dwight Whiting, a member of the Bachelors' Club, and elder son of Mrs. Emily S. Perkins, and Miss Rosalind Morris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Morris of Holly-wood.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. George Davidson, rector of St. John's Church, assisted by Rev. J. Lloyd Keating, uncle of the groom, who has just arrived from England. George N. Whiting, brother of the groom, who came from Harvard University to attend the ceremony, acted as best man. Miss Mildred Wellborn was maid of honor. The bride was given away by her sister, Mrs. Sophia Bauman of San Fran-cisco. The church was beautifully decorated with palms, greenery and American Beauty roses. There was a large attendance of friends of both families represented.

Mr. and Mrs. Whiting have gone by automobile for a short honey-moon and on returning will make their residence at the Hotel Darby.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WHITTIER, Jan. 27. — Whittier High School won in the debate held here last night, in which Whittier affirmed and the visitors denied that "Capital and labor should be com-pelled to settle their disputes in le-gally-established commissions of ar-bitration." Whittier was represent-ed by Miss Lulu Purser and Ray-mond Nettleship, while the city school was represented by Miss Dor-othea Kerr and Albert Parker. The debate was one of a series being held under the direction of the inter-scholastic Debating League.

REVIVED PEACE REPORTS HEARD IN WALL STREET.

Trading on Exchange is Dull and Perfunctory, Leading Issues, as Well as Volatile Specialties, Recording Irregular Declines — Bank Statement Fails to Meet Expectations of a Large Loss of Cash.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Traders availed themselves of the revival of peace reports in the course of today's dull and perfunctory market, leading issues as well as volatile specialties recording irregular declines. The movement was assisted by conditions in the commodity markets, cereals yielding sharply with a contrary rise in cotton options.

United States Steel was offered down a point with 5 points for Bethlehem Steel and 1 to 2 points for affiliated industrials, 2 to 3 points for coppers and motors and more moderate recessions in equipments.

Offerings were heavy, with Industrial Alcohol, Distillers' securities, Central Leather, American Can, American Car Company, Beet Sugar, International Paper and kindred speculative issues were limited to fewer than a dozen stocks. Chief among these were General Electric, United States Rubber and Minneapolis and Omaha Railroad, the latter advancing more than 3 points. Rails as a group fell into a complete obscurity, the more representative issues remaining unquoted. Irregular trading marked the final dealings, sales amounting to 240,000 shares.

No financial news of the day preceded the announcement that subscriptions to the new British loan in the full amount of $500,000,000 had thereby insuring its success. Foreign exchange was slightly recovered, with no material alteration in other issues.

Government statement failed to meet the expectations of a large loss in the actual contraction being nominal, with a large increase, however, in loans, and a decrease of $11,000,000 in reserves, the first decline in five weeks.

The only feature of the irregular close was the heavy selling of Lorillard and San Francisco issues, concessions extending from 2 to 5 points. Foreign bonds were without change. Total sales, par value, $2,790,000. United States bonds were unchanged on call during the week.

FINANCIAL REVIEW.

Changes in quoted values of important stocks during a week of active and circumscribed operations were mostly nominal. Leaders fluctuated 2 to 3 points and special issues were usually irregular with a lower trend toward the end for shippings, rails and oils.

Dullness lagged throughout, total sales in that division being the least for any similar period in 12 months. With the approach of the quarterly meeting of the United States Steel Corporation interest in the stock centered on what action the directors would take in common stock.

Other industrials and metals as a group were steady to firm on the better tone of the markets for those products. Equipments and erstwhile "war brides" also changed hands at higher levels. Subsidence in large part of peace reports gave rise to reports of the early placing of new foreign contracts.

The new British loan, to which subscriptions are said to be gratifyingly large, an issue of $25,000,000 of Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway bonds, the bewildering movements of foreign exchange and the congressional inquiry into the so-called leak which is supposed to have caused the crumbling of prices last December, served to relieve the monotony of the week.

LIGHTER TRADING ON LOCAL EXCHANGE.

LESS DEMAND FOR THE OIL STOCKS.

Associated Declines a Full Point. Union Irregular, but Brings Higher Prices — Big Jim Advances—Yellow Pine Shows Improvement.

Trading on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange yesterday morning decreased considerably in volume. Demand for the oil stocks, which has been the outstanding feature to the activity on the local board for the past ten days, was of insignificant proportions. Associated declined a full point and Union, although selling higher, was not in heavy call by any means, only 165 shares changing hands. Opening 2 points up at 136.50, Union was again irregular, the high for the meeting being 137.00 while final dealings were at 135.75. General Petroleum advanced to 71.00 and Mascot brought 1.44 off board. It is reported that the Western Union Oil Company has raised its monthly dividend rate from 50 to 75 cents per share. This is the reason given for the pronounced strength that the stock has exhibited of late.

There was nothing to the activity in the mining issues worthy of comment. Big Jim closed a point higher and the quotation for Tom Reed was slightly stronger. Among the other Oatmans Boundary Cone, Lucky Boy, Carter, Gold Range, United Western and Gilt Edge were transferred in meager quantities. Yellow Pine was bullish and climbed to 1.50 while there was a persistent call for Boss. Reports from Goodsprings bear out the fact that the Boss mine contains exceptionally rich ore, a recent strike having encountered high-grade copper ore.

PEACE HOPES GIVE MARKET STRENGTH

MAY CONTRACTS $5.50 ABOVE MONDAY'S LOW.

Opening is Comparatively Quiet and Early Advance Encounters Realizing for Over the Week-end. Current Goods Business in West Reported Better than Last Year.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Jan. 27.—The cotton market today was stronger and more active, due to optimistic views on peace possibilities. May contracts sold up to 17.65, or 34 points above Friday's closing figure and about $5.50 a bale above the low level of Monday. Closing prices were within 2 or 3 points of the best, with the tone very steady at a net gain of 30 to 32 points.

The opening was comparatively quiet and an early advance of 10 or 11 points encountered realizing for over the week-end. Offerings were readily absorbed and the market became more active and firmer toward the end of the short session, with a broadening demand from Wall street sources.

Western goods distributors were quoted to the effect that current business was in excess of last year and some improvement was reported in the demand for cotton yarn. Business in goods at first hand did not seem particularly active, however, as Fall River sales for the week were estimated at 120,000 pieces against 175,000 last year. Manchester cabled that business was very dull in both cloths and yarns and also indicated unsettled labor conditions.

BIG JIM LOGIC

On the 29th of May, 1915, Big Jim was listed on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange at 10c per share. Since that time there have been many money-making opportunities—but we doubt if any of them have been so certain as the present one. Consider the following:

400 Level 25c to $1.30

On the 24th of December, 1915, Big Jim was selling at 25c per share. The cross-cut on the 400-foot level was being driven toward the ore body. The ore was encountered on December 27th and the stock immediately advanced to $1.30 per share.

485 Level $1.40 to $2.10

Again—In the latter part of March, 1916, Big Jim was selling at $1.40 per share and work was progressing toward the 485-foot level. The cross-cut on this level approached the ore body and the stock advanced. On April 12th the ore body was struck and the market reached a price of $2.10 the following day.

600 Level $1.35 to ?

Now—The Big Jim shaft has reached a depth of 575 feet and should be to the 600-foot point within ten days. An additional ten days should take the cross-cut into the ore body on this level. Remember this: the development of the ore body on this level will in all probability DOUBLE the value of the Big Jim ore.

The market on Big Jim is now advancing and should continue to advance steadily. When the ore is reached on the 600-foot level

MANY NEW HOMES BEING PLANNED.

RESIDENCE CONSTRUCTION IS PICKING UP.

Fine House Projected by Former Oklahoma Man in Northwest Los Angeles—Large Places to be Erected on Serrano, Berendo and Oxford.

One of the notable residence projects now shaping in this city is a fifteen-room house to be built by P. E. Magee, a former Oklahoma man, at the head of Camino Palmero, in Hollywood. Plans for the place are now being drawn by Myron Hunt. The house, it is understood, will have a frontage of about 125 feet. The site, which is 400x200 feet in size, is to be landscaped under the direction of Paul Howard.

Charles D. Wagner, a local designer and builder, is drawing plans for a fourteen-room house of hollow tile construction, which he will build for Luther Lindauer at Seventh street and Serrano avenue. The contract was let during the past week for a fourteen-room house planned by Alfred W. Rea and C. E. Garretang for Mrs. Mary S. Beeman and to be built on Oxford avenue, between Fourth and Fifth streets. Plans have been prepared by H. D. Johnson for a twelve-room house to be built by E. W. Wyman at No. 950 South Berendo street. Mrs. S. B. Smith has had plans drawn by Arthur G. Lindley for an eleven-room house at No. 836 Park View avenue. Work is to be started at once by the Cooper-Pyle-Clopine Company on two ten-room houses for S. M. Cooper, one to be built at No. 215 South Van Ness avenue and the other at No. 415 South Oxford. A. J. McDonald has had plans drawn for a ten-room double house to be built on Mariposa, near Sunset boulevard.

Other residences now being planned or about to go ahead include the following: Nine-room house for Mrs. Margaret F. Hammack, No. 150 South Avenue Fifty-five; nine-room house for D. S. LARGEST COURT.

Contractor Applies for Permit to Build Big Bungalow Group.

Samuel Gitelson, a local contractor, applied to the city building department during the past week for a permit covering the construction in Hollywood of what will probably be the largest bungalow court in Los Angeles. The project calls for an expenditure of about $60,000 and has been financed. Plans were drawn by Tifal Bros. Henry Heilman is the owner.

The court will consist of twelve double bungalows. Four of the houses will be of two stories, the rest being a single story. There will be sixteen four-room apartments and eight five-room apartments in the group. The buildings will have plastered exterior walls and white enamel interior finish. They will occupy a site 165x250 feet in size, being built around a large garden and lawn.

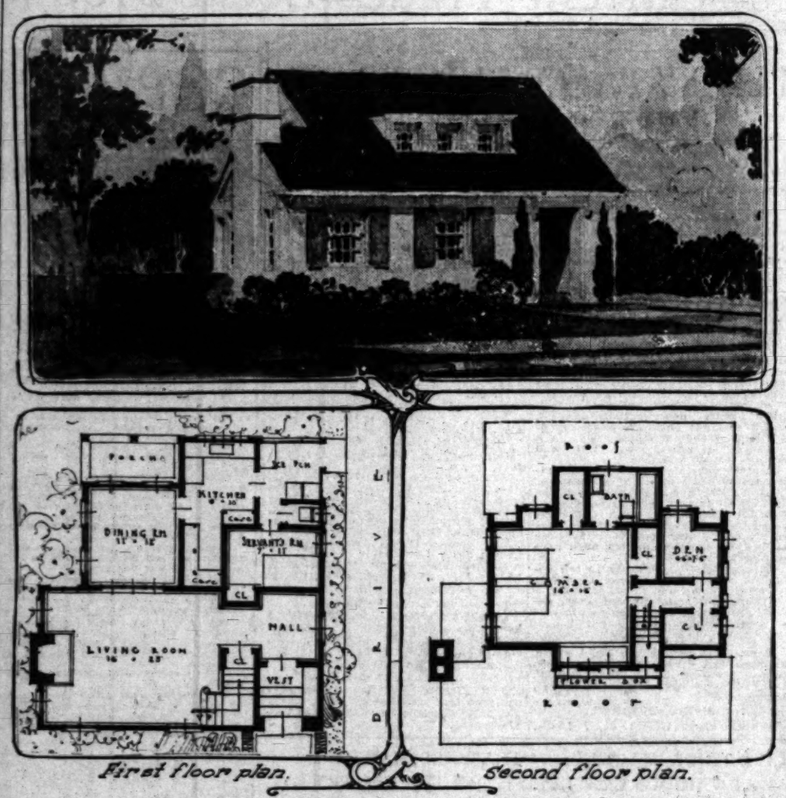
O. Rogers; lot on south side of Forty-third place, between St. Andrews and Gramercy, to O. W. Lake, $1200; lot on north side of Forty-third place, between St. Andrews and Gramercy, to E. C. Oswald; lot on north side of Vernon avenue, near Gramercy place, to Virginia Gruwell, $1075, through agency of Dimmick & Barnes.

TOWN IS GROWING.

Yorba Linda, the new townsite of the Janss Investment Company in the Yorba Linda citrus district, has recently been the scene of considerable building activity. The recent completion of an orange and lemon packing-house has been followed by the construction of nearly a score of bungalows for the employees of that plant, according to the owners and subdividers of the town. A brick building is now being erected for the newly-organized First National Bank of Yorba Linda. Other structures now under way in the town are a brick store building for Mrs. George F. Harris and a store and apartment building for W. H. Holloway.

Attractive Homes of Moderate Cost. No. 12.



A sightly "story-and-a-half" bungalow.

This charming little home is a model of completeness and was planned by Frank T. Kegley and H. Scott Gerity. Its cost is estimated by the designers at well within $3000.

WELL STUDIED OUT.

Plan for "Story-and-half" Bungalow is Model of Completeness.

It is rarely, indeed, that a place of residence so complete in every detail or arrangement and so satisfying as to exterior is encompassed within so small a space as is the charming little dwelling illustrated in the "moderate cost home" series today. This "story-and-a-half" bungalow of few rooms has everything to be found in larger, costlier places, event to the "roominess," which is so much desired by most builders and yet it is compact to a degree and particularly adapted to a small-sized lot. Its designers, Frank T. Kegley and H. Scott Gerity, estimate that it can be built complete for from $2700 to $2900, depending upon the interior finish.

The exterior suggests colonial types, but is distinctly original in conception. The walls are faced with white cement plaster, and green shutters set off the two large windows facing the street. The rather steep slope of the roof line is broken by a wide dormer containing three windows and set back far enough to allow space for a wide, deep flower box. The fireplace chimney projecting slightly from the end of the house and breaking the extended portion of the roof, it will be seen from the perspective, is one of the interesting details.

One of the commendable features of the plan is the attractive corner entrance, consisting of a small square vestibule paved with brick or tile and leading up a flight of three steps to the entrance hallway. The hall itself is an interesting bit of the plan, most houses of the size of the one pictured having entrances opening directly into the living-room. The desirable privacy secured by the arrangement shown will be obvious.

The living-room is 16x25 feet in size, much more ample, in fact, than might be expected in a house of such general proportions. The stairway to the upper floor projects into the corner nearest the vestibule and takes up surprisingly little space. Back of the living-room is a dining-room 11x12 feet, opening onto a rear porch overlooking the garden. There is room enough left on the first floor for not only a commodious kitchen and screen porch, but for a maid's room. The one bedroom of the second floor makes up in its size for the lack of more chambers. Across the hall from it is a room that can be used as a den or sewing-room.

The Leona apartments, a four-story brick structure of seventy rooms at the corner of West Sixth street and Burlington avenue, was exchanged during the past week by Harry Maidenburg for 320 acres of land in Butte county, owned by Judge J. W. Turner of Oakland. The deal was handled through V. P. Demens and E. B. Giffen of the E. B. Giffen Company.

The Oakland man has recently come to Los Angeles to make his permanent home. He will hold the apartment he has just acquired as an investment.

John P. Krempel and Walter E. Erkes have been commissioned to prepare plans for a two-story brick lodge building to be erected by the Sons of Hermann, a local German society, at No. 116 East Twenty-fifth street. The structure will cover a ground area of 60x145 feet and will contain two lodge rooms and a banquet and dance hall.

A. S. Heineman has just completed plans for a two-story brick store and office building to be erected by T. Hagaman at Hollywood boulevard and La Brea street, in Hollywood. There will be eight stores on the first floor and twelve offices on the second. C. M. S. Martz has had plans drawn for a one-story brick store building, which he will build at Hollywood and Winona boulevards.

Work is to be started this week on a one-story brick garage for D. B. Brunson on Western avenue near Third street and on a similar structure for H. A. Church on Pico street near Harvard boulevard.

TRACT ENLARGED.

The opening of a new tract as an addition to New Ramona Acres in the San Gabriel Valley is announced by the Janss Investment Company. The land lies along the car line and contains sixty-five plots of a little less than an acre each. It is the plan of the company to plant each parcel to fruit trees. Improvements, such as graded and oiled streets and utilities, will be made just as fast as the company's engineers can take care of the work, it is announced.

AID FOR WATER CONSERVATION.

PLAN IS URGED BEFORE THE CITY CLUB.

Executive Director of National Reclamation Association Declares All Possible Support Should be Given to the Newlands-Broussard Measure.

"The success of a few business men of Los Angeles in securing the passage of a law under which $100,000,000 has been expended to reclaim the deserts, shows what Los Angeles can accomplish when aroused to action and united and organized," declared George H. Maxwell yesterday, in his address before the City Club on the subject "Awake, Southern California, and Stop the Waste of Its Greatest Asset."

Mr. Maxwell is the executive director of the National Reclamation Association, and he is deeply interested in advancing general sentiment in favor of the new and comprehensive policy for which Senator Newlands has been consistently contending, and which has been embodied in the constructive measure known as the Newlands-Broussard river regulation bill.

"The Laguna dam and Colorado River siphon, the Roosevelt dam and the Granite Reef dam in the Salt River Valley, the Elephant dam on the Rio Grande above El Paso, the Lahontan dam in Nevada, the Pathfinder dam, the Shoshone dam and other great structures built in the last fifteen years by the United States Reclamation Service," continued the speaker, "would never have been built if it had not been for the vigorous campaign conducted by the merchants of Los Angeles preceding the passage of the irrigation act in 1902.

But all these efforts would have gone for naught, and the pork barrel plunderbund in Congress would have prevailed, had it not been for the fact that the West finally decided to show its teeth, and to do something more than beg for what was right. Senator Tom Carter of Montana talked the river and harbor bill to death in 1901. In the next session, the pork barrelites conceded the passage of the United States reclamation act if the western irrigationists would 'get off their river and harbor bill.'"

Mr. Maxwell strongly arraigned the present system of river and harbor improvements and urged the importance of throwing all possible strength to Senator Newlands in his fight at this session of Congress to prevent the passage of the House flood-control bill unless his general plan is embodied in it and $1,000,000 is appropriated for constructive work.

In the course of his address Mr. Maxwell said:

"To say that the West is getting its share when it gets the appropriation for the Sacramento River is to say that the West should sell its birthright for a mess of pottage. The Sacramento flood-control project is really two projects, one for widening the mouth of the Sacramento, which is meretorious from every point of view; the other a project to force the flood waters out of the 'trough' where they have run for ages and reclaim those lands for the benefit of what is known as the Armour syndicate of land speculators. The needs of Southern California for the co-operation of the national government to check the floods on its mountain watersheds is a great deal more urgent than the needs of the land speculators of the Sacramento Valley to make a profit out of shoving the floods out of their natural wasteways and sell those natural wasteways to farmers as a profitable land speculation.

"History repeats itself and the time has again come when the West must show its teeth and overcome the same iniquitous and unpatriotic influences that opposed the Newlands national irrigation bill in 1902, and which are now delaying the establishment of the new and comprehensive policy for which Senator Newlands has been consistently contending for more than ten years and which has been embodied in the great constructive measure known as the Newlands-Broussard river regulation bill.

"That bill covers the entire United States and benefits every locality. It co-ordinates all the different departments of the nation dealing with the subject of waterways and flood prevention and control and reclamation by either drainage or irrigation and provides for co-operation with the States, municipalities, districts and all local agencies to secure the construction of all works necessary to save for beneficial use every drop of water that now runs to waste."

Before Mr. Maxwell spoke, there was a sharp, ten-minute debate as to whether, in case the proposed county flood-control bonds carry, the 6000 or more persons who will be employed in the flood protection work should be under the County Civil Service Commission. There was considerable difference of opinion.

TIRED OF FINANCE.

San Francisco Woman Doctor, Who Says She Loaned Money to Aid Culver City Film Company, Sues the Promoter for Reimbursement.

A suit that promised interesting developments was partially tried by Judge Hewitt to accommodate a witness and continued until Thursday. It was an action brought by Dr. Elizabeth Retsloff of San Francisco to recover from Dr. W. W. Dumm $1120, representing money, it is alleged, she had advanced him to tide over the affairs of the Culver City Film Company.

Dr. Retsloff testified that Dr. Dumm induced her to loan him money to pay bills incurred by the film company he was promoting and which seems to have gone on the rocks. She said she gave him a check for $500, followed by one for $400, a third for $200 and a fourth for $20, the latter check apparently being the last straw. This money, Dr. Retsloff declared, has not been repaid. The checks were offered in evidence, one being drawn to the order of the Culver City Film Company.

Dr. Dumm's defense is that Dr. Retsloff was interested in the film company. He will be heard later.

Ormiston and Miss Alice Pequegnat of Rubidoux, 6-2, 6-3, in the semi-finals. Neil Cameron and Mrs. H. G. Pattee lost to Easton and Mrs. Street in the preliminaries, 12-10, 6-4. The two Hemet teams will play off for the cups on their home courts.

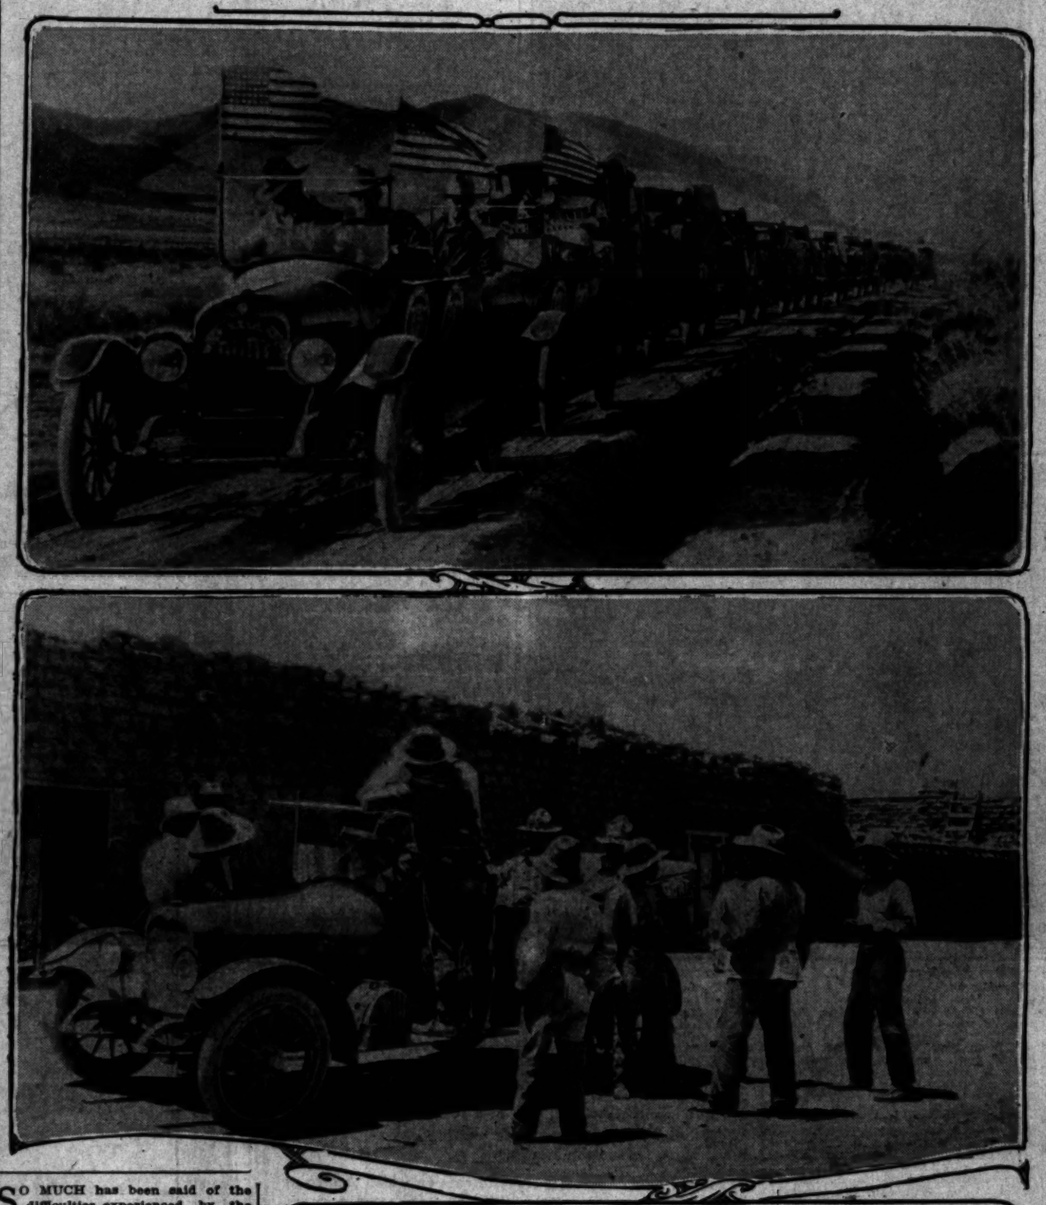
TWO SMALL CARS PLOW SAFELY THROUGH RUTS AND CACTUS IN WAR-TORN MEXICO.



SO MUCH has been said of the difficulties experienced by the United States Army in transporting supplies and munitions of war for the 35,000 soldiers that were at the front, engaged in the pursuit of Villa and other bandit bands in Northern Mexico, that all are more or less familiar with the deplorable road conditions that exist in that forsaken country.

Truck drivers engaged in transport service proclaim the road leading from Columbus, N. M. to Colonia Dublan, El Valle, Namiquipa and San Antonio, a distance of over 200 miles, "the worst in the world," but J. W. Frawley, distributor for the Dort in Texas, was confident that this sturdy car would be able to master the difficulties of such a trip.

All the army men and drivers, however, claimed that it would be practically impossible for a touring car to go through to Namiquipa, and at the present time, after continuous tearing up by trucks, the roads are in the worst possible condition.

You can well imagine how the dirt roads, which were nothing more than clearings, stood under the constant strain of having 276 heavy trucks passing over them. However, Mr. Frawley felt confident that if any car or vehicle having four wheels could make the trip he would be able to do so in the Dort, which, owing to its world of power and durability, had never failed him. In a communication to M. A. Leach of the Leach Motor Car Company, Southern California distributors for the Dort, Mr. Frawley gives some of his experiences encountered on the trip into Mexico and back, with the troops leaving there under Gen. Pershing. He says:

GET PERMIT.

"After four days of persistent effort I secured the coveted permit, which heretofore had never been granted to any one, and accompanied by T. G. Duncan, Bob Dorman, who campaigned with Francisco Madero during the Madero revolution, and L. J. Burrud, a moving-picture operator, we left El Paso in two stock Dort touring cars, and after having been bidden 'God-speed' and wished a safe return by Mayor Lee of El Paso and other city officials, including Gen. Bell, commander of the Fort Bliss army post; Maj. Elliott, depot quartermaster of the United States Army at El Paso, and many other prominent El Paso citizens, we made the run through to Columbus that afternoon without incident, going via Messila Park, the speedometer showing 147 miles.

Just out of Columbus that night we were brought face to face with the actualities of war. We were stopped by both cavalry and infantry patrols and required to prove our identity before passing on into the town of Columbus, made memorable by the raid of Francisco Villa, which resulted in the death of some 200 Villistas and a score of Americans. We found the town full to overflowing with soldiers and civilians, and were forced to sleep on the ground in front of the Hoover Hotel.

"Sunday morning, after having presented our credentials to Maj. Sample, commander at Columbus, we were furnished with a pass to take us everywhere through the American lines, and equipped with United States Army Springfields, we started out with Capt. Jones's truck train of twenty-seven loaded trucks, guarded by a company of infantry, under the command of Capt. Price, who rode with us in the cars.

"Three miles from Columbus we passed into Mexico, the Carranza border patrol looking 'daggers' at the four American flags that we carried on our cars. Some five miles from the border, after leaving Palomas, we began to realize what we were up against. Ruts from one to two feet deep, holes that seemed to have no bottom, rocks and boulders innumerable, and cactus everywhere to work into our tires.

"The truck train we were with made Ascension that night at 1 a.m., fifty-eight miles from Columbus, after having been on the road fifteen hours. There we found a strong detachment of cavalry, infantry and engineers actively engaged in arrangements preparatory to their withdrawal from Mexico. So far we have had no punctures and no trouble with either car.

"At 5 a.m. Monday morning, Sergt. John D. Smith, a typical soldier, erect, alert and in charge of the guard under Capt. Price, awoke us, and we proceeded to cook our first breakfast. We passed through the Mexican town of Ascension without any sniping, and at noon we ate our lunch at Big Bend, where we met a very congenial person in Maj. Newman. His camp might have been taken for a portion of the Verdun line in France, intrenchments and dugouts being everywhere.

"We made Colonia Dublan that night with a clean score. There we found supplies and forage piled mountain high and a large body of United States troops. Our speedometers showed sixty-one miles for the day. Colonia Dublan is the largest Mormon colony in Mexico. There are not many Mormons left, however. Many of their homes have been destroyed by the revolutionists.

"The town of Nueve Casas Grandes is the same as Colonia Dublan. The Mexican Northwestern Railway runs through this town, and to Pearson and Madero, from Juarez. We secured some pictures of the ruined depot and other buildings, and met a very hearty reception from Capt. Basquette, quartermaster.

"Tuesday morning we started late, as part of the truck train had to be unloaded and reloaded. We made Galeana for lunch, where we met Maj. Elliott, encamped among the trees, with a strong force of cavalry and infantry. This is a very pretty spot and one that we would like to have lingered at for some hours to rest. That night we reached El Valle after dark. This was the hardest day's trip we had had so far. We ran into a lot of alkali formation and ate so much dust that it no longer bothered us. We had now begun to grow accustomed to what the average motorist would call 'impossible roads.' Our speedometers showed fifty-five miles for the day. We passed through Chocolate Pass, made famous during the Madero revolution as the point where Madero retreated and reorganized his forces after being so badly beaten at Casas Grandes.

"Wednesday morning we were called at a quarter to three and were on the road before daybreak. This day's trip is one that tested our Carrying Old Glory far from the border.

Here is another instance where American-made cars have proven their ability to stand up under the most severe strains. The pictures were made while two little Dorts were on a "three-hundred-mile cruise" below the Mexican line. The upper one shows the Dorts leading the way south of Columbus, N. M., over the roads used for transporting army supplies. The next one shows a Dort taking on gasoline at Colonia Dublan, Mex., with adobe army headquarters in the background, and the lower picture shows the ruins of railroad headquarters at Ascension, Mex., 150 miles below the border.

A Wonder.

CHICAGO AUTO SHOW IS GREATEST EVER STAGED.

Thousands Stand in Line to Get First Glimpse at the Wonderful Exhibits — Decorations are Entirely New and a Unique Departure from the Accepted Type, Cars are Simply Marvels.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Jan. 27.—The greatest automobile show in the history of the industry was given to Chicago when the Coliseum opened its doors to the public today.

For an hour before the lifting of the curtain on the seventeenth annual exhibition, thousands of people blocked the entrance to the Coliseum, and Wabash avenue in front of the building, and a special squad of policemen had difficulty keeping the street open to traffic. Hundreds of private cars, motor truck and taxis formed a line more than two blocks long in either direction from the main gate.

WONDERFUL.

This year's display is the largest and undoubtedly the finest collection of cars ever entered in a single show. It surpasses the great New York show, brief holder of the world's record for magnificence, because of a larger number of exhibits, better display facilities, and more elaborate decorative scheme.

It is believed that before the end of the week the attendance will be at least one-third greater than that which set new marks for paid admissions in the Grand Central Palace.

An immense area of "art glass" decoration makes the great dome of the Coliseum a kaleidoscope of colorful magnificence.

ENTIRELY NEW.

The general decorative scheme is entirely a departure from that of other years, duplicating faithfully the lines of the early English renaissance. The same idea is carried out in the Annex, Greer Building Armory. The armory is especially improved as compared with other years, falling behind the elaborate display of the Coliseum proper only in size. The artistic furniture of this year's show represents an outlay of $50,000.

Cars and accessories valued at more than $3,500,000, exemplifying the greatest accomplishments of motor-engineering genius, cover the 94,000 square feet of floor space given over to the exhibition. There are 400 machines in all, ranging in price from $395—at which figure is offered a little car that five years ago could not have been purchased for $1000—to $10,000, at which high altitude of opulence linger palaces on wheels.

One factor which has added to the beauty of the ensemble is the engineering tendency of the year to concentrate on body finish rather than upon mechanical detail. The chassis construction of nearly all the cars is the same as that of last year. The bodies, on the contrary, are a series of art-works, finished by color experts in accord with the fashion.

No such bodies have ever been produced in the United States before. The evolution from the first "stream line" coaches of a few years ago has been sudden and complete.

Loop hotels are crowded with the big executives of the industry and reservations already on hand indicate that the out-of-town attendance will eclipse that of the recent Republican National Convention.

CUBS ANNOUNCE TRAINING DATES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—The Chicago Nationals will play the first exhibition games on their training trip in California, on March 2, it was announced today. The squad will be divided into two teams, one playing the Los Angeles club at Pasadena and the other playing Santa Ana at Santa Ana.

Morris O'Neill, former president of the Western League, who is arranging the dates, will leave here tomorrow night for Oakland. He will stop at Denver, Salt Lake City and Los Angeles to schedule exhibition games.

SPEED MARVELS IN TIA JUANA RACES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 27.—Ten speed marvels were entered here today to start tomorrow afternoon at Tia Juana in the Los Angeles high weight handicap, purse $1500, named by Baron Long of Los Angeles. The list includes the best sprinters now being stabled at the Coffroth plant, and a thrilling race is expected.

Ed Cudihee, the winner of the big stake last Sunday and Slippery Elm will carry top weight 126 with checks in at low weight, 107. While a majority of the horsemen believe the race will be between Al Neal's horse and the Winfield starter, a few of the wise ones pick the entry, Maud Bacon and Bronco Billy to upset the dope.

WILLYS-OVERLAND COMPANY'S MODERN FIVE-STORY HOME ON HOPE STREET.

A NEW high-water mark in the automobile industry in Los Angeles was reached when the Willys-Overland Company of California took possession of its magnificent new building on the northeast corner of Eleventh and Hope streets. Not only in size is the building impressive, many having thought it an assembling plant, but the complete arrangement of departments, so that the slightest want of the customer can be readily taken care of, make it the last word in construction.

The building comprises five stories, all designed exclusively for the handling of the tremendous retail business of the Willys-Overland company. Each floor is practically inclosed on three sides in glass, while the construction throughout is of reinforced concrete, making the whole absolutely fireproof. The exterior, of red brick and cement; the large expanses of plate glass, and the massive construction give an air of both beauty and permanency.

The ground floor is occupied by the executive and general offices, the showrooms and one of the most completely equipped and arranged stockrooms in the city. The showrooms are of impressive size, containing as they do a complete line of the Willys-Overland products, ranging from the smallest Overland to the luxurious Willys-Knight eight, including models to meet the most critical taste or the modest pocketbook. The white tile floors and neutral gray walls are well designed to show to advantage the rich colorings of the cars displayed.

A novelty in construction, never before used in Los Angeles, is the concrete ramps, or runway, leading from the Eleventh-street side to the second floor of the building. This floor is occupied by the service department, cars being driven direct from the street, and with ample room to pass, up the rampse. In addition to being equipped to handle the regular lines of mechanical service, this department has installed a complete battery plant, having a capacity of fifty batteries on the line at one time. Facilities are not only provided for the testing and charging of batteries, but for rebuilding as well. A complete crew of electricians, entirely separate from the battery department, take care of all starting, lighting or ignition adjustments. Every facility for the giving of prompt and efficient service is provided.

The third floor is devoted exclusively to the shop, and the capacity is such that the long delays usually incident to having a car overhauled are minimized to the last degree. Labor-saving devices and machines of the most advanced construction are provided. Both compressed air and electricity are available in every corner of the shop for the operation of portable drills, riveting machines, etc.

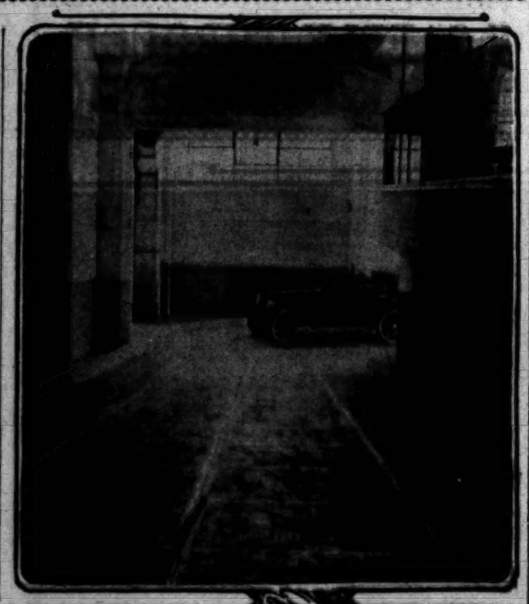
A complete painting and varnishing shop, together with top and body works, occupies the fourth floor. Here those final touches of individual taste are applied to cars as they come from the factory, for those who wish something a little different.

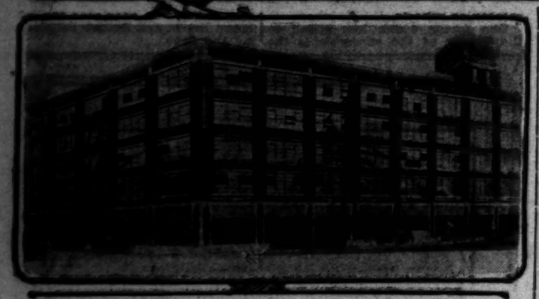
The fifth floor seems to fairly gorge and discharge new cars. Cars rolling on the elevator for delivery to the waiting customers below, and returning with others to take their places fresh from the transcontinental trains and still bearing the dust of their long journey. From here they are sent to be road tested, and from here, also, they are sent to the roof, for even the roof is utilized, where their motors are worn in and tuned up—then back again for a thorough washing ready for delivery.

What impresses one most about this modern automobile establishment is the smoothness with which everything runs and the minute care which is given to every detail looking toward the satisfaction of every Overland or Willys-Knight owner from the moment of delivery of the new car to the adjusting of one of prehistoric vintage.

But when one meets the dynamic force behind this smooth operation you realize that in L. V. Starr, manager of the Willys-Overland Company of California, the factory has picked the right man to see that it continues to run smooth so long as there remains an Overland owner still to serve.

Whether one contemplates the purchase of a new car or not, a visit to the building is well worth while, and the Overland boys seem only too anxious to show the visitor through. In fact, the entire organization seems to exude pride—pride in their building, their organization, and in the product which they sell.





One of Auto Row's finest.

Here is the fire-proof, five-story building erected by the Willys-Overland Company. It's modern from basement to roof garden. Above a view of the Rampse, a winding driveway leading to the second floor from Eleventh street, which does away with much of the work ordinarily performed by an elevator, and one view of a corner of the salesroom. The building, ground, equipment and stock represent an investment of close to a million dollars.

GUS HOLMES, JR., FALLS IN LOVE WITH SPEEDY ROADSTER

BOUND for his home in Chloride, Ariz., where he is a successful mining operator, Gus Holmes, Jr., left Los Angeles last week, driving a Ross eight roadster. The eighty-horse-power roadster was only bought by Holmes after he had personally demonstrated the car to his complete satisfaction.

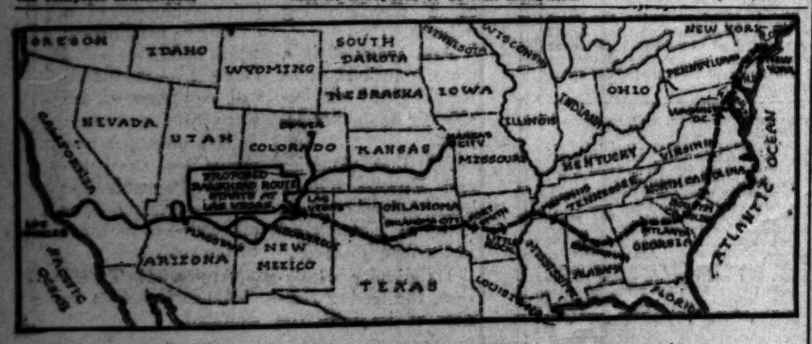
Holmes is the son of Gus Holmes, once the owner of the Angelus Hotel and now a resident of Salt Lake City, where he has large interests. He is also operating mines extensively in the Chloride section.

During the past year Holmes, Jr., is reported to have operated properties in Chloride so successfully, that he is reputed to be well along the road to amass a fortune as large as his father's.

So enthused is young Holmes, a graduate of Yale and at one time officially connected with the famous Treadwell mine, over his Ross eight, that he has taken the agency for Northwest Arizona and has placed his first order for three cars with the Turner-Whitford company.

"I've seen and driven a number of boats, but I cheerfully remove my hat to the Ross. It has more power than any stock car I've ridden in," said the young mining man.

Applications for 1917 registration are coming in rapidly to the Ohio department. Over 10,000 have been filed.



Longest highway in the world.

If present plans are carried out, the longest highway in the world will connect Los Angeles with New York, by way of the Old Trails route to a point near Las Vegas, thence by the proposed Bankhead highway through Oklahoma and the south to Little Rock, Memphis and Birmingham, continuing on to the nation's metropolis by the way of Washington, D. C. In a letter to G. P. McCorkle of this city, J. A. Roundtree, secretary of the Bankhead Highway Associatoin, asks that the Chamber of Commerce, the Automobile Club of Southern California, and all other organizations interested in good roads, take the matter up and co-operate with the association. This route, it is claimed, would give an all-year highway through the South to the Atlantic Coast. It would in no way interfere with the Old Trails route, which, instead of continuing south and east after reaching Las Vegas, angles to the northeast. In short, it would be another feeder of the Old Trails route, of which there are many, and would offer tourists a choice of routes, both eastward and westward bound. The map shows the Old Trails route, and also the proposed highway of the Bankhead Association connecting at a point near Las Vegas. United States Senator John H. Bankhead, author of the eighty-five-million-dollar good roads appropriation bill, together with many other prominent men of the South, are heading every effort towards putting through the plans outlined above, and it is believed that the great east, west, north and south route will be completed in due time, as the various important links are coupled up.

THIRTY BRANCH OFFICES OPENED

Automobile Club Sees Dream Come True.

Tourists Find Data Waiting at Every Turn.

As Membership Grows Work to be Extended.

As a result of the growth of the Automobile Club of Southern California during the past year, and the continuing support being accorded it by automobile owners, the organization has established thirty touring information bureaus and branch offices throughout the southern part of the State, with five more contemplated in the immediate future.

Never in the history of motoring in America has any territory been so completely supplied with facilities for the obtaining of information on highway conditions, special tours and new roads.

That the opening of these bureaus in every center which warrants their establishment is a part of the programme of advancement adopted by the automobile club as the membership grows, and the support given it becomes stronger, was stated yesterday by Secretary S. L. Mitchell. Included in this programme is the acquiring of touring information from neighboring States and from locations on all transcontinental highways.

EASY FOR TOURISTS.

Motorists from the East now visiting Southern California, and all those who come here in the future, will practically never be more than thirty miles from a club touring bureau in the most heavily traveled regions. Every county, from San Diego on the south to San Luis Obispo on the north, will have its main branch office and its battery of touring bureaus.

According to Secretary Mitchell, this system will be so arranged that all road information emanating from the Los Angeles headquarters can immediately be in the hands of the representatives throughout this territory, if the call is urgent, as in the case of storms. The ordinary information necessary for touring motorists will be dispatched to the club bureaus through the branches from the headquarters.

LOCATIONS MARKED.

Wherever the bureaus have been opened, their location is being marked by a large metal sign supplied by the club to the representative in charge, while official hotels, garages and branch offices have also special signs, large enough to be easily read by those who ride.

Up-to-the-minute road data are secured by the club in various ways, but principally through its road cars which are sent out from headquarters and branches continuously to seek and report on changes in highway conditions, the opening or closing of bridges and the completion of new routes of travel. Also, each club representative in every county makes frequent reports on the roads of his section, as do the official garages, thus there is a continuous stream of information being supplied to all parts of Southern California.

AIDS STRANGERS.

Eastern visitors will be particularly benefited by the establishment of the new bureaus and the completion of the service network. A stranger to this part of the country will have no difficulty in visiting every locality, with the aid of the automobile club signs and the touring bureaus.

Bakersfield, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, Visalia, San Bernardino, Riverside, Los Angeles, Santa Ana, San Diego and El Centro will serve as "information distributing bases," while the additional branch offices at Long Beach and Pasadena will also continue to serve their immediate communities.

"The automobile club has planned for several years to open touring bureaus like this," said Secretary Mitchell, "but such activity has necessarily been limited in proportion as the membership and support has been limited, but with the apparent success of the membership campaign, and the growing interest being taken by automobile owners in the development of the club's service, this has been realized, and the majority of the bureaus are in operation."

A complete course in the repair and general maintenance of motor cars, tractors, trucks, has been institute" by the Y.M.C.A. Racine, Wis., and nearly 100 men are attending classes for five evenings a week.

With the advent of the modern motor car as we see it, dependable, powerful, economical, luxurious as a Pullman and as beautiful as a work of art, the need for finer surroundings in which to display it, or even to repair it, has become generally recognized.

Throughout the length and breadth of the United States, motor car dealers are erecting edifices in which to show cars and care for them, that compare favorably with those structures which house other commercial pursuits. But, unlike these other trade homes, the latest motor car homes are not compromises of various types of architecture peculiar to other lines of endeavor. The modern motor car establishment is an individual development of the needs of the business, with facilities, in equipment, and luxurious surroundings that are beyond comparison.

Such, for example, is the new home of the Stearns-Knight, at Figueroa and Twelfth streets, where Lynn C. Buxton maintains his organization. One is immediately impressed with the beautiful simplicity of the interior. But with all of the attractive and luxurious features seen on every hand, the utilitarian purposes for which the building is erected have not been slighted. Without a doubt our future shops and warerooms will feel the beneficial influence of this latter-day style of construction

We have driven to the beaches near here a number of times and find it advisable to close the car at night for protection from the fog and cold wind."

cars to the utmost. The trip down through the El Valle Canyon would be hard to describe. The road we traversed was not a road. If you turn the water out of any rocky gorge and start an automobile down through it, you can then appreciate the El Valle Canyon. We had to climb two grades exceeding 30 per cent. It did not seem possible that a car could stand up under the abuse that we gave them and yet run without trouble.

HEADQUARTERS.

"We camped that night some six miles from Namiquipa, long after midnight. It was impossible for the truck drivers to stay awake any longer.

"Thursday morning we arrived at Namiquipa, the army headquarters in Mexico. Here we found troops of every branch of the service, a complete hospital, wireless station and a stockade, where the prisoners were being held under guard. After reporting to headquarters, under Maj. Hines, adjutant, we proceeded to take a much-needed bath in the cold waters of the river running by the camp. We met many noted war correspondents, representing the press of the United States, and entitled to send just twenty-five censured words per day over the government lines. We enjoyed our visit there with Majs. Clayton, Evans and Hines and Capts. Hart, Miller, Caple and Miller.

"Friday morning we started on the return trip with Capt. Harper and the train of trucks. We made El Valle that night without incident, stopping for lunch at Las Cruces, a very pretty camp on the river.

"We decided at El Valle Friday morning we would not wait for the truck trains, but would proceed alone, as we knew we could make better time. We were told that it was dangerous to do so, but, as we had all had years of experience in Mexico and were armed, we felt able to take care of ourselves.

"We had two soldiers with us with broken ribs who found it too painful to ride on the truck trains, and we were glad to take them in with us, for with our long cantilever springs, even with the constant jolting, it made it much easier riding for them.

"We arrived at Colonia Dublan that day shortly after noon and spent the remainder of the day there resting up. The writer had the pleasure of killing a coyote during the day.

"Sunday morning we started out shortly after 6 o'clock from Colonia Dublan, passing many detachments of troops on their return march from the front, and drove through to Deming, N. M., that day, a distance of 152 miles, the way we came. We surprised all the army men with the time we made this day; in fact, we surprised ourselves. It was surely a relief when we crossed the border, and the two soldiers that we had with us when we crossed the imaginary line said: 'Thank God, we're back in the old United States.'

"Monday we came on through to El Paso from Deming, both cars running strong and not having given any trouble throughout the whole trip. Our only damage had been two broken windshields and some nine punctures, due to the cactus working into the tires and causing a slow leak. Capt. Casiare accompanied us from Columbus to El Paso. On his arrival he expressed himself as having become a Dort enthusiast. Nine days of sleeping on the ground, with the sky as a tent, had hardened us all, and the sun gave us a brown that will not wash off. We sure had some trip, and we know that the Dort can't be beat when it comes to durability."

It is estimated that 300,000 motor car licenses will be issued in New Jersey during 1917. The new license tags have a blue background and white letters. Uniform drivers' licenses, costing $3, are now issued, and three-week permits for learners, heretofore free, will cost 50 cents.

DESERT SNOW-CLAD.

Two Feet Has Fallen and the Conditions Are the Best in Years. Although There Is Some Suffering Due to the Severity of Fast.

BARSTOW, Jan. 21.—The entire desert is covered with a heavy mantle of snow and regular winter weather has existed all the while. In some places the snow is two feet deep. This will put much moisture in the ground and insure a good crop. There is almost a famine of fuel, as this spell is worse than any of the old-timers remember. If the party who were snowed in the Death Valley with a caterpillar have not yet got out with a caterpillar more than likely they will be in considerable danger, as this snowfall is reported to be very heavy.

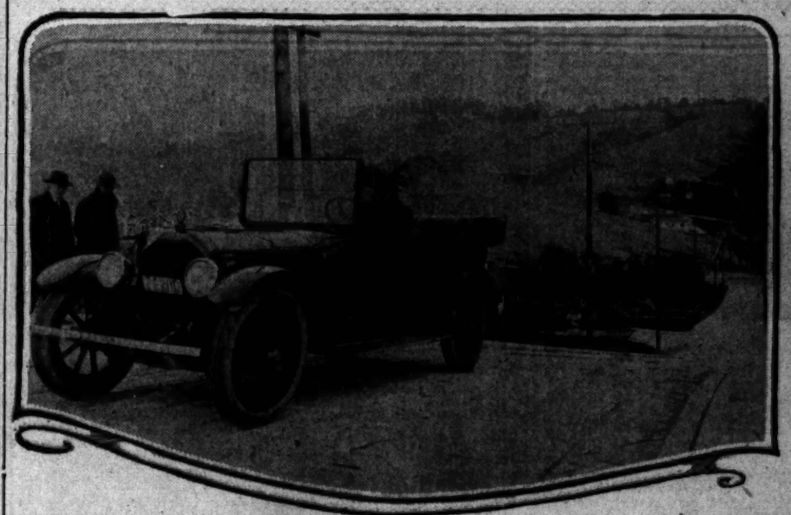
PEERLESS EIGHT SPINS UP GRADE WHERE MANY BALK, EVEN IN LOW.



Climbing Baxter-street hill on second.

Some cars can't climb Baxter street hill at all. Most of them can get up on low. One of them, the Peerless eight, makes it on second, and does it easily. When it is taken into consideration that the hill represents a twenty-nine per cent. grade, and the climb must be made practically from a standing start, the feat takes on added significance. In this instance, as in many others, the camera fails to do justice to the hill. But if you have tried it yourself, you will recognize the landmarks. Just tackle it sometime, and rest assured that if your car makes it on second you've got a "boat" to be proud of.

HOW would you like to have a car that could make a joke of Baxter-street hill, and likewise the famous Clifford-street grade? These hills have been tantalizing automobile owners ever since they were discovered. Any man who has climbed them has made for himself a pretty certain reputation as a driver and proven that he has a good car, and everyone knows that he did it in low gear. He is proud of having done that much.

But Baxter-street hill has had to take off its hat to automobile progress. The Peerless eight, the car with the double-power range, the new automobile that is a "brute of a car" when its double poppets are open and it is getting full rations of fuel, has gone up Baxter street in second.

Smith Bros. had a customer a short time ago who wanted a demonstration on these hills. Bert Hammond took him out and discovered that he was able to do things which the people of automobile row had always said were impossible. Last week Hammond took a Peerless eight and before independent newspaper observers climbed Baxter-street hill in second speed with apparent ease. Hammond declared that he had plenty of power to spare on reaching the top, and it was certain that the motor was performing as smoothly and sweetly as on any moderate grade.

The first hill-climbing done on this day was Clifford street. Hammond had been up Clifford-street hill with the Peerless eight in second, but on this day the rain had washed the road so that it was very rough and he drove over it in low. On reaching the summit he astonished the observers by driving the Peerless at the curb and it gave a fine imitation of one of the famous European "tanks," which are built to climb over anything that gets in their way. The Peerless simply walked up the curb and tackled a steep, four-foot bank beyond that and climbed over it.

Then Hammond drove over to Baxter street along the ridge, all gear work, and climbed Baxter street in second.

At the end of this continuous work on the severest hills in Los Angeles the motometer read 150 deg. Hammond backed down the grade and held the car on the steepest point while pictures were taken, then went up again. The fact is that the Peerless eight has completely mastered Baxter-street grade. With a car that will do this, practically anything in the way of performance that depends on power seems to be possible.

LOCAL SALESMEN TO VISIT FACTORY.

Fred H. Schreiner, sales manager of the Willys-Overland of California, and E. A. O'Neill, manager of the Pasadena branch of the same company, have left for a visit to the Willys-Overland factory at Toledo, O. They will stop in Chicago en route, taking in the Chicago automobile show.

It is the policy of the Willys-Overland Company to see that all its employees holding responsible positions are fully acquainted with the details of construction and manufacture of its products, and to this end, managers and dealers are continually being sent for by the factory.

Pretty as a Peacock.

CADILLAC LANDAULET MAKES HIT AT SHOW.

THE landaulet that was shown for the first time at the New York show is one of the season's newest Cadillac eight models. Objectionable features that at one time existed in this type of car have been done away with and the Cadillac landaulet when closed is much like the limousine model.

This gives the car a double advantage. It is as smart as the smartest limousine and in a minute the rear section of the top can be thrown back to give the occupants a glimpse of the blue sky and a full breath of the refreshing air. It also has an unusually smart appearance when thrown back.

The popularity of all types of enclosed cars has steadily increased. The demand for Cadillac limousines, coupes, broughams and victorias soon exhausted the early allotment of this type and Don Lee left for the Cadillac factory last week to make a fight for additional cars of all enclosed types. More enclosed Cadillacs have already been sold than during the entire season of any previous year and Don Lee is ready to order as many aagin if he can get the cars.

Lee will attend the Chicago show and will go on to New York for the boat show. He is accompanied by Manager J. E. Brown of Los Angeles and Manager L. G. Patee of Pasadena.

FIRST SHIPMENT.

The first shipment of the new coupes is en route and will be on the Coast in time to be exhibited at the San Francisco show next month.

In addition to the coupe there will be a Cadillac club roadster, standard roadster, touring car, four-passenger phaeton, victoria and landaulet. This will be the first appearance of the club roadster.

A sport model chassis, the exact duplicate of that shown in New York and Chicago will also be part of the Cadillac exhibit at the Exposition Auditorium show.

DEMAND GROWING.

Before leaving for the East Don Lee voiced the opinion that each year would see more enclosed cars sold than during the year previous. He has been making this prediction for over seven years and each season's sales has been greater than the season previous.

Lee will also try to get additional cars of all types. There remains to be sold in California not over 150 cars of an allotment well over the thousand mark. California buyers are making it very plain that they want more cars than the factory has alloted to this territory and if it is possible to get additional models Lee will get them, but in view of the same demands being made by dealers in all parts of the country there is every indication of a shortage in all quarters.

Bucking snow drifts.

Dodge "Six" stunt car has achieved, and thereby added to its ever-increasing string of accomplishments, a feat seldom executed by a light car, when on Monday a trip was made to Goldstone, in the center of the snowbound district, for the purpose of staking out a claim. The tour was made under adverse conditions, it being absolutely necessary in order to make progress for the passengers to shovel the snow from the road and to break the ice which had formed in the ruts. To the sturdy little Saxon "Six" goes the credit of being the first and only car out of the "snowed-in country abounding Goldstone. All along the road the inhabitants residing in comfortable quarters, well protected from the elements, hailed the Saxon party and requested correspondence with it, for Uncle Sam's representatives have been unable to make their regular trips on account of the mountainous snowdrifts. Staking a claim, after being subjected to almost unbearable hardships, is not a very pleasant bit of work, according to the members of the party. This added to the fact that all the claims have been taken seemed to have a discouraging effect on the claim-seekers. However, a speedy return was made, the entire trip from this city to Goldstone and then to Barstow, taking only six hours. In many places on the road it was necessary to travel in second and low gear in order to get through the snowbanks. The condition of the Cajon Pass was reported as not being of the best, the snow in many places being from one to three feet deep.

TAKE A SWIM AND WIN A FINE CAR.

The Abbot Kinney company of Venice has just purchased from the Wright Motor Car Company two Interstate automobiles to be given away April 8, 1917. One of the cars will be a four-passenger chummy roadster, and the other a divided front seat touring car.

Those who enjoy dancing or bathing can, for the next sixty days, assist someone in getting one of the latest model automobiles without cost. A vote will be given with each penny spent at the Venice plunge or the Venice dance pavilion for the next sixty days, and the two candidates holding the largest number of votes at the close of the contest will receive these automobiles. The cars will be on display at the Venice dance pavilion during the contest.

REPEAT ORDERS PLEASE DEALER.

"Some of the best evidence of the real value of the King in the service of owners is the fact that new Kings are sold to the same people year after year," says L. A. McConnell of the Leach Motor Car Company, distributors of the King.

"And, in fact, a great majority of the King owners are as enthusiastic over their cars as the Kentuckian is over his string of horses. All last week we had a King eight on exhibit at Hamburger's and a chance visitor to the store, H. F. Coates, already an owner of a King, happened to see this beautiful dolled-up model, and decided that it was to be his own. He came right down to us and bought the car, and not only will he have this King, but he was so pleased with the one he already has that he says he will not dispose of it, but would keep both cars, so that his family can have the use of either one whenever they choose.

"This is but one of the many incidents that arise which are proving to us that the King is a car that owners get real satisfaction from."

"Yearly models were for a long time considered a sales stimulus. Today this theory is known to be fallacious. We believe the buying public has been educated to the point where motor cars are purchased the same as any other legitimate article of merchandise. Styles in motor car bodies, like styles in millinery, may change with the seasons. But it is entirely possible to make adjustments of this kind in midseason, without waiting for another year to roll around. In other words, we believe the automobile manufacturer will incorporate refinements from time to time without confusing the public with an interminable line of new models. This policy will result in two-fold satisfaction. The car purchaser will know that he is receiving the latest thing in cars, whether he buys in June or December. The manufacturer will benefit because it will balance his selling season and enable him to turn out cars at an even pace throughout the twelve months of the year."

So why change models with the calendar?

Time to Get Busy.

AUTO SHOW CIRCUIT MAY INCLUDE COAST.

IF THE CITY of Los Angeles, through the Motor Car Dealers' Association and kindred interests, desires to become identified with the National Automobile Show circuit, now is the time to get busy. This decidedly interesting information was revealed by Ralph C Hamlin, the Franklin and Scripps-Booth distributor, upon his return from the East a few days ago.

"While in New York City to attend the show I learned there might be considered by the Automobile Chamber of Commerce, the organization that controls the national shows, a proposition to add a Pacific Coast city to the circuit, which now includes New York and Chicago only," Mr. Hamlin said. "As soon as I received this information I got busy and brought to bear as much influence as I could command on the proper persons. I found I could not swing such a movement alone so shall put it up to the other dealers here to learn their opinion.

TIME TO ACT.

"It is a practical certainty some Pacific Coast city will be added to the circuit. Whether it is Los Angeles or some other city depends upon the attitude of Southern California dealers and the motoring public at large. If this city wants an exhibit of such magnitude there is a chance to get it. There can be no delay, however. The New York show for this year has closed but recently, and that at Chicago opened yesterday. This will conclude the season, and steps should be taken immediately toward being put on the circuit for 1918. The proposition is so big that it should appeal to the Chamber of Commerce, Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association and organizations of this caliber, in addition to the motor car dealers.

"There is no reason to believe Los Angeles would be allowed to capture such a signal honor without opposition from other Coast cities. They are aware of the opportunity in at least one other city, and dealers there will not submit to being overlooked. More cars are sold in Southern California, the percentage of motorists to total population is greater and there are other reasons why this section should be favored for a national show; but it will take strong influence and brisk stepping on the part of everybody to land it."

VISITS FACTORY.

Mr. Hamlin passed several days at the home of the Franklin car in Syracuse, N. Y. He says the factory is the scene of the greatest activity it ever has experienced. The production for this year will reach 10,000, the largest ever known. The number of inclosed cars ordered has so far exceeded specifications that the factory is away behind in shipments. Mr. Hamlin has great faith in the future of this type of car, as indicated by the fact he has ordered more of them for his territory this year than ever.

At Detroit, Mr. Hamlin visited the officials of the Scripps-Booth company. He says he was surprised by the increase in every way that this young company has shown since his visit of about six months ago. He expressed the opinion this company is on the road to becoming one of the largest producers in the country.

In addition to his news concerning prospects for a national show here, Mr. Hamlin brought home a secret bit of information which he says he is not quite ready to reveal. He expects to make an important announcement concerning it within a month, he says. He declares it has nothing to do with either the Franklin or Scripps-Booth lines.

DEALERS ORGANIZE.

Motor car dealers of Bloomington, Ill., have formed an organization. Twenty firms joined at the first meeting, and the rest are expected to come in later. The establishment of a clearinghouse for used cars is being considered. The association also will offer to take over the management of the annual dealers' show, now in the hands of the county officials.

Night stops were made at Bakersfield and Merced and the hour of leaving these points was about 9:30 each morning. The actual running time for the journey was about nineteen hours, making the average hourly speed a little more than twenty-three miles.

Detours were made at Bakersfield, Fresno and Merced in order that the car might be shown to interested dealers.

Harry C. Turner of the Turner-Whitford company, distributor in California for the Woods Dual, and R. S. Fend of Chicago, designer of the car, alternated at the wheel. Mrs. Fend, bride of a few weeks, made the third member of the party.

The fact that such publications as the Scientific American, Popular Mechanics and other scientific journals have elaborated to considerable extent in describing the Dual Power, is an indication of the interest that attaches to the Woods product.

NEW BRANCH STORE OPENS UP ON PICO.

Instead of depending on jobbers, in getting their products before the motor public, the Brown & Caine corporation of Chicago have opened a branch in Los Angeles at No. 331 West Pico street. The company manufactures all kinds of ignition and lighting supplies, everything, in fact, that pertains to magnetos and ignition, and a full stock is now being carried at the branch store.

"There are a thousand and one things which the owner or dealer wants in our line," said C. R. Day, resident manager, "and from now on he will be able to buy them first hand. We carry thousands of dollars worth of platinum points, alone, and aim to have everything in magneto and ignition supplies that anyone could possibly need. Only the best in its line, is our motto, and this high standard of the Brown & Caine Company will be strictly adhered to."

The company succeeds the Auto Ignition Sales Company.

Insuring the Safety of Thousands

IF ALL motor car builders appreciated why a locomotive holds the track, they could practically eliminate skidding with all its dangers.

The locomotive designer avoids stiff, rigid construction. He introduces flexibility that permits the boiler to sway slightly from side to side while the trucks stick to the track—even when rounding curves at high speed.

The Franklin car is built upon this same principle. The body can sway slightly from side to side without its weight and the passengers' weight dragging the chassis off the course.

That's one reason why the Franklin is known for its freedom from dangerous skidding — a safety fact of the greatest importance.

A ride over the road will show you how this principle actually works out.

GOV. CANTU'S WIFE IS NOW LIVING IN LOS ANGELES.

"OF ALL the picturesque figures in the present Mexican situation," said Harold L. Arnold, the nearest one that influences the California situation, is Gen. Estaban Cantu, Governor of Lower California.

"The Governor's headquarters are at Mexicali, where he has an army of 1000 men camped on the line next to Imperial Valley.

"The conditions now are such that Gen. Cantu has sent his family out of the zone of possible trouble.

"Showing that he has faith in California people is one of the general's strong points, and substantiating this feeling, he has sought Los Angeles as a home for his family.

"That they are to remain here permanently is indicated by their recent purchase of a Hudson super-six touring sedan.

"Mrs. Cantu, formerly Miss Anita Dato, is proving herself a worthy helpmate for her military husband by uncomplainingly resigning herself to this temporary separation 'for the good of the cause,' though she particularly wishes the Governor could be with her because of their baby boy and the super-six sedan."

To Mr. Arnold, the distributor of Hudson motor cars, Mrs. Cantu said:

"We had planned this year to thoroughly enjoy life, for we thought that dreadful war would surely be ended. Estaban and I had arranged to spend two or three months along the coast in our sedan, for that particular car is so well adapted to the foggy evenings and rainy periods of the winter months in California.

"We expected to drive 1000 miles or more every month, but now I must be content to remain home, for the occasional visits of my husband are like golden hours to me.

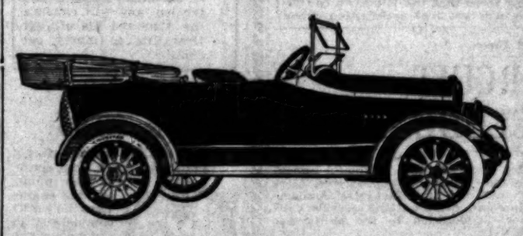
"Do I like my sedan? Indeed, I think there is no car quite like it. You see, when it is a warm, bright day we simply drop the windows, so that the entire car is open, at the same time having the top to make it shady. Then when the fog comes in, or storms occur, up come the windows, and we are snug and 'comfy' for the homeward drive in the evening."

BATTERY BUSINESS BOOMING, HE SAYS.

A person going through the section of town given over principally to the automobile industry does not have to ask how business conditions are, because on every hand there is a busy sign that indicates the activity that all these business houses are experiencing. Not only does this apply to the automobile itself, but also to the entire industry.

The battery and ignition business is better now than it ever was, and Alle S. Hamilton of the Los Angeles Ignition Works, pioneers in this city in this line, have had to remodel their shops in order to make room sufficient to handle the volume of business.

The Main-street driveway has been closed up and the space utilized in conjunction with the old battery room, making one of the largest in the city for the care and repair of batteries, and Mr. Hamilton reports that the demand for Vesta products, for which he has the agency, is reaching large proportions.



Dort Triumphs Over Wilds of Mexican Front

In a grueling test of their reliability, two stock Dort cars, under observance of U. S. Military authorities, make the trip over the Mexican desert to Namiquipa with U. S. Army motor truck transport train.

In spite of the most deplorable road conditions—broiling sun, scarcity of good fuel and water for cooling—both cars with capacity loads, cover 800 miles without an adjustment of any kind.

This demonstration proved conclusively the world of stamina and power embodied in the Dort—it is a car that is "Built for Service."

Springs which reach from "here" to "there."

R. A. Marhoefer, left, and B. F. Brown, Detroiter Six-45 agents, indicating length of fifty-three springs on new car. That it is one of the easiest riding cars ever brought to the coast is the opinion of Los Angeles citizens who have enjoyed a spin in the Detroiter.

THAT there really is something new in automobiles was demonstrated in Los Angeles a few days ago upon the arrival of the first shipment of the Detroiter "6-45." The car is being distributed in Southern California by B. F. Brown and R. A. Marhoefer, under the firm name of the Detroiter Los Angeles Company. Headquarters have been established at No. 1355 South Flower street. The cars now on hand are in the five-passenger and three-passenger roadster models, but a complete line of inclosed and convertible models is manufactured.

For a number of years B. F. Brown has been identified with the mechanical departments of local automobile companies and most of the time Marhoefer has been associated with him. Previous to coming to Los Angeles both were affiliated with some of the largest manufacturing concerns in the East. Brown originally came to Los Angeles as expert repairman for the Reo Motor Car Company. Each has a large circle of friends and acquaintances, who will be pleased to learn they have taken an agency.

Although the name Detroiter has been known to the motor-car industry for several years, the present manufacturing organization had no connection with the former producers of the Detroiter car. This well-known line is now handled by the J. V. Baldwin Motor Car Company, Saxon distributors [illegible] ley, Mitchell factory representative, is at the wheel of the car shown in the picture, and J. V. Baldwin and Andrew Baldwin occupy the rear seat.

THE J. V. Baldwin Motor Car Company, present distributors of the Saxon in Southern California and Arizona, has taken over the agency for the Mitchell motor cars. This announcement was made by Bert Dingley, representative of the Mitchell Company of Racine, Wis.

The J. V. Baldwin company needs no introduction to local owners of cars, as already this company has earned an enviable reputation for efficient service rendered Saxon owners and this same conscientious policy will be extended all Mitchell owners. A complete line of parts for Mitchell cars of all models will be carried in stock.

"The Mitchell takes its position as one of the real pioneers of the industry, for cars of this make have been successfully built and marketed for a period of sixteen years," said J. V. Baldwin. "From a small plant, the factory at Racine, Wis., has grown to be a complete manufacturing unit, under the efficient management of John W. Bate. HERE'S ONE RULE THAT EVERY MOTORIST SHOULD OBSERV[illegible]

"E[illegible]SHAINHOLDT, who recently arrived in Los Angeles from Niagara Falls, has been following a practice worthy of the attention and consideration of all motorists," said the manager of the B. F. Goodrich company yesterday.

"Starting with the first run on his new Goodrich Silvertown tires, he resolved to always maintain his tires at the required pressure. For, as Mr. Shainholdt remarked, 'One run on soft, under-inflated tires, will work the mischief.'

"Keeping a check on the air pressure is a simple, quickly-accomplished task when a Goodrich tire caliper gauge is used. The caliper gauge measures a tire for the load it actually carries—without need of touching dust or valve caps. Further, the caliper gauge never varies. It's as accurate as a steel tape—mathematically exact and scientifically correct.

"The value of this practice of never making a trip when his tires were under-inflated is demonstrated by the exceptional mileage he is securing.

"Mr. Shainholdt has traveled 14,000 miles on one Silvertown and 13,700 on a second without a puncture, and he now feels firmly convinced that his policy has been vindicated. He spoke enthusiastically of the pleasure derived in riding on Silvertowns, with their [illegible] due to the [illegible] cable cord construction [illegible] knowledge of the [illegible] obtained from the [illegible] sisting black rubber [illegible]

SUNDAY MORNING.

SEVEN HUN[illegible] FIRESTO[illegible]

WHEN approximately 700 men, all interested in the sale of the same line of motor vehicle accessories, gather in Los Angeles next Wednesday, they will represent the largest number ever assembled for a similar purpose in the history of the city. It will be Firestone day and official recognition has been accorded the event. Mayor Woodman will participate in the ceremonies, as likewise will Chief of Police Butler. There will be a parade, an executive gathering at which the real business of the convention will be transacted, a second session of joy making and the day will pass out amid a blaze of glory over the banquet board at the Alexandria Hotel in the evening.

To make this convention possible, the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company will expend approximately $30,000. The Los Angeles branch supplies all dealers in Southern California, Southern Nevada, Northern Mexico and the entire State of Arizona. All of these dealers have been invited to come to the convention at the company's expense. Some of those from the nearer cities and towns will prefer to motor, but those from more distant points will come by rail.

LOW RATES.

A special convention rate has been granted by the railroads in consideration of the number that will be here. The tickets were issued here and there is no inconvenience for the dealer in making arrangements. All he needs to do is to board the train and be met upon arrival here by the Hotel Clark's bus line. He will be conveyed to the hotel, which will be convention headquarters, and from there to the branch building.

It will not be strictly a branch delegation, though. From the home offices of the company at Akron, O., will come R. J. Firestone, the vice-president, and S. G. Carkhuff, the secretary. E. W. Bedear, western district manager, also will be here. E. S. Babcox, advertising manager, had planned to make the trip, but serious illness of a member of his family prevented his coming.

It is probably due to the efforts of R. J. Firestone and Mr. Carkhuff more than to any other attaches of the company, that there is a handsome new branch building in Los Angeles to be dedicated.

OPENS THEIR EYES.

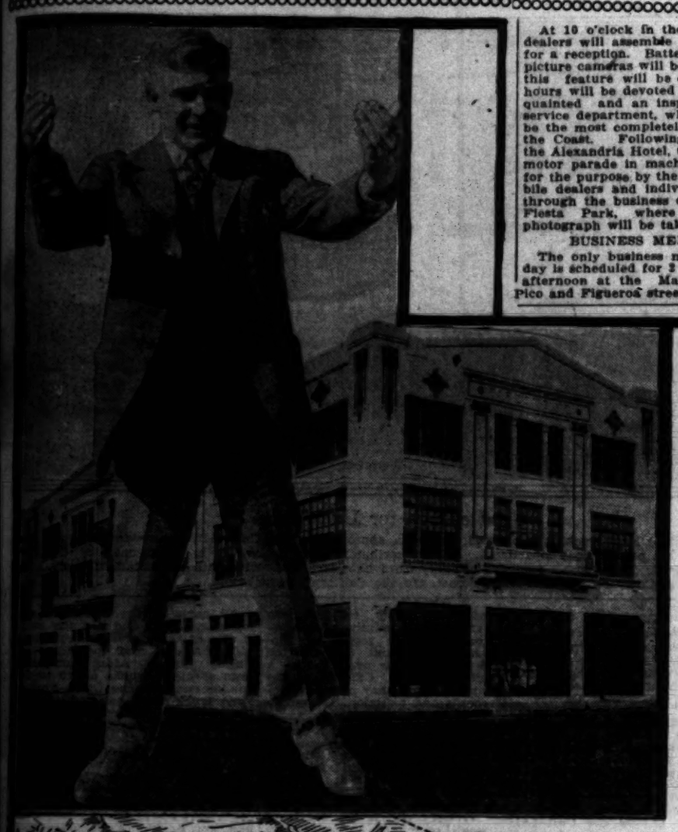
In answer to the request of A. T. Smith, branch manager for the past three years, these two men came here a year ago to look over the situation. Smith showed them how the business had increased so rapidly that 100 tires were being shipped per each day and there was no room in the structure than occupied to keep on hand a stock commensurate with demand. Orders were being lost through inability to supply tires and if there were other accommodations, Smith said, this would not be the case.

Finally Messrs. Firestone and Carkhuff agreed to inquire into the local real estate market and learn what property was available. The outcome was the purchase of the lot at Twelfth and Figueroa streets and the erection thereon of a building costing $150,000. It is the finest structure west of Kansas City devoted exclusively to the motor tire business. Its location is predicted to be the future center of the automobile and accessory business in Los Angeles.

RAPID GROWTH.

The Firestone Tire and Rubber Company's growth during the last few years has been one of the most spectacular in the history of American manufacturing enterprise. During the period stated the business has made an increase of 257 per cent. The Los Angeles branch terri-

SEVEN HUNDRED DEALERS WILL ATTEND FIRESTONE CONVENTION IN LOS ANGELES.



At 10 o'clock in the morning, all dealers will assemble at the branch for a reception. Batteries of motion picture cameras will be on hand and this feature will be filmed. Two hours will be devoted to getting acquainted and an inspection of the service department, which is said to be the most completely equipped on the Coast. Following luncheon at the Alexandria Hotel, there will be a motor parade in machines donated for the purpose by the local automobile dealers and individual owners through the business district and to Fiesta Park, where a panorama photograph will be taken.

BUSINESS MEETING.

The only business meeting of the day is scheduled for 2 o'clock in the afternoon at the Masonic Temple, Pico and Figueroa streets. Manager A. T. Smith will preside at the conference and addresses will be made by Mr. Firestone, Mr. Carkhuff and Mr. BeSaw. Firestone products, policies and methods will be discussed. A question box will be conducted and the dealers urged to present any business problem they may have encountered in their usual routine for solution by the heads of the company.

The conference will disband in ample time to permit the delegates to prepare for the banquet at the Alexandria, which is to be served at 6:30 o'clock. This will be the real big feature of the day's programme. All cares and business worries are to be forgotten and, it is assured by Mr. Smith, there will be an abundance on hand in the way of provender to suit the most fastidious. Special entertainment has been provided, but the programme for this feature has been prepared in secret and will not be divulged in advance.

SHORT TALKS.

The Firestone company will be represented by short talks by Messrs. Firestone, Carkhuff and BeSaw. Response will be made in behalf of the city by Mayor Woodman, Chief Butler and President Mitchell of the Chamber of Commerce.

Miss Anita King, the first woman to motor unaccompanied across the American continent, will tell why she chose Firestone equipment on that eventful occasion and why she always uses this make of tires.

A "Firestone Extra" will be distributed among the guests. This will be a six or eight-page newspaper containing all the news of Firestone day and profusely illustrated with pictures of the new building, the company officials, prominent users of Firestone tires and other attractive photographs. A series of parodies on popular songs will be sung with a chorus from the branch employees leading.

MILLIONS SPENT BY U. S. FOR TRUCKS.

According to information sent to Congress by the War Department in connection with estimates of appropriations, the expenses involved last year in the purchase and operation of motor trucks for transportation of the army and its supplies amounted to nearly $34,500,000. The sum of $23,000,000 was appropriated in the last army appropriation bill for the present fiscal year, and an estimate of a deficiency appropriation of $11,415,700 has been submitted.

A great number of trucks were purchased for use on the border in connection with the operations of the regular army and National Guard in the Federal service. A large number of trucks, which are not now in use, are stored at Fort Sam Houston, Fort Bliss and El Paso, Tex., where they are available for use as the occasion requires. About 2300 trucks were purchased and used along the border and in Mexico.

An exposition for the advancement of aeronautics is scheduled to be held in the Grand Central Palace February 8 to 15. This was decided upon by the executive committee of Motor and Accessory Manufacturers last week.

Extending the glad hand.

We have with us this morning A. T. Smith, branch manager, calling in 700 dealers from his territory to attend the convention, joyfest and meeting extraordinary which is to accompany the formal dedication of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company's new $150,000 building. These rubber dealers will come rolling and bounding in early Wednesday, and by the time the big street parade starts, every man will be on hand. The map shows some of the principal cities in the territory supplied by the Los Angeles branch of the company.

RAPID GROWTH.

The Firestone Tire and Rubber Company's growth during the last few years has been one of the most remarkable in the history of American manufacturing enterprise. During the period stated the business has made an increase of 257 per cent. The Los Angeles branch territory has been responsible for a full share of this increase and through the leadership of Mr. Smith the demand for Firestone products has grown until it represents the expenditure of a million dollars each twelve months.

Only recently the company announced the departure from its previous policy of making tires and tire accessories only and will enter into the production of rubber footwear and probably other lines of rubberized merchandise.

Firestone day will be an event of particular interest to dealers only, but there will be sufficient public demonstration to let it be known that next Wednesday has a special significance on the calendar. Prominent downtown merchants have granted the privilege of placing a big Firestone non-skid tire in their show windows for the day. The tire will bear the usual insignia of the company, which is well known to all motorists.

PLAN STUNTS.

It is expected that dealers from near-by cities will attempt a number of weird and unique stunts as they journey to Los Angeles by motor early Wednesday morning. The Riverside and Pomona contingent and the delegation from Santa Barbara will duplicate their performance. Included in the caravan will be nine machines, each bearing a huge letter on each side, and arranged in order so that as they move along the boulevards the letters will form the word Firestone.

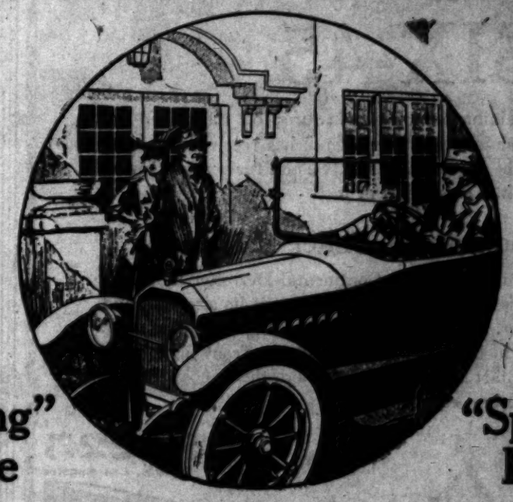
Two Power Ranges
give the Peerless a "Dual Personality"
In this one car you find those fascinating contrasts in performance which heretofore have been possible only in two totally different and opposite types of cars.



"Loafing" Range
Soft, velvet-smooth performance with the lightning pickup you would expect in an Eighty Horsepower Eight!
And in this range you are automatically operating on half rations—consuming fuel so sparingly as to put many a lesser powered six to shame—even many a four.
"Sporting" Range
Simply open the throttle wider to release her double poppets and you give her full fuel rations and utterly change the whole character of your car.
In her "sporting" range she is a brute of a car for super-power and thundering speed—the rightful contender with anything built, no matter what its class.
Peerless Eight
Ever growing demand for this greatest of a long line of Peerless successes foretells a shortage in Peerless Eights this spring.
Let us demonstrate a greater variety and contrast of performance than you have ever known in any one car. See us now.

What About Vibration?
When you ask about Hupmobile vibration, you are probably thinking again of some car of higher price.
You have heard that some of them are notably steady under certain conditions.
And they are.
But so is the Hupmobile under all conditions — at any road speed.
Take the Hupmobile when it is going at 50 miles an hour.
We doubt very much—we put it politely, you see—if it registers more vibration than many and many a motor at 25 miles.
Does that sound like rather "tall" talk?
It is, we will grant you—but fortunately it is capable of demonstration.
If you care to go that fast—ride in the Hupmobile at fifty miles an hour.
Keep the impression fresh in your mind, and then try some other cars at half that speed.
You will be completely at ease in the Hupmobile at doubled speed.
We shall not say what will happen in the other case.
We leave the whole question for you to settle on the score of performance.

HIS HOBBY IS TOURING U.S. IN HIS OWN POWERFUL CAR.

C. L. STONER of Kalamazoo, who, with his wife and their young son, are recent arrivals in Los Angeles in a Cadillac eight, has done considerable driving in the past fourteen months.

In that length of time he has driven an automobile in all the States of the Union, save the following: Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont Rhode Island, Delaware, North and South Carolina, Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Idaho and Montana. In all the States he has ridden in a car it has been in his own Cadillac. He recently exchanged his 1916 model for the car he now drives.

Stoner is financially able to give much of his time to touring the country and in this respect he is an ardent fan. He has a grip full of road maps and traveling data, and can tell one almost off-hand about road conditions in those sections in which he has traveled. Part of the time he has been accompanied by his family and again fortunate friends have shared his pleasure.

"It's the healthiest pastime I know of, and if one can spare the time from one's business it is not near as expensive a taste as many others I know of," said Stoner.

The man from Michigan is an ardent booster for the Cadillac, which is made in his home State. Its touring abilities he considers second to none, while he indulges in hyperbole when he talks about what his Cadillac eight can do on the hills. The Stoners intend spending the remainder of the winter in Southern California, although they may go to Hawaii in March, shipping their Cadillac.

FOREIGN EXHIBIT ATTRACTS MANY.

Word has just been received in Los Angeles that the Roamer car, being exhibited in the exclusive Salon de Luxe show of foreign cars at the Hotel Astor, New York, is arousing a great deal of interest. It occupies a place alongside of such cars as the Isotta Fraschini, Rolls-Royce, Mercedes, Fiat and other well-known makes. Two of these cars have been received by the Motors Distributing Company of Southern California, and now are on exhibit at the Grand-avenue salesrooms.

According to a statement made by the manager of the local company, many of the film companies are purchasing Roamers to be used in their foreign scenes.

Every Moreland Distillate Truck is equipped with the famous Moreland Gasifier — which makes possible and practical the use of distillate instead of gasoline, thereby cutting the fuel cost of operation in half.

Moreland Distillate Trucks are made in following chassis capacities:

¾-ton, 1-ton, 1½-ton, 2½-ton, 4-ton, 5-ton.

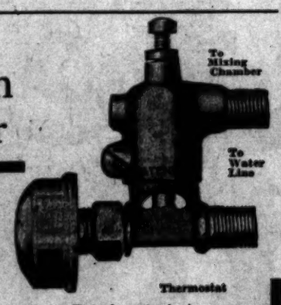
It Works Wonders on Your Motor



Thermostat

This is actual size.

It automatically controls—by heat of the engine and speed of the motor—the injection of vapor into the cylinders.

THE Jensen Thermostatic Vaporizer is a real wonder worker. It injects vapor into the cylinder, through the mixing chamber of the carburetor. The thermostat—a highly sensitive mechanical thermometer—controls its action. Giving the right amount of Hydrogen and Oxygen to make perfect combustion it produces in the engine the smoothness, power and snap it has on a cool, damp day. Absolutely prevents carbon and saves gasoline. Let us demonstrate it and show you testimonials at our store. One engine ran 20,000 miles without carbonization. Get one on your car.

TWELVE THOUSAND TRUCKS MADE BY COMPANY IN THE PAST YEAR.

Good enough for Uncle Sam.

This Olson equipped Ford truck, it is claimed, has been approved by the United States government, and now is in use in the parcels post department. Local distributors also declare it is being used by the Ford plant at Detroit. For a small sum, the ordinary Ford chassis is converted into a substantial truck. The United Motors Company, on East Ninth street, are the California distributors.

THE Olson-equipped Ford truck, though practically a new arrival in Southern California, has been in use throughout other parts of the country for the last two years, according to a statement made yesterday by Walter Calbert Fertig, general manager of the United Motors Company, California distributors for the Olson-equipped Ford truck, with offices at Nos. 416-418 East Ninth street.

Mr. Fertig states that during 1916, the second year of the production of the Ford truck, an average of 1000 trucks per month were sold—a total of over 12,000. The United Motors Company took their offices and began the demonstration and sale of these trucks in Southern California several months ago, in order to establish a record of performance throughout this district before backing their product with a publicity campaign. Officials of the company say that they now have local records and testimonials even in excess of their expectations.

Mr. Fertig says that the Olson-equipped Ford truck has done and is doing for American business what the Ford car did for the American people—that it offers a dependable means of transporting loads of one ton and over at a cost that is easily within the reach of the small merchant and manufacturer.

All parts of the truck are absolutely standard and are the output of one of the largest manufacturers of motor cars and parts in the United States. After competitive tests of other trucks of up to 3000 pounds capacity the Olson-equipped Ford truck was selected by the United States government for use in its parcels post department, and the Olson-equipped truck is used by the Ford plant at Detroit, according to Mr. Fertig.

The principle which is embodied permits the load to be carried directly on the rear wheels, which are a part of the Olson equipment and not on the Ford axle, which floats entirely free of strain.

LOCAL DEALERS SHOW MORE PEP THAN EASTERN AGENTS.

FROMAN SPEERS of the Bekins-Speers Motor Company, after an extended eastern trip which included the New York show and visits to the Haynes and the Grant factories, has returned to Los Angeles.

"The Los Angeles automobile dealers as a whole put it all over the easterners when you talk of progressive business methods and down-to-the-minute salesroom ideas," said Speers. "I found the nearest approach to the Los Angeles high mark in Cleveland and St. Louis."

The New York salesrooms were a disappointment to him, although he admits that the high cost of realty there precludes the lavish use of space as is seen in Southern California.

In his opinion the moneyed interests in the East are marking time, since there has been so much talk of peace, and he believes there is a feeling there that a tumble in prices in many commodities will take place perhaps within the next year.

Speers was informed in Cleveland, at the Grant factory, that it was not unlikely that there will be an advance in the price of the Grant, probably about March 1, unless existing contracts for metal are renewed within the next thirty days. Until that time the factory has enough metal on hand at the prevailing price.

The Haynes plant at Kokomo is working day and night, but even under such high-tension conditions it is impossible for the factory to keep pace with its orders. Speers stated that the first Haynes light twelve to be seen in Southern California has been ordered shipped from the factory to Los Angeles.

During the three weeks that he was away he visited Haynes and Grant dealers in the following cities: New Orleans, Jacksonville, Savannah, Richmond, Baltimore, Washington, New York, Boston, Cleveland, Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City.

"I am satisfied, after all I have seen, that Los Angeles has about the most up-to-date bunch of automobile dealers in the country," is Speers's firm declaration.

ELECTRIC COMPANY THROWS KEYS AWAY FEBRUARY FIRST

ON OR about the first of February a novel ceremony will be staged at Venice by officials of the Western Auto Electric Company, when they consign the door keys of their establishment at Pico and Hope streets to the permanent keeping of the broad Pacific Ocean.

This ceremony will symbolize the "never-closing" programme of the organization, which was announced last week. When the Great West was being settled by the hardy, adventurous pioneers, the places of refreshment and amusement were equipped with doors, locks and keys. But practically without exception, the proprietors, on taking possession, would fling the keys away as a sign that their establishments would never be closed.

And so, once more this old-time practice will be revived, not, however, in the name of carousel and mad revelry, but in the name of constant, expert service for motorists.

A. J. Tobey, manager of the Western Auto Electric Company, stated this week that the "always open" schedule had been made necessary by the quantity of work handled by his organization. By the addition of night and Sunday crews, the quantity of work can be handled expeditiously, and at the same time expert service at all hours will be available for all car owners.

DEMONSTRATION IN RAIN SUCCESSFUL

LOS ANGELES WOMAN TRIES SEDAN; BUYS.

Storm Fails to Keep Agent Away at Appointed Hour and His Clever Deal at Conclusion of Test Closed Car Daily Becoming More Popular.

When Mrs. James W. Wooton of No. 172 South Commonwealth avenue arose one morning last week and found it was raining torrents she decided that the demonstration of a Maxwell touring car which she was to have had for the day was all off. But promptly at the hour arranged for the test of the car demonstration a handsome Maxwell sedan was driven to her door, and she was given her choice to ride in a closed car, with the proviso that she purchased the Maxwell sedan at the conclusion of the demonstration, made while the rain was pouring down.

"The closed car is becoming more and more popular," said P. A. Bekins of the Lord Motor Car Company yesterday. "Motorists by the score are being won over to the closed car on account of its perfect protection in all sorts of weather. With the windows raised not a drop of water nor a sweep of cold wind can touch the occupants of the car, and when the weather is warm and an open car is desired, it takes but a few seconds to drop the glass into its padded compartments. Even the window posts and have a handsome, luxurious touring car with a permanent top.

"The Maxwell sedan was introduced only a year ago. It was practically the first of the really serious low-priced sedans and sprang into instant popularity. The person orders for this model have been pouring into the Maxwell factory and a total of almost four times the number produced last year will be manufactured. Dealers all over the country are unable to fill orders for it, and had we not been on the ground floor, as it were, with our orders for several carloads of Maxwell sedans, which were delivered to us recently, we should be in the same plight. Sales have already reduced our stock to two cars."

This car belongs to the United States government, and is one of a pair of Wintons purchased for the use of the Public Works' officers. This Winton is in use at Mare Island, and the other at Bremerton, Washington. The above picture was taken at the transport docks, San Francisco, the transport Sherman showing in the background.

SUNDAY MORNING.

Oh, Joy!

COACHES ORDER ACTIVE WORK.

Life of Ease to be Regaled to Ash Heap.

Condition of Fields Makes Work Difficult.

Prospects Better, but are None Too Good.

BY WARDE FOWLER.

Track actually materializes this week. For a long time Southern California track coaches have been sitting around wondering just what was going to happen to them. Now they have resolved to find out. Prospects have been gloomy at all the colleges and no one master has been able to kick up any fuss, excitement or interest in his aggregation.

GOING TO FIND OUT.

With this do or dare resolve, to find out the worst at the earliest possible moment, things take on a more lively look. Calls have been issued and insisted upon, that all track hopefuls get out and work. "From now on," firmly announced one coach, "we are going to have strenuous, thorough and consistent practice in track, if we kill off every man on the squad."

One reason for this wayward practice seems to be the condition of the various tracks. Pomona has the only track in the south at the present time that is any state of repair. Even the Sage Hens complain that conditions are far from ideal.

OH! GOSH.

At U.S.C. there are a bunch of carpenters all over the lot and a track athlete takes a chance of running a hail through his foot every time he goes on the field. The new bleachers are rapidly nearing completion, but there is a lot of work to be done before the track is at all usable. [illegible] at that, they are planning [illegible] work at the Trojan school. "If it becomes necessary, we'll use the street for early season practice," announced Dean Cromwell. "But we're going to have some, and don't ever forget it."

In all probability the U.S.C. field will be finished inside of a couple of weeks and the track at least will be O. K.

At Occidental things are in a very similar shape. Workmen are still putting the finishing touches on the Tiger athletic field and the track itself has hardly been thought of, up to the present time. It has been planned to construct a temporary track at Occidental with six laps to the mile. This will be used while the regular quarter-mile affair is being completed.

Conditions are a little better at Whittier and the athletes of that institution are getting some early work.

Semester examinations have interfered with track work during the past week and will continue to break into the proceedings during the coming few days. But calls have been sent out in earnest and something will be popping ere long.

NOT EXCELLENT.

Varsity prospects have been keeping the coaches sitting up nights. Pomona has a pretty fair foundation on which to construct a track team, as the state [illegible] Whittier has a [illegible] and Pinch. Occidental was just about cleaned out at graduation time last year, but will have several interesting specimens to begin work on.

In the distances, as usual, Pomona will have it all over the schools of the southern conference. The Huns are planning to take all the honors in the mile and two-mile events, and there doesn't seem to be anybody to argue the point with them. Adkinson and Sturgis, their like certainties and there are some more experts who promise to show class.

The Tigers have only one chance, Hugh Huddleson, in the lengthy races. There is a slight chance that Paul Prichard will don a suit, get a little practice and startle the natives. The chances are, however, that Mr. Huddleson will have to do all the going for the Tigers.

In the shorter distances the competition is more or less divided and there shouldn't be a walkaway in any one event.

INTERESTING.

Hurdles should prove an interesting species of entertainment this season. Verle Murray is by far the favorite. He is a demon with several years' experience, and can clip the low sticks in a startling way. The Quakers are depending on him to bring home many first places and their faith will probably be well rewarded. U.S.C. and Pomona have a few hurdlers of the dark horse variety and are willing to admit that Murray looks pretty good.

The Tigers, however, claim a hurdler also. There is a rumor to the effect that Pelly Thompson is going to be a wonder. He has been developing rapidly and looks better every time he lights out in a track suit. But Thompson is not only a hurdler. He appears to be following in the footsteps of brother Fred, and is out to annex honors wherever they may be found. He is a shot putter of no ill repute, a choice hammer man, all right on the jumps, and there at the sticks.

Young Thompson undoubtedly has the making of a valuable track man. He has the ability, he is better than three-quarters of any competition that he would run up against and he has every chance in the world of becoming an all-around athlete of considerable fame. If he'll get out early and practice late and take a little advice now and then, he should be some combo.

LOCAL COMPANY ADDS NEW LINE.

Arrangements have just been closed by the Electric Equipment Company, so that henceforth that firm will represent the Lesce-Neville Company of Cleveland, O., manufacturers of electric starters and generators and automobile electrical equipment. The local company will represent it as exclusive service and repair station as well as distributor.

Ray Thomas, president of the company, has just returned from a trip to San Francisco, where he spent some time at the new plant of the company, which was recently completed on Bush street.

CHESS AND CHECKER HEADQUARTERS, Nos. 714-716 Hamilton Building. All chess and checker players invited to join. For further information see or write the secretary, D. M. Bovee, at the clubrooms.

AMONG THE FANS.

Newell W. Banks will remain here a couple of weeks before starting for his home in Detroit, Mich. He will give exhibitions on his way back, as clubs north of here desiring to secure him for an exhibition should write at once to Mr. Banks or the editor for terms. Address all letters in care of The Times, Los Angeles, before starting on his homeward journey. Mr. Banks played 15 exhibition games in most every place in Southern California. He will be pleased to hear from Riverside, Pasadena, Santa Ana, San Dimas, Long Beach, San Fernando, San Bernardino, Santa Ana, Santa Barbara, Corona, and other places where the game is appreciated. The various clubs should not fail to take advantage of this opportunity as Mr. Banks is in a class by himself at simultaneous and blindfold playing. He plays very rapidly, seldom taking over ten seconds to a move in simultaneous play.

Several State championships have been decided the last month. J. H. Mott of Topeka, Kas., won the Kansas championship, John Byrne, Jr., the Illinois championship, and A. F. Shaldorry, the Oklahoma championship.

The leadings ideas developed by the Southern California Chess and Checker Club has progressed far enough that Stach Miotkowski is champion for the year. Mr. Miotkowski gave odds to all the other players, so his winning of the tournament leaves no doubt as to who the "club champion" is.

RANES-JORDAN MATCH.

(Concluded.)

Thursday evening there were two games on the Dyke Opening. The first game was played much in book line, and the second game brought out some original play. The position at the commencement stage was:

Black	4, 6, 10, 14, 15, 19;
White	13, 17, 21, 25, 27, 30.
Black (Jordan) to play and win.

The game commenced—9-13, 24-20, 17-13, 25-22, 13-9, 22-18, 9-5, 18-14, 5-1, 14-10, Drawn.

FRIDAY'S PLAY.

The chief event evening was that on the programme for that day's play. In the second game Jordan played the Dyke Opening, but in the second move he varied from the usual line of play. The game practically ran into a position of the Cross Opening, which is regarded by the majority of players as favorable for Black, and Jordan had the opportunity of winning for Black, and Jordan had the opportunity of winning a winning position, but failed to rise to the occasion. The opportunity passed on to Ranes, and he finally played the ending faultlessly and succeeded in drawing without much difficulty.

All the games will be run in this column, and we expect to start them in next issue, using those that have been played this week. The second match of a brother Elks' league is in our work of examining the games, and will be noticed in that while the starred openings were played most, there were drawn out of the list.

Mr. Banks was pressed for time and had not fair days' rest of no doubt affected the playing, as the style of play was not as expressive as in the first match.

Both are fine, gentlemanly players, and will be heard from in the future. Mr. Banks is open for engagements, and will be pleased to hear from clubs desiring to secure his services. Address all letters to 714 Hamilton building, Los Angeles.

Mr. Jordan also paired in the semi-finals of the Third Annual Tournament, Jordan winning 2 to 0 and 1 drawn. In the last performance, Jordan will be entitled to a return match with Banks, and by such a contest a championship should be had for the year.

Below follows a list of all the openings played in this match.

OTTO FRITSCH PUTS PEP INTO TRACK.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Jan. 25.—In reply to an invitation from Coach Otto Fritsch of Santa Clara, that track and field relations be established between the Cardinal and the Red and White, Graduate Manager Behrens of Stanford has placed a freshman track meet on his schedule for 1917. The date for the event has as yet not been set.

Until Fritsch came to Santa Clara from Los Angeles, the Missionites did not indulge in track athletics. Stanford and Santa Clara have clashed only in baseball, basketball, and Rugby.

BILLIARD CARNIVAL IS LATEST SPORT ADDITION.

A "BILLIARD CARNIVAL" is the latest thing in billiards.

By bringing the best exponents of the different billiard games together in tournament play, it is planned to give the fans of this section a billiard feast for a period of two weeks.

The first course of the feast is a pocket-billiard tournament for the professional championship of the Pacific Coast, and with such high-class artists as Byron Gillett, George Banks, George Kirkland and L. E. (Shorty) O'Brien as contestants this event should prove interesting.

SECOND COURSE.

The second course, which follows immediately after the pocket-billiard tourney, is a "snooker" tournament for the championship of Southern California.

As this will be the first "snooker" tourney held in Los Angeles, a word of explanation is necessary.

The game is played on a 6x12 pocket table with 2 1-16 balls and 3-inch pockets.

Twenty-two balls are used in the game, fifteen red, or pyramid, balls, which are racked up as in American pocket billiards, and six different colored, or pool, balls, which are distributed around the table on spots provided for the purpose, and a cue ball. A player must pocket a red ball before pocketing a pool or colored ball, which range in value from two to seven. The game is interesting and "tough." Those who play it pronounce it the king of all pocket games.

FINAL ROUND.

The contestants in this tourney are C. W. Cooper, W. C. Pennell, George Hughes, W. H. Boggs, G. L. Sullivan, A. Klaus, J. Fuller and W. W. Capes. All of these players have participated in tournaments in other cities and have won high honors.

The final course is an English billiard tournament for the amateur championship of Southern California.

This event is made more interesting from the fact that Alfred Jordon, one of the world's greatest checker player, has entered the tourney. Mr. Jordon plays an excellent game and at one time competed for the amateur championship of England. The other players are Dr. G. N. Hayes, present champion; George H. Hughes and W. W. Capes.

Play in the first course of the professional pocket billiard championship is scheduled to start Monday, February 5.

STELLAR MATCHES IN POLO MEET.

EAST VS. WEST BATTLE SHOULD BE A WONDER.

Many Noted Eastern Poloists are Now at Coronado Getting Ready for the Fray—Several Crack Teams Lined up for Tournament. San Mateo's Re-entry Celebrated.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RIVERSIDE, Jan. 27.—With five representative club teams already assured—San Mateo, Midwick, Coronado, Meadowbrook and Riverside—and an army team as a possible sixth; with at least two big special matches planned in East vs. West and North vs. South; and enough players and ponies to furnish a stellar match on every one of the eleven days, Riverside's big annual polo tournament, scheduled definitely now with polo association approval for February 12 to 22, inclusive, promises beyond question to be the best polo event ever staged in Southern California.

ARRIVING.

All the noted eastern players now at Coronado, and a number of others yet to arrive, have promised to play in the tournament, and Hugh Drury, captain of the Riverside team, has just returned from San Mateo with assurances from not less than six of the northern polo stars will come.

In celebration of this latter feature, San Mateo's re-entry into southern tournament play, a special event of north vs. south, for the Coast championship, has been planned as the opening event, on Lincoln's birthday, February 12. The San Mateo and Del Monte players, who have promised to come, include Thomas J. Driscoll, whose rating is 5 goals; Walter S. Hobart, 4 goals; W. S. Tevis, Jr., 3 goals; H. C. Hastings, 2 goals; Capt. R. E. McNally, 1 goal, and Christian de Guigne, Jr., 1 goal; and out of these, and including possibly R. Cheever Cowdin, now playing with Midwick, will be picked a team of four to defend the Northern California title, never dragged in the dust since the old days of '95 and '96, when Riverside's team defeated the Burlingame quartette two years in succession, but was never able later to repeat.

Hugh Drury of Riverside, rated at 7 goals; Maj. Colin G. Ross of Coronado, 4 goals, and Carleton F. Burke, Midwick's 4-goal man will make up at least three of the southern players; the fourth to be chosen from among the fast 1 and 2-goal men of the Riverside and Midwick clubs.

EAST VS. WEST.

Then there will be the big match of East vs. West, won by the West two years ago and the East last year, which will be a battle royal this season, with so many big eastern polo ists on the Coast; and the third annual contest for the Mission Inn trophy, on which Malcolm Stephenson's Cooperstown team holds two legs. In addition will be the play, under handicap, for the Walter Dupree cup and the low-goal matches for the Riverside cups.

All of which will certainly go to make up a tournament worth traveling far to see.

The picturesque State Constabulary of Pennsylvania will soon lose those qualities according to which they ride around like forest rangers or cowboys on prancing mounts, prying into the dangerous nooks and corners of Pennsylvania mines. As an experiment four motor cars were purchased recently and as many horses relegated to ancient history.

Oh, Girls!

PERFECT MAN FOUND AGAIN

Treloar Makes a Most Remarkable Discovery.

Fellow-instructor in a Class All His Own.

Picked as Best Type of the Outdoor Athlete.

The perfect man has been discovered at last. He is none other than Frederick Vance Veith, the swimming instructor of the Los Angeles Athletic Club. Al Treloar made the discovery last week. DeWitt Van Court and Dan McLeod seconded Treloar's selection.

Treloar ought to know something about who is perfect and who is not. In the now historic contest held in New York ten years or less ago, the judges picked Treloar as the world's most perfect man.

"There isn't such a thing as a perfect type," explained Treloar yesterday. "There are several different rules of measurement that give entirely different types of men the honor. Veith comes as near combining all the qualities I want without being overdeveloped in any particulars and under-developed in others. He is the perfect all-around outdoors athlete.

"For instance they say that a man's height and a man's reach ought to be the same length. Veith's height is 5 ft. 7½ in. and his reach is the same. They say that the size of the biceps of the arm and the calf of the leg ought to measure the same. Veith's measurements are: neck 15 in., calf 15 in., and biceps 14¼ in. The slight variation in Veith's arm is to his advantage, for unless a man has specialized on his arm and really overdeveloped it, he will always measure smaller, and not very much more than Veith. I should say 14¾ is perfect and a 15-inch arm abnormal.

"Again, practically every muscle of Veith's is developed to the limit without being overdeveloped. His legs, his arms and body muscles are all in proportion. Usually one is out of proportion to the other. In the average man all are overdeveloped."

Veith is 24 years of age and has been in out-of-door athletics all his life. He attributes his "perfect shape" to swimming, but that alone does not deserve all the credit. Veith has been a track athlete, an ice skater, a gymnast, a boxer, a wrestler and a football player. In a word, he is an all-round athlete.

The only stunts that Veith has participated in are weight lifting. He never has hoisted the big iron, but his exercises have been of the light and fast kind.

Perhaps that is one reason for his long lines and perfect symmetry of his muscles. Weight lifting develops hard, knotty muscles, that fit one only to act, but powerful. They are of little use in any sport, because the athlete is usually heavy, clumsy and slow to handle himself. Veith has perfectly developed muscles of the long, lithe, elastic type, like one sees in the cat family. They combine strength and speed.

Veith contracts his muscles only as hard as any strong man must do when he relaxes they are as soft as a woman's.

They are muscles such as Frank Gotch, the world's greatest wrestler had; such as all of the best runners have; such as Howard Drew, the world's fastest runner, and practically every baseball player of prominence possesses in greater or lesser degree.

Where Veith differs from them is that he has developed muscles that they have neglected. He has the muscles of the boxer, the wrestler, the track athlete, the baseball player. Whereas, these latter have overdeveloped the muscles that they use particularly. For instance, a baseball player is usually developed more on the right side than the left. track athlete's legs are the best developed and usually his legs and his back and body muscles are underdeveloped.

No doubt swimming had much to do with Veith's development, for that sport brings every muscle into play. But ice skating, parallel bars, pulley weights, wrestling, boxing, handball, horse and tumbling—all have played their part.

HANDBALL GAME AT ATHLETIC CLUB TODAY

Dick Retzer will defend his recently won handball honors this morning in a match at the L.A.A.C. with Wen Larson. Larson was Lacey's greatest rival and the announcement he heard of the latter champion's downfall, challenged the present holder.

Retzer was never considered seriously as champion until after he defeated Joe Lacey two years ago. Many believe that Retzer will have been away off his game to suffer defeat. Larson in particular believes this and for that reason is playing for the title today.

Retzer is an old-time football player and athlete. Larson has played and defeated him a number of times. Larson has won in the past. His rise, however, was as meteoric as unexpected.

COAST LEAGUE VERY HIGH

Out of Sixteen Men Sent to Hit the High Places—Recruits Resemble Unwashed Bushers Their Way Around Without

BY HARRY A

THE Coast League, always a prominent contributor to the majors, last year yielded a record-breaking crop of athletes. No less than twenty-five players of greater or less degree were plucked from the parent stem by big league scouts, and a majority of them will at least start the 1917 season on big time.

At the beginning of the 1916 season the Coast sent fourteen players to the majors, and opined that to be going some. This year the number will be almost doubled. Of the fourteen, all but two made good to the extent of finishing the season in the big leagues, which probably was a record in itself. The percentage of flivvers this year will be greater. It is figured that a little more than half of that twenty-five will still be gaining big league scrap heap on the finish of the season, while the others will have returned to the coffee and cakers of the minors.

UNWASHED BUSHERS?

These recruits bear no resemblance to the unwashed bushers of fiction. They know how to get on and off a street car, have seen jitneys, have been in barber shops and carry matches. They are in every way men of the world, and if they stray from the main thoroughfare into a side street it will not be because they are flustered, but are looking for something. There are one or two towns in the Coast League almost as big as some of those in the majors, and our athletes know a lot more about the wicked ways of the city than some of those eastern sharps may think.

Anybody who picks their pockets or steals their neckties will have to be up and doing. Also, they will have to be mighty clever. Some of the younger recruits have a scheme to fasten up their right pants pocket where they carry their money with a safety pin. In this way they will fool the crooks, and prove that they don't intend to be caught napping.

The oldest, most hardened recruits, like Ping Bodie and Harry Wolter, who are going back for a second trial in the majors, show no traces of fear or uneasiness. Even the prospect of a long car ride for nothing has not caused them to tremble with anticipation.

Here is the roll list:

THE ROLL.

Harry Wolter, outfielder, Los Angeles, to Chicago Cubs.
Pete Standridge, pitcher, Los Angeles, to Chicago Cubs.
George W. Zabel, pitcher, Los Angeles, to Chicago Cubs.
Oscar Horstman, pitcher, Los Angeles, to St. Louis Cardinals.
Ray Bates, third baseman, Vernon, to Philadelphia Athletics.
Ellis Johnson, pitcher, Vernon, to Philadelphia Athletics.
Marty McGaffigan, shortstop Vernon, to Philadelphia Nationals.
Charley (Swede) Ritberg, second baseman, to Chicago White Sox.
Tub Spencer, catcher, Los Angeles, to Detroit Tigers.
Dutch Reuther, pitcher, Portland, to Pittsburg Pirates.
Wynn Noyes, pitcher, Portland, to Philadelphia Athletics.
Ivan Howard, first baseman, Portland, to Cleveland Indians.
Louis Guisto, first baseman, Portland, to Cleveland Americans.
Jack Roach, catcher, Portland, to St. Louis Cardinals.
Al Sotheron, pitcher, Portland, to St. Louis Browns.
Ping Bodie, outfielder, San Francisco, to Philadelphia Athletics.
Johnny Couch, pitcher, San Francisco, to Detroit Tigers.
Eric Erickson, pitcher, San Francisco, to Detroit Tigers.
Red Oldham, pitcher, San Francisco, to Detroit Tigers.
Ducky Holmes, third baseman, San Francisco, to Detroit Tigers.
Speed Martin, pitcher, Oakland, to Chicago White Sox.
Bill Kenworthy, second baseman, Oakland, to St. Louis Browns.
Rowdy Elliott, catcher, Oakland, to Chicago Cubs.
Paul Fittery, pitcher, Salt Lake, to Philadelphia Nationals.
Bill Piercy, pitcher, Salt Lake, to New York Yankees.

Of these, Spencer, Elliott and Guisto reported before the end of the 1916 race. The former two delivered in a good shape, and Tub probably will be Detroit's first baseman next year. Guisto, potentially a great ball player, is still an experiment.

There is no doubt that Harry Wolter will make good with the Cubs if he cares to remain. While a veteran in point of appearance, the fact that he broke into the majors while merely a kid is in his favor. He has shown big-time stuff ever since coming to the Coast. Harry was supposed to be through because of a broken leg, but he clicked 'em by letting the leg grow together again.

Standridge, with his easy delivery and good control, figures to deliver, but would rather slab on the Coast, and this feeling may militate against his success. Zabel has already been promoted back to the Angels.

Horstman needs another year in the minors. Last season he gave promise of gaining control, but this was not fulfilled.

Bates should have the third base job with the Athletics nailed down

...RFECT MAN FOUND AGAIN.

...er Makes a Most Remarkable Discovery.

...e-instructor in a Class All His Own.

...d as Best Type of the Outdoor Athlete.

...perfect man has been discovered at last. He is none other than Erick Vance Veith, the swimming instructor of the Los Angeles Athletic Club. Al Treloar made the discovery last week. DeWitt Van Dalsem and Dan McLeod second Treloar's selection.

"Nobody ought to know something about who is perfect and who is not, as the new historic contest held in New York ten years or less ago, the judges picked Treloar as the world's most perfect man.

"There isn't such a thing as one perfect type," explained Treloar today. "There are several different sets of measurement that will produce entirely different types of man perfect. Veith comes as near being all of the qualities I name as being overdeveloped in some places and under-developed in others. He is the perfect out-of-doors athlete.

"For instance they say that a man's height and a man's reach should be the same length. Veith's height is 5 ft. 7½ in. and his reach the same. They say that the neck, the span of the arm and the calf of the leg ought to measure the same. Veith's measurements are 15 in., calf 15 in., and biceps 15. The slight variance is in favor of the arm to his advantage. Such a man has specialized on his arms and really overdeveloped it. It always measure smaller, usually much more than Veith's. I would say 14½ is perfect and a trifle of an arm abnormal.

"Again, practically every muscle in Veith's body is developed to the full without being overdeveloped. His forearms and body muscles are in proportion. Usually one is all out of proportion to the other and the average man all are undeveloped."

Veith is 24 years of age and has been an out-of-doors athletics all his life. He attributes his "perfect" build to swimming, but that sport does not deserve all the credit. He has been a track athlete, as a boxer, a gymnast, a boxer, a wrestler and a football player. In fact he is an all-around athlete. Many stunts that Veith has not attempted in are weight lifts. He has never hoisted the big irons. All exercises have been of the light, graceful kind.

"I hope that is one reason for the fine and perfect symmetry of muscles. Weight lifting makes knotty muscles, that are slow but powerful. They are of use in any sport, however, as skate is usually too clumsy how to handle himself. Veith's perfectly developed muscles of arm, Bthe, elastic type, like one of the cat family. They combine strength and speed. The contracts his muscles they are as any strong man's, but he relaxes they are as soft as a...

"There are muscles such as Frank Gotch, the world's greatest wrestler, has as all of the best boxers such as Howard Drew, the fastest runner, and nearly every baseball player of more possesses in less degree.

"Veith differs from these in that he has developed muscles that have neglected. He has the arms of the boxer, the shoulders of athlete, the baseball player's chest, these latter have only developed the muscles that they use regularly. For instance, a baseball player is usually developed on the right side than left. A athlete's legs are thoroughly and usually his hands, but and body muscles are underdeveloped.

"Light swimming had much to Veith's development, for sport brings every muscle into play. Ice skating, running, bars, pulley weights, wrestling, handball, bar rings, etc.—all have played their

COAST LEAGUE PRODUCES VERY HIGH-CLASS STUFF.

Out of Sixteen Men Sent to the Big Leagues Fourteen Hit the High Places—Recruits of Present Day do not Resemble Unwashed Bushers of Fiction — Can Find Their Way Around Without Any Trouble.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

THE Coast League, always a prominent contributor to the majors, last year yielded a record-breaking crop of athletes. No less than twenty-five players of greater or less degree were plucked from the parent stem by big league clubs, and a majority of these will at least start the 1917 season on big time.

At the beginning of the 1916 season the Coast sent fourteen players to the majors, and opined that to be going some. This year the number will be almost doubled. Of the fourteen, all but two made good to the extent of finishing the season in the big leagues, which probably was a record in itself. The percentage of drivers this year will be greater. It is figured that a little more than half of that twenty-five will still be using big league soup and pie at the finish of the season, while the others will have returned to the coffee and cakes of the minors.

UNWASHED BUSHERS?

These recruits bear no resemblance to the unwashed bushers of fiction. They know how to get on and off a street car, have seen jitneys, have been in barber shops and carry matches. They are in every way men of the world, and if they differ from the main thoroughfare like a side street it will not be because they are flustered, but are looking for something. There are one or two towns in the Coast league almost as big as some of those in the majors, and our athletes know a lot more about the wicked ways of the city than some of those smart alecks may think.

Anybody who picks their pockets or steals their neckties will have to get up and doing. Also, they will have to be mighty clever. Some of the younger recruits have a scheme to fasten up their right pants pocket where they carry their money with a safety pin. In this way they will fool the crooks, and prove that they don't intend to be caught napping.

The older, more hardened recruits, like Ping Bodie and Harry Wolter, who are going back for a second trial in the majors, show no trace of fear or excitement. Even the prospect of a long car ride for nothing has not caused them to tremble with anticipation.

Here is the full list:

THE ROLL.

Harry Wolter, outfielder, Los Angeles, to Chicago Cubs.
Pete Standridge, pitcher, Los Angeles, to Chicago Cubs.
George W. Zabel, pitcher, Los Angeles, to Chicago Cubs.
Oscar Horstman, pitcher, Los Angeles, to St. Louis Cardinals.
Ray Bates, third baseman, Vernon, Philadelphia Athletics.
Ellis Johnson, pitcher, Vernon, Philadelphia Athletics.
Marty McGaffigan, shortstop Vernon, to Philadelphia Nationals.
Charley (Swede) Risberg, second baseman, to Chicago White Sox.
Bob Spencer, catcher, Los Angeles, to Detroit Tigers.
Dutch Reuther, pitcher, Portland, to Pittsburg Pirates.
Wynn Noyes, pitcher, Portland, to Philadelphia Athletics.
Jim Howard, first baseman, Portland, to Cleveland Indians.
Louis Guisto, first baseman, Portland, to Cleveland Americans.
Jack Roach, catcher, Portland, to St. Louis Cardinals.
Al Sotheron, pitcher, Portland, to St. Louis Browns.
Ping Bodie, outfielder, San Francisco, to Philadelphia Athletics.
Bobby Couch, pitcher, San Francisco, to Detroit Tigers.
Pete Erickson, pitcher, San Francisco, to Detroit Tigers.
Red Oldham, pitcher, San Francisco, to Detroit Tigers.
Ducky Jones, third baseman, San Francisco, to Detroit Tigers.
Reed Martin, pitcher, Oakland, to Chicago White Sox.
Bill Kenworthy, second baseman, Oakland, to St. Louis Browns.
Dowdy Elliott, catcher, Oakland, to Chicago Cubs.
Paul Fittery, pitcher, Salt Lake, to Philadelphia Naticals.
Bill Piercy, pitcher, Salt Lake, to New York Yankees.

There is no doubt that Harry Wolter will make good with the Cubs if he cares to remain. While a veteran in point of experience, the fact that he broke into the majors while nearly a kid is in his favor. He has always hit-time stuff ever since coming to the Coast. Harry was supposed to be through because of a broken leg, but he fooled 'em by letting the leg grow together again.

Standridge, with his easy delivery and good control, figures to deliver, but would rather play on the Coast, and this feeling may militate against his success. Zabel has already been passed back to the Angels.

Noyes can speed another year in the minors. Last season he gave evidence of gaining control, but this has not yet fulfilled.

Detroit should have the third base job with the Athletics nailed down the minute he starts, unless he develops some weakness which was not evident on the Coast. McGaffigan's job as extra shortstop for the Phillies would seem to be secure. He can hardly hope to oust Bancroft unless the latter has slowed down, but will come in mighty handy if Dave is injured.

Willis Johnson showed hardly enough on the Coast to warrant an advance in the majors. With control he would be a topliner, but has shown no evidence of his ability to gain this.

SLATED.

Risberg is slated to oust Jack Ness and Fournier off first base. Thus far he has shown to the best advantage at second, but has the physical qualifications to play the initial sack. Should he fail there he is certain to be retained in a utility capacity. His very presence on the club probably will stimulate Eddie Collins to greater efforts.

Judged by their form last season, Noyes and Reuther both will stick. Howard is still possessed of major league speed, and Cleveland doubtless will retain him as utility man.

Roche simply reverted to St. Louis, and it is said that the Cards have no intention of keeping him. Still, now that he has recovered his arm, he might make them a valuable man.

The Browns have landed a real prize in Allen Sutton Sothoron. His record of fifteen straight wins with a fifth place club was one of the biggest doings of the year in any league. Al will remain.

If our old friend Ping Bodie doesn't make a home for himself in that Athletic outfield we will deny ever having known the man.

Detroit is reported to be planning a return of Couch, Jones, Oldham and Erickson to the Seals. Detroit is believed to have exercised its options on these men to keep other major league clubs from grabbing any of them. Couch, with his youth and strength, is a good big league prospect.

Showing the coolness and effectiveness of a veteran the minute he stepped out of his sandlot rags into a regular $20 uniform, Speed Martin figures to break into even that great White Sox pitching staff if he has fully recovered from the injury that afflicted him last season.

Having inherited from some unnamed ancestor the ability to hit the ball with tremendous vigor, Bill Kenworthy always was shy on fielding at second base. Fielder Jones plans to shift him to third, and this may be followed by an improvement in his defensive work. Failing there he may be transferred to the outfield, or retained as utility man. Bill ought to stick in some capacity.

Bill Piercy is an in-and-outer. For some reason he has never shown quite the class that his natural ability would seem to insure. Donovan may be able to apply the necessary polish.

Paul Fittery in some ways looks to be a better pitcher than his old southpaw side kick, Lefty Williams, and Lefty had no trouble qualifying in the big brush. If Fittery will tread the straight and narrow he will become a fixture on the pitching staff of the Phillies.

With the sincere wish that they all make rapid progress in their chosen profession, we will now leave the athletes to their fate.

BOWLING NOTES.

Eighteen more days have been added to the Auditorium tournament of the Southern California Bowling Alley Owners' Association, which will be started the week of January 29.

A Pythian trophy worth $100 will be contested for the new league before the rattles close January 31.

According to the decision of the alley owners the teams will be composed of bowlers whose team average totals 825 pins or less. This ruling has been made in order to keep the interference bowlers, of the Southern Pacific and Pacific Electric leagues which will be held Tuesday, February 6, at the Pacific Electric ball. The proceeds of the games will be used in helping defray the expenses of the bowlers to the Pacific Coast bowling association tournament which will be held in San Jose, February 20-25.

Tickets have been placed in the hands of the various bowlers and the management invites all of the fans to attend. It is expected that a meeting to be held at the Majestic alleys

Because of the condition of the hard drives, all of them having been either scraped or new alleys put in, the bowlers have only had to be accustomed to the new alleys. All the rules have been lifted in order to aid the result in that the bowlers are in trim for the coming tournament.

STANFORD CREW COACH TRIES OUT NEW STROKE.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Jan. 25.—Crew Coach Frank Guerena has begun experiments with a new stroke for the Stanford crews. Both freshmen and varsity oarsmen have been instructed to make changes in their rowing methods that will result in giving the Card stroke slower, more gradual "recovery."

Guerena's instructions yesterday were in the nature of an experiment. Theoretically, the new stroke will tend to overcome the loss of speed that follows when the eight oarsmen suddenly heave their bodies on the recovery stroke in a direction opposite to that being taken by the shell.

Heretofore, the Card "recovery" has been a simultaneous movement of body, arms and slides. Guerena's modification demands that the slides be held in check until the "recovery" of the body has reached a point beyond the perpendicular. By making the "recovery" a more gradual process, Guerena hopes to add speed to the shell as it glides ahead on its own momentum while the oars are being returned to the catch position.

EAST VS. WEST TENNIS TEAMS ARE LINING UP.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The All-Eastern lawn tennis team, which will play in the East vs. West matches at Los Angeles, March 9 and 10, will include the following players:

George M. Church, Tenafly, N. J.; Harold A. Throckmorton, Elizabeth, N. J.; Conrad B. Doyle, Washington, D. C.; Theodore R. Pell and Vernon S. Prentice of New York City.

Church and Throckmorton are playing in the Orient and are to compete in the mid-Pacific carnival tournament at Honolulu, beginning February 9. William M. Johnston and John Strachan, the California stars, also are entered for this event. The players are expected to catch steamers leaving Honolulu February 21 and 22, so that they will reach California in ample time for the intersectional match.

Doyle and Pell will leave the East the last week in February, going direct to the Coast. This will give them a few days to become acclimated and to prepare them for the big matches. Prentice is leaving for California next week so he will have ample opportunity to round into form.

Eleven distinct measures providing for a State Highway Commission are being prepared by different organizations of Texas to be introduced at the session of the Legislature this month.

M'VEY GOES EAST TO RUSH SHIPMENT.

Without any previous declaration of intentions, H. C. McVey told his sales force a few days ago that he was going to the factory of the Oakland Motor Car Company at Pontiac, Mich., and stay there until he saw shipments of the 1917 six-cylinder model started for Los Angeles in such quantities as would enable his company to fill the orders that have accumulated in the last few weeks.

Efforts to bring this about through telegrams and correspondence had failed, and Mr. McVey, who for several years was a direct factory representative of the Oakland company, decided his personal attention might be necessary, so he boarded a train for the East.

As soon as he sees shipments of Oakland cars under way, Mr. McVey will drop down to Indianapolis and visit the plant of the National Motor Vehicle Company, builders of the National six and twelve-cylinder cars. Shipments of these cars have been coming through so that the McVey company is making immediate deliveries, but Mr. McVey desires to get a line on the summer's output. He expects to rush home by fast train in time to greet the Oaklands upon their arrival.

The Dunwoody Institute, Minneapolis, is organizing unit night classes to study phases of motor car construction and operation.

A sixty-five-acre foothill tract in Bear Creek Canyon has been bought by the Denver (Col.) Motor Club for a country home site. The property, known as Idledale, is about twenty miles from Denver along the granite boulevard through the city's municipal mountain park system. There is a large house and a few cottages, and it will be improved by a clubhouse and several cottages for use of members.

COAST LEAGUE PRODUCES VERY HIGH-CLASS STUFF.

Out of Sixteen Men Sent to the Big Leagues Fourteen Hit the High Places—Recruits of Present Day do not Resemble Unwashed Bushers of Fiction — Can Find Their Way Around Without Any Trouble.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

THE Coast League, always a prominent contributor to the majors, last year yielded a record-breaking crop of athletes. No less than twenty-five players of greater or less degree were plucked from the parent stem by big league clubs, and a majority of these will at least start the 1917 season on big time.

At the beginning of the 1916 season the Coast sent fourteen players to the majors, and opined that to be going some. This year the number will be almost doubled. Of the fourteen, all but two made good to the extent of finishing the season in the big leagues, which probably was a record in itself. The percentage of flivvers this year will be greater, it is figured that a little more than half of that twenty-five will still be eating big league soup and pie at the finish of the season, while the others will have returned to the coffee and cakes of the minors.

UNWASHED BUSHERS?

These recruits bear no resemblance to the unwashed bushers of fiction. They know how to get on and off a street car, have seen jitneys, have been in barber shops and carry matches. They are in every way men of this world, and if they stray from the main thoroughfare into a side street it will not be because they are flustered, but are looking for something. There are also two towns in the Coast league almost as big as some of those in the majors, and our athletes know a lot more about the wicked ways of the city than some of those editors sharpie may think.

Anybody who picks their pockets or steals their nickties will have to look up and doing. Also, they will have to be mighty clever. Some of the younger recruits have a scheme of fastening up their right pants pocket where they carry their money with a safety pin. In this way they will fool the crooks, and prove that they don't intend to be caught napping. The older, more hardened recruits, like Ping Bodie and Harry Wolter, who are going back for a second trial in the majors, show no sign of fear or excitement. Even the prospect of a long car ride for nothing has not caused them to fumble with anticipation.

Here is the full list:

THE ROLL.

Harry Wolter, outfielder, Los Angeles, to Chicago Cubs.
Pete Standridge, pitcher, Los Angeles, to Chicago Cubs.
George W. Zabel, pitcher, Los Angeles, to Chicago Cubs.
Oscar Horstman, pitcher, Los Angeles, to St. Louis Cardinals.
Ray Bates, third baseman, Vernon, to Philadelphia Athletics.
Ellis Johnson, pitcher, Vernon, to Philadelphia Athletics.
Marty McGahgan, shortstop Vernon, to Philadelphia Nationals.
Charley (Swede) Risberg, second baseman, to Chicago White Sox.
Tub Spencer, catcher, Los Angeles, to Detroit Tigers.
Dutch Reuther, pitcher, Portland, to Pittsburg Pirates.
Wynn Noyes, pitcher, Portland, to Philadelphia Athletics.
Jean Howard, first baseman, Portland, to Cleveland Indians.
Louis Guisto, first baseman, Portland, to Cleveland Americans.
Buck Roach, catcher, Portland, to St. Louis Cardinals.
Al Sothoron, pitcher, Portland, to St. Louis Browns.
Ping Bodie, outfielder, San Francisco, to Philadelphia Athletics.
Johnny Couch, pitcher, San Francisco, to Detroit Tigers.
Ben Erickson, pitcher, San Francisco, to Detroit Tigers.
Red Oldham, pitcher, San Francisco, to Detroit Tigers.
Bucky Jones, third baseman, San Francisco, to Detroit Tigers.
Reed Martin, pitcher, Oakland, to Chicago White Sox.
Bill Kenworthy, second baseman, Oakland, to St. Louis Browns.
Rowdy Elliott, catcher, Oakland, to Chicago Cubs.
Paul Fittery, pitcher, Salt Lake, to Philadelphia Nationals.
Bill Pierry, pitcher, Salt Lake, to New York Yankees.

Of these, Spencer, Elliott and Couch reported before the end of the 1916 race. The former two displayed in a good shape, and will probably will be Detroit's first string backstop this year. Guisto, possibly a great ball player, is still an experiment.

There is no doubt that Harry Wolter will make good with the Cubs if he cares to remain. While a veteran in point of experience, the fact that he broke into the majors while barely a kid is in his favor. He has been big-time stuff ever since coming to the Coast. Harry was supposed to be through because of a broken leg, but he fooled 'em by getting the leg grow together again.

Standridge, with his easy delivery and good control, figures to deliver, and would rather play on the Coast, and this feeling may militate against his success. Zabel has already been transferred back to the Angels.

Oldham needs another year in the minors. Last season he gave evidence of gaining control, but this was not fulfilled.

Johnson should have the third base job with the Athletics nailed down the minute he starts, unless he develops some weakness which was not evident on the Coast. McGahgan's job as extra shortstop for the Phillies would seem to be secure. He can hardly hope to oust Bancroft unless the latter has slowed down, but will come in mighty handy if Dave is injured.

Ellis Johnson showed hardly enough on the Coast to warrant an advance in the majors. With control he would be a topliner, but has shown no evidence of his ability to gain this.

SLATED.

Risberg is slated to oust Jack Ness and Fournier off first base. Thus far he has shown to the best advantage at second, but has the physical qualifications to play the initial sack. Should he fail there he is certain to be retained in a utility capacity. The very presence on the club probably will stimulate Eddie Collins to greater efforts.

Judged by their form last season, Noyes and Reuther both will stick. Howard is still possessed of major league speed, and Cleveland doubtless will retain him as utility man.

Roche simply reverted to St. Louis, and it is said that the Cards have no intention of keeping him. Still, now that he has recovered his arm, he might make them a valuable man.

The Browns have landed a real prize in Allen Sutton Sothoron. His record of fifteen straight wins with a fifth place club was one of the biggest doings of the year in any league. Al will remain.

If our old friend Ping Bodie doesn't make a home for himself in that Athletic outfield we will deny ever having known the man.

Detroit is reported to be planning a return of Couch, Jones, Oldham and Erickson to the Seals. Detroit is believed to have exercised its options on these men to keep other major league clubs from grabbing any of them. Couch, with his youth and strength, is a good big league prospect.

Showing the coolness and effectiveness of a veteran the minute he stepped out of his sandlot rags into a regular $20 uniform, Speed Martin figures to break into even that great White Sox pitching staff if he has fully recovered from the injury that afflicted him last season.

Having inherited from some unnamed ancestor the ability to hit the ball with tremendous vigor, Bill Kenworthy always was shy on fielding at second base. Fielder Jones plans to shift him to third, and this may be followed by an improvement in his defensive work. Failing there he may be transferred to the outfield, or retained as utility man. Bill ought to stick in some capacity.

Bill Piercy is an in-and-outer. For some reason he has never shown quite the class that his natural ability would seem to insure. Donovan may be able to apply the necessary polish.

Paul Fittery in some ways looks to be a better pitcher than his old southpaw side kick, Lefty Williams. And Lefty had no trouble qualifying in the big brush. If Fittery will tread the straight and narrow he will become a fixture on the pitching staff of the Phillies.

With the sincere wish that they all make rapid progress in their chosen profession, we will now leave the athletes to their fate.

BOWLING NOTES.

Thirteen team bowling leagues entered in the new Southern California Bowling Association, which will be known after October, 1917, as the Southern California Bowling Association, which will be organized for the ensuing season.

According to the decision of the alley owners the teams will be composed of bowlers whose highest average is 170 pins or less. This ruling has been made in order to give the inexperienced bowlers a chance to win, something hard for the big stars which will be held Tuesday, February 6, at the Hollenbeck Athletic Hall. The proceeds of the theory will be used in helping defray the expenses of the bowlers to the Pacific Coast Bowling Association tournament which will be held at Los Angeles in March.

Handicaps have been placed in the hands of the various alley managers and the scores made by the bowlers will be handicapped. Alfred Mackenzie, floor manager of the hall, has invited Mr. and Mrs. B. Dole of Pasadena to lead the grand march. Mr. Dole, who is 78 years of age, bowls for his health.

Many of the prominent bowlers picked actors and actresses will be in the lineup.

Each and everyone will be in good shape to send the teams to the coast, not only with the object, but to capture the 1917 bowling crown for Los Angeles.

Three of the teams now bowling in the local league are sure to make the trip. The Keating Piano and Cadillac Portland Creamery of this city and the Hercules team from Venice will be the three to represent the local league.

Delegates to the convention of the Bowling Association will meet at a meeting to be held at the Majestic alleys.

Because of the condition of the local drives, all of them having been either scraped or new alleys put in, the bowlers here will not be handicapped by the new rules. All the rules have been in force in the Coast circuit by that the local bowlers are to train for the coming tournament.

STANFORD CREW COACH TRIES OUT NEW STROKE.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Jan. 28.—Crew Coach Frank Guerena has begun experiments with a new stroke for the Stanford crews. Both freshmen and varsity oarsmen have been instructed to make changes in their rowing methods that will result in giving the Card stroke slower, more gradual "recovery."

Guerena's instructions yesterday were in the nature of an experiment. Theoretically, the new stroke will tend to overcome the loss of speed that follows when the eight oarsmen suddenly heave their bodies on the recovery stroke in a direction opposite to that being taken by the shell.

Heretofore, the Card "recovery" has been a simultaneous movement of body, arms and slides. Guerena's modification demands that the slides be held in check until the "recovery" of the body has reached a point beyond the perpendicular. By making the "recovery" a more gradual process, Guerena hopes to add speed to the shell as it glides ahead on its own momentum while the oars are being returned to the catch position.

EAST VS. WEST TENNIS TEAMS ARE LINING UP.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The All-Eastern lawn tennis team, which will play in the East vs. West matches at Los Angeles, March 9 and 10, will include the following players:

George M. Church, Tenafly, N. J.; Harold A. Throckmorton, Elizabeth, N. J.; Conrad B. Doyle, Washington, D. C.; Theodore R. Pell and Vernon S. Prentice of New York City.

Church and Throckmorton are playing in the Orient and are to compete in the mid-Pacific carnival tournament at Honolulu, beginning February 9. William M. Johnston and John Strachan, the California stars, also are entered for this event. The players are expected to catch steamers leaving Honolulu February 21 and 22, so that they will reach California in ample time for the intersectional match.

Doyle and Pell will leave the East the last week in February, going direct to the Coast. This will give them a few days to become acclimated and to prepare them for the big matches. Prentice is leaving for California next week so he will have ample opportunity to round into form.

M'VEY GOES EAST TO RUSH SHIPMENT.

Without any previous declaration of intentions, H. C. McVey told his sales force a few days ago that he was going to the factory of the Oakland Motor Car Company at Pontiac, Mich., and stay there until he saw shipments of the 1917 six-cylinder model started for Los Angeles in such quantities as would enable his company to fill the orders that have accumulated in the last few weeks.

Efforts to bring this about through telegrams and correspondence had failed, and Mr. McVey, who for several years was a direct factory representative of the Oakland company, decided his personal attention might be necessary, so he boarded a train for the East.

As soon as he sees shipments of Oakland cars under way, Mr. McVey will drop down to Indianapolis and visit the plant of the National Motor Vehicle Company, builders of the National six and twelve-cylinder cars. Shipments of these cars have been coming through so that the McVey company is making immediate deliveries, but Mr. McVey desires to get a line on the summer's output. He expects to rush home by fast train in time to greet the Oaklands upon their arrival.

HUMAN TORCH GETS TO WORK.

Explains Methods of Running a Baseball Team.

Bushers to Have Good Chance Under Stovall.

Trap is All Set for Opening of Training Season.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

George Stovall, the human torch, yesterday seared his his name onto the bottom of a 1917 contract, and then announced some of his plans for conducting the Tigers. The contract caught fire while he was signing it, but the flames were extinguished before the document was destroyed. This incident is mentioned merely to illustrate what a warm number the "Firebrand" really is. Darmody will compel him to wear asbestos gloves when handling the office furniture so as not to scorch the varnish.

Contracts also were sent to the Vernon players, and a majority, if not all of them, contained a raise over which their regular contracts called for last season. There will be no "side agreements" this year, everything being conducted on the up-and-up.

SHORT.

But concerning the Stovall system of running a ball team. Most managers are content merely to have a field captain. George is going them one better and will have also a "captain of the outfield." He does not believe that one captain can run the shebang right. The outfielders are so far away that he feels they should have their own personally-owned captain. Stovall, when he plays first base, will be his own field leader, and will work in conjunction with the boss of the outfield.

"I tried this system in the East and found it to be a good one," he said. "When it becomes necessary for me to give a signal, I will not take the time and trouble to flash it to each of the outfielders separately. I will simply tip it off to the captain of the outfield, and he will give it to the other two.

DIRECTOR-GENERAL.

"Then the captain will direct matters when it comes to playing for batters. Frequently, when a certain man comes to bat you will see one of the outfielders, who knows his hitting habits, move to one side or the other. This does but little good unless the other two outfielders also shift their positions. For this reason, I intend to pick a man for the job who is familiar with the styles of different batters, or who has a faculty for learning them. He will instruct the others how to play for each man as he comes to bat. Experience has shown me that one man in charge of the outer works increases the defensive efficiency of a ball team."

G. S. also spoke a few words pertaining to the manner in which he drills his pitchers in the spring. The difficulty of getting a definite line on a dozen or so pitchers in the month allowed for spring training is realized even by the lay mind. Also, it is then that the youngsters must be taught a lot, and it is these with which he will be chiefly concerned, as he knows about what the old-timers, these noble athletes of learning and experience, can do.

Despite the scarcity and high cost of home plate, George is going to have four of them duly installed at the Vernon park. The pitchers will then be divided into groups of three each, and each group equipped with a catcher. In three of the groups will be two bushers and one veteran pitcher. It will be the duty of this experienced heaver to teach the youngsters all that he knows while working with them. These three groups will pitch to the more seasoned catchers, who also will aid and advise the kids. The fourth division will be composed of seasoned heavers, and these will do their throwing to the youngest catcher on the club. It will be their function while taking the kinks out of their wings to tell the boy backstop the inside secrets of successful catching. This is a great cooperative system and should produce results.

QUITE RIGHT.

Stovall, like Frank Chance, is determined to give the rising generation of ball players an opportunity to show what they can do.

"In no other part of the country are there a greater number of promising young players, and yet in no other section is there so little chance for them to break in," declared the new Vernon boss. "That is because there is no minor league of low classification nearer than 1500 miles, and managers are not going to the expense of sending that far for inexperienced help. I am going to be entirely frank with the youngsters. Any who give evidence of possessing genuine ability I will recommend to some smaller league in case they are not ripe for this circuit. However, if any of these youngsters do not show enough stuff to make them reasonably sure of a successful career in baseball, I will tell them, and advise that they prepare themselves for something else. The sooner youngsters of this sort are disillusioned the better for them."

Two more kid twirlers, Ralph Valencia, a left-hander, and Harvey Hickman, yesterday turned in signed Vernon contracts.

Darmody and Stovall threaten a fight that will carry the case to the National Commission in case Ham Patterson endeavors to take Jerry Coleman, catcher, to the Dallas club. They claim that Jerry is the property of Vernon, and do not intend to relinquish this pudgy and promising backstop without a scrap. Patterson says that when he was released as manager of the Tigers, he felt free to negotiate with Coleman, who was with Vernon part of last season.

NATURALLY.

Arthur Griggs will be permitted to go to the Dallas club, but as he represents part of that $90,000 purchase, Darmody naturally figures that he should receive something in return. He has named a number of players in the Texas league, any one of whom he is willing to accept in return for Griggs.

Everything was quiet in the trenches yesterday. Although the integrity of baseball has been recklessly and bitterly assailed, no steps as far as could be learned have been taken to back them up with a semblance of facts or other proofs. Carefully designed to injure irreparable damage on America's greatest game, these charges to date have had an exactly opposite effect. The situation has become wonderfully clarified in the minds of the fans, and indications are that baseball on the Coast will come out of the battle more firmly installed in the affection and confidence of the thinking public, than before these issues were raised.

G. Brown, the G standing either for George or Gerald, applied at Vernon headquarters for a job yesterday. He is believed to be the most optimistic shortstop in the world.

"I'm not looking for money," explained the youth to Darmody. "All that I ask is a uniform. And if I don't make good, I will pay for having it cleaned. In thirty-six times at bat I made eighteen hits. My average is .500. Now I may look like a bum when I get up against real pitching, but I would like to have a chance."

Darmody will not only give the kid a uniform, but a contract. He does not want to be guilty of extinguishing a burning ambition like that. Anyway, he liked the busher's talk. Brown has been playing with the Santa Maria team.

DUCK PARADISE IS DISCOVERED.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BRYN MAWR, Jan. 27.—Chauncey Clem, C. E. Wilson, Ed Reber and Tony Savinovich have found the duck hunters' paradise, for they claim that there are millions of ducks at Warner's ranch, on the road to San Diego, and few hunters. They returned from a trip there with sixty-four big ones in their game bags.

There was several inches of snow in the vicinity of the ranch and the weather was so cold that it was not melting to any extent. Wilson discovered that the water in the lake was far below the right temperature for bathing when the boat broke loose and he was forced to swim after it. He says that the water was about 30 below zero.

The duck season will close on Wednesday of next week and many of the hunters are planning to get in one more trip before that time.

SIGN LEWIS TO WRESTLE AGAIN.

MARTINSON PICKED TO MEET THE STRANGLER.

Match to be Held at Shrine Auditorium — Opponent Named by Goffey of Chicago—Won Recent Tournament Held at Battle Creek and Threw Roller Twice.

BY HOWARD W. ANGUS.

Strangler Ed Lewis will wrestle Paul Martinson at the Shrine Auditorium February 5.

Puss Halbritter, associated with H. B. McDowell, announced last night that he was a full-fledge wrestling promoter, had Lewis signed to an iron-clad contract and that transportation expenses had already been wired Martinson.

"When we decided to promote wrestling matches in this city," said Halbritter, "we wired Santel, asking him if he would come south and also sent a telegram to Jack Coffey, wrestling promoter of the Chicago Athletic Club, to recommend a man. Santel refused to come south and Coffey recommended Martinson, so we immediately signed him.

"Coffey's position as matchmaker of the Chicago Athletic Club and several hundred other smaller clubs, in and around Chicago put him in a position to pick a fitting man."

Martinson won the recent wrestling tournament held at Battle Creek, Mich., which was alleged to be for the "championship of the Middle West." He threw Doc Roller in straight falls in 1914 and was the man who ruined the two East India wrestlers, Bux and Karo, who were brought to this country to meet Frank Gotch by Benjamin, Willie Hoppe's manager. Needless to say they never met the incomparable Gotch.

Strangler Lewis, having signed with Halbritter, for several matches, will not wrestle Santel in San Francisco February 22, but will probably appear here in a second match against an opponent to be selected later.

"Like most people in this city we are not as well acquainted with the wrestlers as we might be," said Halbriter. "But we have taken the grappler recommended by the man who is supposed to be the country's leading matchmaker. And we intend to give first-class matches or none at all."

"Once the game gets started here we'll bring Santel south. Olin west and all the rest of them whether they want to come or not, because we'll offer them so much they cannot afford to pass us up."

So spoke this city's latest promoter last night, puffing on a big cigar. And, oh yes, the new promoter is going to have a reserved section for the ladies and their escorts.

GUNBOAT SMITH FIGHTS DILLON.

[DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW ORLEANS (La.) Jan. 27.—Dominick Tortorich today signed Gunboat Smith to battle Jack Dillon of Indianapolis here twenty rounds on February 7. Tortorich was about to cancel the fight entirely since Battling Levinsky, who had signed for the match, ran out, declaring he did not want to fight twenty rounds. Tortorich sought around for light-heavyweights and found that Gunboat Smith would take the match. Dillon will come here next week to start conditioning himself, while Smith is expected a few days later. Levinsky and Smith fought here once before, the match proving a financial bloomer.

ST. VINCENT'S LOSE BALL GAME AT LAST.

At last St. Vincent's baseball players have found nine men who can beat them at the national pastime. The L.A.A.C. took yesterday's game from the Saints by the score of 5 to 3. McCay was on the mound for the clubmen and allowed only four hits, two coming in the ninth inning, with the game on ice. The box score:

ACCESSIBILITY OF CAR APPRECIATED.

That accessibility is of paramount importance in a motor car today is the opinion of A. J. Ruth of the Empire Motor Sales Company, who believes that there is no one thing about a machine that influences the average buyer more than its "getatableness."

"The majority of men who buy a medium-priced car like the Empire like to take care of their own car, and this applies in many cases also to women, because, through the medium of the press, owners have learned the A B C's of a motor car's anatomy," said Mr. Ruth.

"We know this to be true, as a large number of Empire owners have told us of the pleasure they take in looking after and paying attention to their cars, and the manufacturer who today is building his product with the idea of accessibility in mind is adding a value that cannot be measured in dollars and cents alone."

owner and manager of the Fort Wayne club of the Central League.

Zeider has been a faithful worker for Weeghman and the Cubs and will be given his unconditional release, if no one in the National League claims him when waivers are requested. To release a player unconditionally the other clubs in the organization must be given a chance for his services. If none of the teams demand him he can be let out to operate for himself.

TRACK PHENOMS ARE DISCOVERED.

[DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

POMONA, Jan. 26.—This is a season of discoveries for Clint Evans, coach of Pomona High School. He has unearthed enough spectacular track and field material with which to build what he thinks will be the championship team of the citrus belt. Last week at the High School he found Harold Kennedy, a two-miler of unusual promise.

Yesterday at the annual meeting of the intermediate school pupils Holbrook Benham jumped 5 ft. 9 in., while Felix Palomares ran the 100-yard dash in 10 3-5s. Palomares also did the 50-yard dash in 5 4-5s. The Garey school won easily from Kauffman and San Antonio schools.

Evans says he feels certain that with a little practice Benham will easily jump six feet and predicts that the boy, not yet 16, will pole vault twelve feet this spring. Benham was used as a substitute on the High School football team last fall, being qualified because he was a ninth A grade pupil. At that time he pulled the team out of several bad holes with his speed and endurance. He runs a mighty fast hurdle.

CAR GETS TIPSY; ENTERS A SALOON.

The usual procedure is first the bar and then the hilarity, but a certain Gary (Ind.) motor car does not go by precedent; it gets tipsy and then stops at a bar.

James Subin left his motor car outside, as usual, when he had business indoors one day, and no sooner had he disappeared than the car began to weave its tipsy way down the street.

A would-be hero was eluded with the aid of an icy pavement. A policeman got in the way, but the car refused to stop. The chase went merrily on until the runaway suddenly turned, dashed through the glass front of a saloon and lined up in front of the bar.

Owing to the nature of its structure, it was unable, however, to put its pedal on the brass rail.

MAXWELL WINS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PINEHURST (N. C.) Jan. 27.—Lee Maxwell of New York defeated Grantland Rice of New York, 9 up and 7 to play, today, in the championship round of the annual tournament of the Advertising Golfers of America.

Mrs. W. S. Bird, New York, defeated Mrs. E. D. Moore, New York, 4 and 3.

Thousands Now Wish

They Had Waited For a

Hudson Super-Six

The Hudson Super-Six last year outsold any other fine car.

Over 27,000 happy owners got it.

But thousands, because of the over-demand, took sixes of other makes. And now they find there is no similarity between other sixes and the Super-Six. In every way the Super-Six out-performs all cars of every type.

The same situation—weeks of waiting for a Hudson Super-Six—may occur again this spring.

We urge you to avoid it by selecting your car now.

The New York Show brought out no new sensations.

There were only types which the Super-Six has hopelessly defeated.

There were Sixes with the same old limitations.

There were Eights and Twelves, once thought to overcome them.

But nothing to endanger Super-Six supremacy. This type still holds, and will retain, all the worth-while records.

We have on exhibit this year's models, with the various new-style bodies. There are eight beautiful body types in the Hudson line this year.

They are rich and luxurious masterpieces in design.

The new gasoline saver is another Hudson creation.

Immediate delivery is possible. In a few weeks that condition is not likely to exist.

A Unique Condition

Never before has any one car held all the worth-while records. Never has one car proved supreme in speed, in hill-climbing, in flexibility and in endurance.

Never before has a major feature been controlled by a single maker.

The Super-Six, by a single invention, increased motor efficiency 80 per cent. It gave to Hudson a capacity beyond anything ever known.

That is why the quality-car demand so centers on the Hudson. Why Hudson outsells any rival. And why the spring demand, as last year, will far exceed supply.

The Super-Six invention minimized vibration. In that way, friction and wear in the motor are reduced almost to nil. Thus it saves most of the power which other types waste. And it probably doubles endurance.

That is why it won in a hundred tests. It utilized power which others lost. It kept going when others stopped. It kept in perfect running order when others went to pieces.

A Gasoline Saver

That saving of wear and friction means tremendous economy. It apparently means a double-lived motor. For the limits of endurance of a Hudson Super-Six motor have never yet been realized. Its superlative performances are important only in what they show for endurance.

In the new Hudsons appears another economy—a wonderful gasoline saver. It is on the cars we show. Come and see that, and the new Hudson luxury. The rest you know.

Driven by One Foot Pedal

Here at last is a car that allows the driver to enjoy motoring. A car controlled by a single foot pedal that starts, stops, accelerates, brakes and reverses.

Power is both gasoline and electric, used either singly or together. The storage battery conserves an enormous reserve power that takes the Dual-Power sailing up the steepest hills and over the roughest roads.

It is the smartest town car on the boulevards. And the most trustworthy and serviceable car for touring.

All in all, the Dual-Power solves the motorist's problems. It is a gasoline car without gears, shifting lever or clutch pedal—an electric that charges its own batteries.

It is the economy car from every viewpoint — gasoline consumption is reduced to a minimum — charging station bills are eliminated.

If you are looking for the efficient car, the reliable car, the economical car, the luxurious car, you are looking for the Dual-Power.

Let us arrange a demonstration.

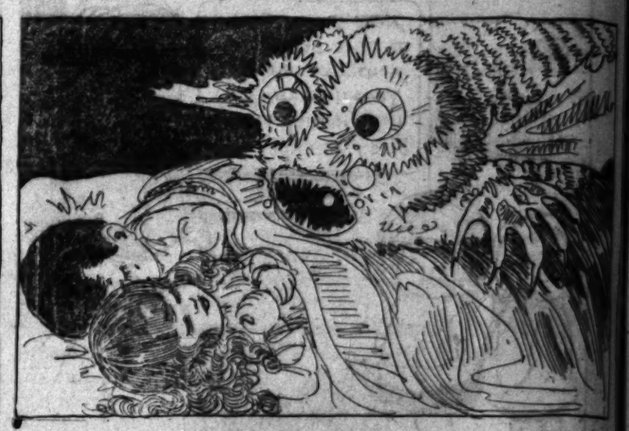
ONCE UPON A TIME

BY CLYDE LUDWICK

UNCLE JACK GAVE SOME MONEY TO THE CHILDREN FOR THEIR SUNDAY SCHOOL MISSIONARY COLLECTION

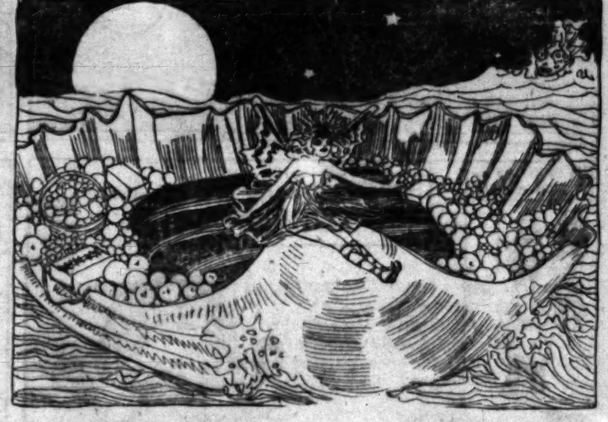
1—Son Bud and Sis stood in front of the toy shop window and thought how beautiful the musical top was and Sister said:—"Let us buy the top with the money Uncle gave us for the poor. He will never know we spent it."

2—The children bought the top and listened to its sweet music and were happy. They played and danced until bed time and never once thought of the poor—for they were selfish.



3—At midnight when it was very dark the Selfishiwick found the sleeping children. He can see right through the dark if children have been selfish.

4—The Selfishiwick did not wait long to take Son Bud and Sis on his horny back and swim away in a sea of trouble toward the Island of Destitution.



5—They were far out at sea when the children remembered the top and were sorry they had not given the money to the destitute. Then they saw Sweet Charity with a sea shell loaded with provisions for the poor.

6—When the Selfishiwick saw Charity he was so ashamed that he shriveled up and became as small as a minnow. Charity took the children home in the sea shell and now Son Bud and Sis know how bad it is to be selfish. Just suppose Charity had not rescued them!

MR. TWEE DEEDLE.

1—Mr. Twee Deedle, Dickie and Black Mammy came upon a boy about Dickie's age sitting upon a little hill. "If you wish to hear some beautiful music just stay here awhile!" he said. So our friends waited.

2—They had not waited long before a strange beast with a man on his back came walking up to them. "Good morning!" said the man as he tipped his hat to our friends. "We are in excellent tune this morning."

3—"Stand back a piece!" he said, as the strange beast began to swell and puff out like a toy balloon. "Stand at a safe distance! He may burst!" The beast held its breath and soon was almost twice as large as when it first walked up to them.

4—The man ran his fingers lightly over the holes in the creature's neck and played a sort of prelude, then, lifting his voice, he sang a sad song. It was about a grasshopper who had been bitten on the heel by a June bug, and it was so sad every one cried, even the beast.

5—When the man had finished the sad piece about the grasshopper he changed the tune and sang one so lively and full of happiness that every one was joyful, and they all circled about the beast and began dancing, even the beast. "I played the way I did," said the man when he had finished, "to show you that no matter what your troubles may be you can overcome them if you think only of the happy, sunshiny things to come!"

6—"The little troubles just make the happiness afterward seem that much brighter!" the man continued. "Hello!" he laughed as a turtle table loaded with good things to eat walked carefully up to our friends. "Here is good fortune approaching us! Let us thank our good friend the turtle table for thinking of us and all eat heartily, then I will play some more sunny songs." So all thanked the turtle table and enjoyed a hearty dinner.

COMMON SENSE in the HOME
EDITED by MARION HARLAND

ECONOMIZING ON THE TABLE.

TWO letters have come to me which have interested me so much that I believe other housekeepers will be glad to read them and talk about them. Both letters deal with much the same problem, the high cost of food products and the best way to economize.

The first letter is as follows:

"During these trying days of high prices I find it hard to know what to feed my family of seven so as to give them a change in food and still have something left for other things from my husband's wages after the grocer, light, and rent are paid. If some one who has mastered this problem would write a week's menus for the edification of those of us who are less fortunate, I feel sure many would unite with me in giving thanks.

"Mrs. W. P. W."

So much for the first letter. While the second one does not actually answer the first it gives so many good suggestions that it seems appropriate to put them both together.

"I have been much absorbed of late in the articles which have appeared upon the cost of living, and I am moved to write some of the conclusions I have reached on the subject, in the hope that the discussion may clear our minds and help some of us to arrive at helpful and illuminating results.

"To my mind two things enter equally into the success of supplying one's table upon little money. First comes good housekeeping, including judicious buying of food and the elimination of waste; and second is the cooperation of the family. If the members will not eat cold meat, stews, hashes, or any of the cheaper meats that can by preparation be made into appetizing dishes quite as wholesome as the more expensive cuts, of what avail is a housekeeper's ability to prepare them?

"A... if a family eats an average of two pounds of butter per person every week, as one or two writers on this subject seem to think necessary, there is small likelihood that the mistress of the household can live on as small a sum as one whose family consumes one-quarter of that quantity.

"But, these two things granted, there is yet another item worth consideration, and that is the place where the housekeeper lives and the prices of food prevailing there. This is by no means the same all over the country. I well remember a three months' visit I paid to my own folks, who live in another city. It was some years ago, just before provisions began their upward tendency. I was struck with the difference in prices there and here. Sugar was about the same and milk a little cheaper, but almost everything else was much dearer than here. Meat to be had here for 8 cents a pound for the chuck rib and 16 cents a pound for the best rib roast and 1½ cents for the best porterhouse steak were there 15, 18, and 25 cents a pound, respectively.

"Tomatoes that were shipped here and sold at 10 cents a quart were there 11 cents a pound, there being four medium sized ones to a pound, while later in the season, when the home grown tomatoes came in and sold for 2 cents a pound, they were selling back home for 25 cents a bushel. Watermelons, no larger or better than could be bought here for 25 cents, were selling there for 40 cents.

"I was struck with the difference in prices there and here"

I felt as if I were eating gold dust, and upon my return home, when foodstuffs had just begun to rise in prices, I told them that if they had been where I had they would think the butchers and grocers were giving their goods away.

"Even now, when things are at their top notch (let us hope) all over the country, the difference between places still holds good. How can a housekeeper who lives in a high priced locality compete with one who lives where everything is so much less in price?

"Mrs. J. E. L."

I said that the second letter contained some good suggestions which might be of service to the writer of the first epistle. I think it also holds excellent explanations of why one housekeeper can live more cheaply than another of equally good will and desire to economize.

Even now, with prices where they are and, in spite of the hope of Mrs. J. E. L., still apparently on the rise, the divergence of prices in different parts of the country exists.

Another serious item touched upon in the letter of Mrs. J. E. L. has to do with the habits of the family. There is little use in endeavoring to cut prices by economical purchasing and cooking if your household refuse to consume the food you offer them.

"We never have stews or anything of that sort," a housekeeper told me a few years ago. "I don't care for them, and neither does my husband, and I have never tried to make the children eat them. I suppose it is more economical to have such things once in a while, but there is no sense in buying them if your family won't touch them!"

I had dined in her house often enough to be familiar with her methods. Once a week, usually on Sunday, she had a roast, and if there was anything left from that it was eaten cold or put into the stock pot. The other dinners of the week consisted, as a rule, of an alternation of chops and steak. From these there were practically no left-overs and no opportunities for economy by the use of made dishes of any sort.

As a matter of course you cannot coerce the palates of grown people, however you may succeed in training those of children, but I often wondered if it would not have been possible to awaken a love for properly made stews in that family. I don't care for Irish stew myself and have little taste for stewed lamb or mutton if unseasoned except by salt and pepper. But I do know methods of making savory potpie and Brunswick stews and curries and other dishes of the same kind which are so well seasoned that no one would for a moment think of including them in the same category with the insipid compounds of stewed meat we have all been unfortunate enough to meet on boarding house tables and in the homes of those who are lacking in a knowledge of appetizing cookery.

I think other housekeepers will agree with me in shuddering at the mere thought of the consumption of two pounds of butter a week for each person in a family, now that the price of butter has soared to keep pace with that of eggs and meat. To my mind, something is wrong with a household where butter is eaten in that way. I can hardly believe it is all consumed on the table, and if the allowance includes the butter used in cooking it is bad enough, although less alarming than the other contingency.

We all are learning new "wrinkles" these days about cooking. The high price of eggs has taught many of us that good cookery is possible with a smaller proportion of eggs than we had before deemed essential. I have been astonished to learn of late how popular the butter substitutes have become, whether these are made of cotton seed or coconut oil or other vegetable or animal fat. Every grocer who caters to persons of small means can offer these to us, and when we lay aside prejudice we are forced to confess that it is a delicately refined palate that can distinguish between butter at 30 cents a pound and one of the substitutes at half that amount or even less.

There is no doubt that most of us eat too much and often the wrong things. If we are seeking merely to please our palates, we may go in for high priced delicacies—if we can afford them. But the majority of us are trying to feed our families and ourselves with food "convenient for us," not only in price but also in the amount of nutriment it supplies.

The recent experiment with a diet squad which was fed for two weeks on an average of 40 cents apiece a day ought to have been enlightening to some of us. I question if there was a housekeeper who could get hold of those menus who did not study them with almost painful interest. Here would have been the chance for my correspondent to have found a week's menus that would have been economical and nutritious.

Let me copy the bills of fare for a couple of days:

First day—Breakfast: Stewed figs, cereal, toast, butter, coffee. Luncheon: Boston baked beans, brown raisin bread, celery, date salad, tea. Dinner: Tomato soup, baked lake trout, potatoes, bread and butter, Washington cream pie, tea.

Second day—Breakfast: Stewed peaches, hominy, toast, butter, coffee. Luncheon: Codfish balls, Philadelphia relish, bread, butter, apple dumplings with vanilla sauce, tea. Dinner: Vegetable soup, braised beef, buttered rice, stewed onions, chocolate junket, sugar cookies, tea.

Would it not be an unreasonable person who could not be satisfied with such a diet as that or its equivalent? Can you feed your family—any of you—as well as that, and at 40 cents a day for each one? It would be interesting to compare notes on this. Let me hear from you.

Also, let us have some bills of fare sent in for the sake of Mrs. W. P. W. We have many admirable housekeepers in the Corner, women who look well to the ways of their household, who have studied how to be economical and yet feed their families well and nourish them properly. It seems a shame not to get the information they could give. Will not some of them let us hear from them and learn how much it costs them to live, what economies they practice, and how their families feel about it? We would all love to hear their reports.

When an address or other information is asked by mail, a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send parcels to the newspaper office.

Appeals for Baby Clothes.

"I AM the mother of four little girls and expect to become a mother again soon. If any one can help me out with any little things I should be so glad and would return the favor in any way in my power. I have some pieces of crocheting I will give in exchange, a gown pattern and some pieces of lace for towel ends, and I have some quilt pieces to give to some one. Mrs. M. R."

An appeal for baby clothes is almost sure to meet with a favorable response, and I trust the present may be no exception to the rule. I do not altogether like exchanges—they furnish too much chance for misunderstandings—but there is no reason why Mrs. M. R. should not send the articles she mentions as a gift to any one who can let her have the baby clothes she wishes. I shall be happy to send the address on request.

Collecting Indian Relics.

"My 10 year old boy is anxious to start a collection of Indian relics—arrow heads and the like. In return for these I would give some good reading matter. I have a number of fine magazines of the current year. If any one wishes to exchange relics and get the magazines she will write to me about it I will gladly give the list from which to choose.

"Mrs. G. A. T."

Who will take advantage of this opportunity to help the boy and secure excellent magazines? The names of some of them were given and I can vouch for their worth. I wish to express my thanks for the kindly personal message. I appreciate it and am grateful for it.

Hints for Canning Vegetables.

In a recent issue of the Helping Hand you gave an interesting recipe to E. E. H. about canning asparagus. As the canning of vegetables is such an important matter in the home and saves such a great amount of money for the careful housewife, you may be interested in the following summary of the canning recipes used throughout the country by the "canning clubs" which are fostered by the department of agriculture. These recipes have been tested in thousands of cases for a number of years, and if carefully followed they will always bring success:

"Asparagus—Cut to uniform length to fit the jar used and throw away the woody parts. Wash and peel off the tougher portions of skin at the bottom of the stalk. Place the stalks in a sieve and plunge into a kettle of boiling water. Keep it there, boiling all the time, for five minutes. Remove and plunge at once into a vessel of cold water. Pack carefully into jars, tips up, and fill to the top with cold or lukewarm water. Rinse rubber ring and top and adjust them carefully to the jar, being sure they fit evenly all around. Place on rack in wash boiler and add water up to the neck of the jars, if using metal top jars, or one inch over top of the jars if using glass top jars. Water should be same temperature inside and outside of jar to avoid cracking. Bring water gradually to a boil, and boil hard for one and one-half hours. Keep cover tightly on wash boiler all the time, so that as little steam as possible is lost. Hot water may be added, if necessary, to keep the boiler from going dry. Before storing away, test the jars each twenty-four hours for several days to see that lid is sealed. Do this by raising clamp and lifting the jar slightly by the top. If it does not stick, fill the jar with water, replace the lid and ring, and boil as before for one and one-half hours. If the lid comes off or is taken off for any reason, replace it and boil full length of time and contents will be saved.

"String beans—Select only young tender beans, preferably of a stringless variety. Remove strings and cut to short lengths with knife. Wash thoroughly through several waters. Blanch as for asparagus for ten or twelve minutes. Plunge into cold water. Pack into jars carefully, filling all empty spaces up to near the top. Fill with water and adjust tops. Sterilize as for asparagus for three hours. Keep water boiling hard all the time. Remove jars from boiler as for asparagus, test, and reboil all jars with loose tops.

"Peas—After shelling peas, sort for sizes by means of a sieve and pack each size separately. Two or three sizes are enough, and if packing only a few this is not necessary. Blow out the little chaff and wash. Blanch as for asparagus for five minutes. A piece of cheesecloth placed in the bottom of the sieve will keep the peas from running through. Pack jars full and fill with water. Sterilize as for asparagus for three hours. Keep water boiling hard all the time. Remove and test as before.

"Mrs. J. J."

While these directions come a long way ahead of the canning season, yet they may be cut out and kept. I beg that they may be put away carefully, in order that when they are needed they may be found without difficulty. I know I am voicing the feelings of the constituency when I express gratitude to Mrs. J. J. for her kindness in copying and sending these practical and helpful instructions.

Canning Pimentoes.

"I noticed a request for a recipe for canning pimentoes. I inclose a clipping sent to me by my sister. Like myself, she has been unable to use it (his year, but as it sounds good I am sending it to you just as it appeared. If it is published now it will be in time for next season's canning: Select perfect, ripe pimentoes and remove enough of the stem end to allow removal of seeds. Have ready a kettle of boiling water. Fill with the peppers and boil for ten or fifteen minutes or until skins look or feel loose; no longer. Take from kettle and plunge into cold water, when skins may easily be removed. Now have ready enough strained tomato juice to cover peppers. Salt to taste, heat all to boiling point, and can in pint jars. Delicious, as the tomato juice adds its zest. Mrs. F. L. M."

"I see your request for recipes for canning pimentoes and inclose my own, which I hope will suit. Will you please publish a recipe for genuine chili con carne? Canned sweet pepper: Remove the seed pods and tough white substance from green and red sweet peppers, slice and place in a pan, pour over them boiling water, and let stand three minutes. Drain and drop into iced water, with ice in it. Repeat this three times, drain from iced water, and fill jars. Make a syrup of vinegar diluted with water, and sweeten to taste. When cold pour over the peppers and seal. If put on warm, it will fade them; this plumps them, preserves their color, and they may be served separately, as a garnish for meats and salads, or with celery, meats, etc., as salad. C. A. F."

These two recipes differ from one another sufficiently to make it wise to print them both that the housekeeper may choose between them. We are glad to have them both.

Chili con carne is a Mexican dish and I give a recipe for it which am told is trustworthy:

Cut two pounds of round steak into small pieces and put it into a frying pan with a tablespoon of hot drippings two tablespoons of rice, and half a pint of boiling water. Cover closely and cook until the meat is tender. Remove the seeds and part of the rind from two large dry red peppers, cover with hot water, add a little garlic, and a pinch of thyme, simmer until cold, then squeeze the contents of the saucepan until the water and pulp together are thick and red. If the mixture does not thicken add a teaspoon of flour wet in a little cold water; season with salt, cook the sauce until it thickens, stir in ten drops of onion juice, and pour on the stewed meat. Serve hot.

Old Fashioned Discipline.

"I was interested in the to whip and not to whip question. I am the mother of five, all babies together. While I've always spanked mine in the good old fashioned way a little thing happened that showed me sometimes mother is to blame. I was sweeping the dining room when my little girl of 4 opened the door; the wind blew all the dirt back just when I was about to pick it up. I called to her to shut the door. She gave it a kick with her foot, and the door shut, but did not catch. Then I screamed to her to shut the door, and she would not move; all she would say was, 'I did.' Well, after spanking her four times she shut the door. When my children have been spanked they are never happy until they come and kiss me and after she came and put her arms around my neck I asked her why she did not shut the door when I told her. She said: 'I would have done it at first if you had said, "Please."' Since then I have tried to ask kindly first, and I am sure I've saved the children many a spanking and myself a lot of trouble. When asking kindly does not work I've always found a spanking works finely.

"Mrs. A. C. L."

This is an interesting and instructive letter. Whatever one may think of the policy of obedience which permits a child to refuse to obey a command unless it is prefaced with "please" there can be no doubt that screaming at a child to obey and spanking it four times when it will not mind is not calculated to teach the child either obedience or respect for the parent. What do the Cornerites think? I do not mean to open the question "to spank or not to spank" again, for I do not believe there is anything novel likely to be contributed on the subject, but I think it would be interesting to know if the majority of parents speak considerately and courteously to their children, and if the "little word that makes everything easy" is generally used. I am afraid politeness in the family is occasionally disregarded, and I would like to learn how the mothers of the Corner stand upon this topic.

Twin Babies Want Clothes.

"Has any Cornerite a few infant's clothes to spare for a needy Cornerite with twin babies? The children are 5 months old, and I am not financially able to clothe them for the winter. I have seven other children to care for besides the twins. Also, I would like a few gingham and calico scraps for making quilts, of which I am sadly in need.

"Mrs. C. F. Y."

Most women would feel their hands were well filled with twins without the care of seven other children. I hope some of the seven are able to help with the twins. I trust also that some of the baby clothes that are requested may be sent and the quilt pieces as well. Only a mother can know how hard it must be to see one's children in need not only of the dainty garments we love to put on our babies but also of actual necessities to keep them warm and comfortable. There must be many women who can send a stray garment or so apiece which will be of service to this correspondent. If you are one of them, please write for her address.

GOOD FORM, HEALTH AND BEAUTY

MANICURE TIPS FOR THE AMATEUR

Push Back the Cuticle While Drying the Hands

SINCE the hands are so much in evidence it is quite necessary that one should take great care of them.

With a little patience and effort it is quite possible to keep the skin soft, smooth and white and the nails in good trim. There are many women who depend upon the manicurist to keep their nails in good condition; but there are a great number of women who cannot afford to be so dependent. It is to this class that I wish to direct my talk today. By following the rules laid down the amateur can manicure her nails very successfully, and every time she does the work she will become more proficient. If a little time is given daily to the care of the nails it will become a habit as permanent as that of combing the hair.

The first thing to be done is to procure the essential accessories for doing the work. These consist of a pair of curved scissors, an orangewood stick, absorbent cotton, emery board, a buffer and a file with one rough side only. This is advised for the reason that when a double-faced file is used the friction of the ridged metal against the skin is apt to make the skin under the nail rough. And when the skin is in such a condition it is very difficult to keep it clean.

The nails should be filed when they are dry. Whether they are shaped round or pointed depends upon the individual's taste, but the best rule is to let the nail follow the outline of the finger tip. A finger nail filed to an exaggerated point is vulgar and, as some one once remarked, it is very suggestive of an animal's claw.

After the nails are filed they should be held in warm soapy water to which lemon juice has been added. The soap and water soften and cleanse the cuticle and the lemon juice whitens it. Remove the fingers from the water in about five or ten minutes and dry them. Push back the cuticle with the blunt end of the orangewood stick. The pointed end is for cleaning the nail and the cuticle. Cover the point with a wisp of absorbent cotton dipped in peroxide. Do not use any metallic instrument for the purpose of pushing back the cuticle. The peroxide will remove the stains. The hangnails or dead skin should be cut with the scissors. Unless the skin is broken, however, do not use the scissors. Some persons cut the cuticle rather than push it back, but this method, while it may be quicker, roughens the skin and furnishes a splendid bed for the collection of dirt and germs.

With the emery board rub off the rough edges that have been left after filing the nails.

To further soften the cuticle and to avoid hangnails, apply a good cold cream to the nails and cuticle. Allow this to remain on for five minutes. Then remove it with a soft towel and apply a polish. This may be in the form of a paste or a powder. Rub the nails with a buffer or a piece of chamois. If a powder is used for polishing put a little in the palm of the hand and rub the nails over it briskly, finishing with the buffer. A high polish is not in good taste. After polishing wash the finger tips free of any polish, as this dries out the natural oils of the skin.

If you are not familiar with toilet articles for the nails the following formulas may help you. They are for a polish, a nail cream and a paste for brittle finger nails.

Nail Powder for Polishing

Talcum powder	½ ounce
Pumice stone, pulverized	2 ounces

Mix thoroly, add 15 grains of carmine and a few drops of oil of rose. If a perfume is desirable. Sift thru silk bolting cloth.

Nail Cream

Petroleum	1 ounce
White castile soap (powdered)	40 grains
Oil of bergamot	3 drops

Paste for Brittle Finger Nails

Take equal parts of refined pitch and myrrh, or of turpentine and myrrh melted. Mix together and spread upon the nails at night. Remove in the morning with a little olive oil. This paste will nourish the nails and make them stronger.

Holding the finger tips in olive oil will remedy any tendency to brittle finger nails. If the skin is hard and is grown over the half-moon the oil bath will soften the skin so that it can be pushed back easily. In pushing back the skin do the work gently, otherwise you will bruise the nails and encourage white spots.

This process will take twenty or thirty minutes once a week. If you will do it regularly it will take but two minutes a day to keep the nails in a respectable condition. When drying your hands never fail to push back the cuticle with the towel. This will prevent the skin from growing over the half-moons—the sign of a beautiful nail. Dry each finger separately, rubbing from the base toward the tip so that it will taper.

THE TELLTALE

WHAT are the signs of a lady? Well-kept finger nails, for one thing. If you are one of the many who neglect their nails, turn over a new leaf. On the page today is a complete lesson in manicuring. It is simple enough for the youngest reader to comprehend.

three times a week might help. Until you have failed to produce a natural sheen on your hair, do not use brilliantine.

Treatment for Blackheads

My dear Mrs. Symes.

Your column has always been of much interest to me. I thought perhaps you could help me, so I am writing for your advice. I have a very oily skin, rather dark and colorless. Also, I am troubled with blackheads. Now I would appreciate your advice on the cause of this condition. I would like to have some color in my cheeks and a clear complexion. Any advice that you may give me will be fully appreciated by A READER.

The oily condition of your skin and the appearance of blackheads should warn you against greasy or "rich" foods in your diet. Sweets, too, must be steered clear of if you would have a clear complexion. I am printing below a treatment for blackheads which may help you; it will do much to correct the oily condition of the skin, too.

Regular and systematic exercise outdoors will in time bring a glow to your cheeks.

Lotion for Blackheads

Pure brandy	4 ounces
Cologne	1 ounce
Liquor potassa	½ ounce

Apply at night after washing the face thoroly with soap and water.

To Increase the Upper Part of the Nose

My dear Mrs. Symes.

I have been a regular reader of your column for some time and have come to you for the first time for advice. Please tell me how I can increase the upper part of my nose. The lower part is so large and the upper part is so flat that it gives it a discriminating appearance. I have heard many remarks about my nose being so "ugly," and I will thank you for your advice on this matter. CLARICE.

If you desire to increase the fleshiness of the upper part of your nose, try massaging it nightly with slightly heated cocoa butter, or a good skin food, if you prefer. I am printing one below should you care to try it. Let the massage be firm yet gentle and do it with the finger tips. If, on the other hand, the bone structure is at fault, then no amount of home treatment can effect any change.

Pomade Grecque

(A Skin Food.)

Lanolin	2 ounces
White vaseline	2 ounces
Good cold cream	1 ounce am printing below a lotion for chapped hands, and one for whitening the hands. Following is a nail polish and a curling fluid that you ask about.

Nail Powder for Polishing

Talcum powder	½ ounce
Pumice stone, pulverized	2 ounces

Mix thoroly, add 15 grains of carmine and a few drops of oil of rose, if a perfume is desirable. Sift thru silk bolting cloth.

Curling Fluid for the Hair

Is made of a tablespoonful of boiled quince seed to a pint of hot water. The water is poured over the seeds and the whole allowed to stand for several hours. The resultant mucilage may then be thinned with a few drops of essence of violet. The hair is moistened with the fluid before curling.

To Whiten the Hands

Lanolin	10 grains
Paraffin (liquid)	15 grains
Extract of vanilla	10 drops
Oil of lemon	1 drop

Mix and apply twice necessary.

Chapped Hands

Tincture benzoin	20 drops
Glycerin	2 ounces
Rosewater	2 ounces

Rub this on the hands night and morning.

For Excessively Dry Hair

My dear Mrs. Symes.

I have light brown hair. It is thin, lifeless and almost colorless. It is very dry and difficult to manage. I would appreciate your advice on how to treat it. Would you advise me to use brilliantine? Does brushing the hair improve its texture? Thanking you for your help, I am WORRIED.

Do you know that worry does more injury to the hair than a long spell of sickness? Worry is probably the cause of the lifeless condition of your hair. Begin by giving the scalp a vigorous massage for about five or ten minutes nightly. Then brush the hair thoroly, being careful to keep both comb and brush scrupulously clean. Castor oil

ADVICE ON SOCIAL CUSTOMS

Mrs. Chester Adams most cordially invites her friends to bring to her busy Social Problems and Perplexities by letter at any time

If a personal reply is desired a self-addressed stamped envelope should be inclosed.

ARE YOU SELF-CONSCIOUS?

IF YOU are—and what a precious few of us are not!—then perhaps you will be interested in a few practical hints on overcoming yourself. Your troublesome little personality must be put thru a regular and systematic course of moral gymnastics until you shall have evolved a something akin to charm. And you can, if you only will. I will not begin with telling you to forget yourself, for that you know is the stumbling-block to the too self-conscious. No; rather would I admonish you to remember others—above all, that oppressively quiet battalion of the self-mindful who are present at every social function, who constitute the wallflower line, who are the "bete noir" of every eager hostess, who are out of things generally.

And sometimes, just for practice, and an opportunity to see yourself as others see you, do a bit of character studying. Pick out one—and there always will be one—who is acknowledged to have a winning personality, or charm, or popularity or almost any of the nice things that we say of people who are lovable; then another who is obviously a back number. The reason of the one's charm is not often so readily apparent as the reason for the other's lack of it. So let us begin with an observation of the latter. Sometimes she is possessed of undue reserve, which is really more than a covert admission that she is not capable socially, the result, however, too often misinterpreted as superiority and aloofness. This is the sweetly natural self-conscious type; this may sound contradictory, doubtless you have met her. It is a dreadful time trying to think what to say next, and she is extremely careful that she will say the right thing at the right time, or say the wrong thing at the wrong time, or do something that isn't the most proper thing to do under the circumstances; and the result of it all is that invariably she succeeds in doing just what she should not do.

It is usual to dispense with the problem of just why some one is particularly charming by saying that she is "big-hearted." Perhaps; but it may be acquired, too. More often than not there is a reason other than inherent goodness in its being. In some cases the possessor's ability to forget about just what impression she is making. And how it must have struck upon the very big heart of advice for the self-conscious.

Now aren't you ever-conscious of the impression that you make? Aren't you forever wondering just what people are thinking about you? Aren't you afraid of unkind criticism?

Once you forget that making an impression really matters, that it is of vital importance to your being a success, you will be on the high road to popularity. Once you realize that nine times out of ten you are not making an impression whatever, good or bad, you will be less fearful of saying or doing the wrong thing, or of not saying enough, or saying too much; you will be sufficiently "fearless to be charming.

SOLUTIONS TO SOCIAL PROBLEMS

Developing Histrionic Ability

MY DEAR Mrs. Adams.

I am 15 years old. I would like to be an actress. Will you please tell me how to improve myself so that in the course of a few years I may become a good actress? ANXIOUS.

Perhaps you do not realize, "Anxious," that actresses, like poets, are seldom "made." True, a certain amount of cultivating is necessary; but the process requires a bit more than a few years.

Restaurant Etiquette

My dear Mrs. Adams.

When I go to restaurants with men they usually wish me to order my own lunch. Would it be proper to order just a salad, cake and coffee? What kind of salad is best to order? Will you kindly suggest something else that I might order? When a salad is ordered and it is served on a high dish that has a foot under it and looks like a compote, is the salad supposed to be removed from the dish to the plate? If so, does one use a table spoon to do so? When it comes on a plate how is it eaten? When potatoes and vegetables are ordered for dinner are they eaten from the little dishes they are served in? How is meat eaten? Might one order just meat, potatoes and dessert if one does not care for the whole dinner that appears under the name of table d'hote? What is best to order for a supper after the theater? Thanking you for any information that you will give me, I am, A CONSTANT READER.

It is customary for the gentleman to order, consulting the lady's taste from time to time. There would be no impropriety in your suggesting that your escort attend to the ordering. Yes, you might order simply a salad, cake and coffee. There are any number of salads to choose from. Among the most popular are chicken, Waldorf, lobster and fruit. An ice would be a happy addition. Yes, the salad is transferred from the compote with a salad fork and spoon; it is eaten with a fork. Yes, the vegetables are eaten from the individual dishes. Meat is eaten in the usual way—with a fork. There would be no impropriety in making such a selection from the table-d'hote menu. The after-theater supper might include lobster salad, rolls, dessert and coffee.

A Bit Difficult

My dear Mrs. Adams.

When I am out motoring and pass a girl friend with whom is a lady, a stranger to me, and they are only walking together toward their respective homes, would it be improper to ask my friend to ride? Or should I ask the lady also? Does it make any difference which side of a girl you walk on? PERPLEXED.

If you wish to avoid a difficult situation, simply bid the time of day to your friend and ride on. Otherwise, you must first procure an introduction, and ask both the ladies to ride with you.

The gentleman should take the outside of the pavement.

Invitation From a Newcomer

My dear Mrs. Adams.

I am 15 years old. A boy has just moved into our neighborhood and invited a few girl friends of mine and myself. Would it be proper to accept the invitation? A CONSTANT READER.

There would be no objection other than your parents' refusal to your accepting the invitation.

A Definite Choice Desired

My dear Mrs. Adams.

We are two girls, of 19 and 20, and have always been the best of chums. There is a certain young man of 23 who has accompanied us both to various places, consequently has been either of us has been out of town; and this for two years. Apparently he thinks as much of one as of the other. We are both in love with him. We have compared notes and found that we have been treating exactly alike. So far as we know, he never goes with any other girl. What shall we do? We wish to find out which one he likes the better, but we are DISTRACTED.

Perhaps the young man's intentions are not nearly so serious as you suppose. There is really no way to determine just who is to be favored with him without, of course, measures that must border upon rudeness to some one of you. So go your own way in this case, at any rate. Pay no heed to care of the rest. Then, one day, when the young man has made up his mind to say something of either of you, he will, of liberty, you know, to get the one he ever he pleases. Perhaps he will choose one else. Do not let the matter trouble you, tho. Just wait.

Something of a Dude

My dear Mrs. Adams.

A says that a girl of 16 may not accept a present of her own friends unless it isn't proper. Would you please tell me about this matter for me? Ages of girls and boys many outdoor games are played, such as tennis, boys of 14 and 15 always make up a party for skating games. As we are fond of outdoor sports and who do not approve of dudes, we would like to know for what to do. Please suggest some games that would be of interest to us. ANXIOUS.

There is no obligation on the part of the girl to accept a present from a boy friend; but there is no impropriety in her doing so particularly in the case mentioned by the boy's initiative.

You are quite right in your opinion of the games that you mention. Girls and boys of 14 and 15 do not as a rule enjoy this utterly silly pastime. There are many, many interesting games that may be played, and they are so numerous that there is enough to make any evening entertaining. If you repeat your request and inclose a self-addressed and stamped envelope I will send you a list of games.

Accompanying a Friend to the Train

My dear Mrs. Adams.

We are constant readers of your column on social problems and would like to have you help us in the following matter. If I or my friend accompany a boy friend to the train, if we have a dance and he asks us to write to him, should we answer? If we see you, and he ask him call, would it be proper for us to do so? If a boy you had never met before should come and later ask to accompany you to the train, would it be proper?

It is not customary for young ladies to accompany a boy friend to the train. In certain localities it is the custom for a young lady to ask a man friend to call. However, it is not advisable to do so. Under any such invitation at the first opportunity. Unless the boy has been formally introduced, it would not be proper to grant him the privilege of accompanying you to the train.

Form of Invitation

My dear Mrs. Adams.

I am a girl of 15. When giving a party should I invite the boys by note or by telephone? Do they usually call on the girls before the young to have parties? Some girls I know have been invited to dances by telephone, but I think it is better to write. Kindly inform me which is the proper way. Thanking you in advance for any advice that you may give me, I am.

A simple little note answers the purpose. There is really no way to determine just who is to be favored with him without, of course, measures that must border upon rudeness to some one of you. So go your own way in this case, at any rate. Pay no heed to care of the rest. Then, one day, when the young man has made up his mind to say something of either of you, he will, of liberty, you know, to get the one he ever he pleases. Perhaps he will choose one else. Do not let the matter trouble you, tho. Just wait.

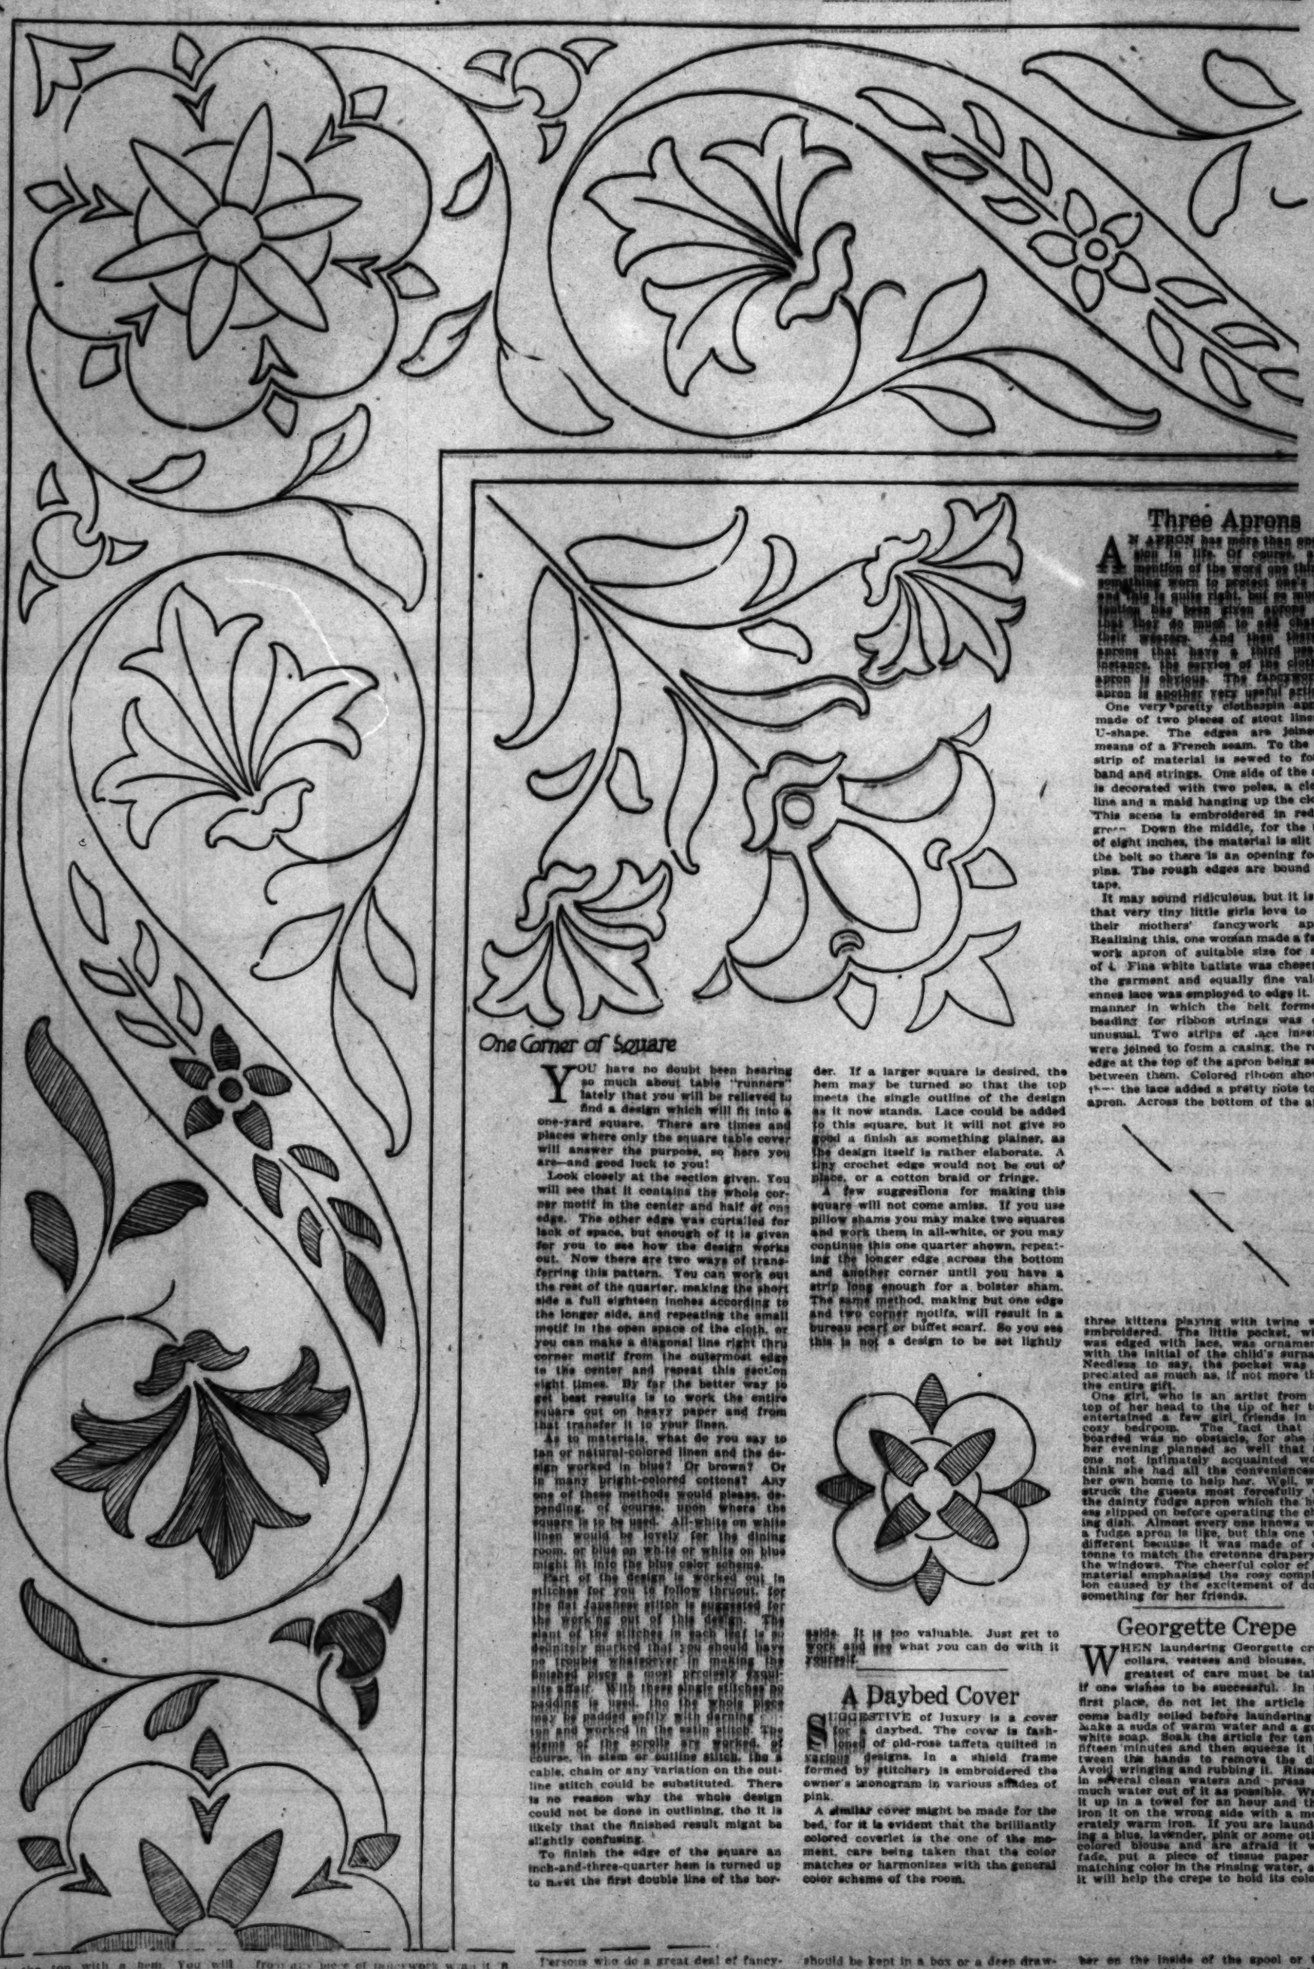
CONVENTIONAL DESIGN FOR TABLE SQUARE

DESIGNED BY E. J. BUCKMAN



One Corner of Square

YOU have no doubt been hearing so much about table "runners" lately that you will be relieved to find a design which will fit into a one-yard square. There are times and places where only the square table cover will answer the purpose, so here you are—and good luck to you!

Look closely at the section given. You will see that it contains the whole corner motif in the center and half of one edge. The other edge was curtailed for lack of space, but enough of it is given for you to see how the design works out. Now there are two ways of transferring this pattern. You can work out the rest of the quarter, making the short side a full eighteen inches according to the longer side, and repeating the small motif in the open space of the cloth, or you can make a diagonal line right thru corner motif from the outermost edge to the center and repeat this section eight times. By far the better way to get best results is to work the entire square out on heavy paper and from that transfer it to your linen.

As to materials, what do you say to tan or natural-colored linen and the design worked in blue? Or brown? Or in many bright-colored cottons? Any one of these methods would please, depending, of course, upon where the square is to be used. All-white on white linen would be lovely for the dining room, or blue on white or white on blue might fit into the blue color scheme.

Part of the design is worked out in stitches for you to follow thruout, for the flat Japanese stitch is suggested for the working out of this design. The plant of the stitches in each leaf is so definitely marked that you should have no trouble whatsoever in making the finished piece a most precisely exquisite affair. With these single stitches no padding is used, tho the whole piece may be padded softly with darning cotton and worked in the satin stitch. The stems of the scrolls are worked, of course, in stem or outline stitch. The cable, chain or any variation on the outline stitch could be substituted. There is no reason why the whole design could not be done in outlining, tho it is likely that the finished result might be slightly confusing.

To finish the edge of the square an inch-and-three-quarter hem is turned up to meet the first double line of the border. If a larger square is desired, the hem may be turned so that the top meets the single outline of the design as it now stands. Lace could be added to this square, but it will not give so good a finish as something plainer, as the design itself is rather elaborate. A tiny crochet edge would not be out of place, or a cotton braid or fringe.

A few suggestions for making this square will not come amiss. If you use pillow shams you may make two squares and work them in all-white, or you may continue this one quarter shown, repeating the longer edge across the bottom and another corner until you have a strip long enough for a bolster sham. The same method, making but one edge and two corner motifs, will result in a bureau scarf or buffet scarf. So you see this is not a design to be set lightly aside. It is too valuable. Just get to work and see what you can do with it yourself.

A Daybed Cover

SUGGESTIVE of luxury is a cover for a daybed. The cover is fashioned of old-rose taffeta quilted in various designs. In a shield frame formed by stitchery is embroidered the owner's monogram in various shades of pink.

A similar cover might be made for the bed, for it is evident that the brilliantly colored coverlet is the one of the moment, care being taken that the color matches or harmonizes with the general color scheme of the room.

Three Aprons

AN APRON has more than one mission in life. Of course, at the mention of the word one thinks of something worn to protect one's frock, and this is quite right, but so much attention has been given aprons lately that they do much to add charm to their wearers. And then there are aprons that have a third use. For instance, the purpose of the clothespin apron is obvious. The fancywork-bag apron is another very useful article.

One very pretty clothespin apron is made of two pieces of stout linen cut U-shape. The edges are joined by means of a French seam. To the top a strip of material is sewed to form a band and strings. One side of the apron is decorated with two poles, a clothesline and a maid hanging up the clothes. This scene is embroidered in red and green. Down the middle, for the space of eight inches, the material is slit from the belt so there is an opening for the pins. The rough edges are bound with tape.

It may sound ridiculous, but it is true that very tiny little girls love to wear their mothers' fancywork aprons. Realizing this, one woman made a fancywork apron of suitable size for a tot of 4. Fine white batiste was chosen for the garment and equally fine valenciennes lace was employed to edge it. The manner in which the belt formed a beading for ribbon strings was quite unusual. Two strips of lace insertion were joined to form a casing, the rough edge at the top of the apron being sewed between them. Colored ribbon showing thru the lace added a pretty note to the apron. Across the bottom of the apron three kittens playing with twine were embroidered. The little pocket, which was edged with lace, was ornamented with the initial of the child's surname. Needless to say, the pocket was appreciated as much as, if not more than, the entire gift.

One girl, who is an artist from the top of her head to the tip of her toes, entertained a few girl friends in her cozy bedroom. The fact that she boarded was no obstacle, for she had her evening planned so well that any one not intimately acquainted would think she had all the conveniences of her own home to help her. Well, what struck the guests most forcefully was the dainty fudge apron which the hostess slipped on before operating the chafing dish. Almost every one knows what a fudge apron is like, but this one was different because it was made of cretonne to match the cretonne drapery of the windows. The cheerful color of the material emphasized the rosy complexion caused by the excitement of doing something for her friends.

Georgette Crepe

WHEN laundering Georgette crepe collars, vestees and blouses, the greatest of care must be taken if one wishes to be successful. In the first place, do not let the article become badly soiled before laundering it. Make a suds of warm water and a good white soap. Soak the article for ten or fifteen minutes and then squeeze it between the hands to remove the dirt. Avoid wringing and rubbing it. Rinse it in several clean waters and press as much water out of it as possible. Wrap it up in a towel for an hour and then iron it on the wrong side with a moderately warm iron. If you are laundering a blue, lavender, pink or some other colored blouse and are afraid it will fade, put a piece of tissue paper of matching color in the rinsing water, and it will help the crepe to hold its color.

Practical Hints

Persons who do a great deal of fancywork should be systematic about keeping designs, hints and so forth. If no better scheme can be devised, the clippings should be kept in a box or a deep drawer. This method would save so much time when one desired to look for a particular pattern or hint.

ON THE SQUARE

WHAT are you using on your square living-room table? A runner that is out of proportion or of which you have become tired? Then it is to you that this design for a yard-square cover will appeal. The design is unique and works up much more quickly than you would suppose.

An Adaptable Scarf Pattern

GET OUT your pencils and paper, please, and take down these measurements for a combination scarf and hood, which you will find valuable for several uses. You will need a length of material a yard or so long and eighteen inches wide. The greatest width is in the center, and the material slopes gradually to the ends, forming a long triangle, with the center point slightly rounded off. Now, to make the [illegible]—all that is essentially necessary is to sew the sloping sides of the triangle together from the center point for about twenty inches. This forms a regular bonnet hood with scarf ends.

Now for the development of the idea: For an evening scarf, instead of the hat of lace or the plain straight scarf, it is most effective when made of two shades of silk, the darker lined with the lighter, or, if it is pure with flesh color. The two triangles of silk are hemstitched together and the edges cut to make a picot finish, or the lining can be sewed on in the usual way and the cap turned inside out. While the hemstitching is being done, it is well to slit the front of the cap for four or five inches, having these edges hemstitched as well and turning back the front in two revers. These should be caught with chiffon, ribbon or bead ornaments. Silk tassels dangle from the point of each cap and from each scarf end. These ends can be knotted in front or merely crossed and flung over the shoulders.

This same idea developed in brushed wool or knit angora would make an exquisite skating cap. Of course, the knit cap will only be one thickness. The brushed wool, or velour, can be lined with contrasting self-material or with a soft silk, and the edges blanketstitched with bright wool. The same wool will then make the tassels and ornaments for the turned-back revers. Slits could be worked in each side for the scarf ends to pass thru.

For a Pullman cap this same pattern can be developed in silk to match the kimono. The cap can be attached to the back of the kimono and drawn up like a hood to completely cover the disheveled coiffure.

With three such suggestions at hand, you can scarcely afford to discard this pattern. Clip it; maybe the next-door neighbor can use it for her little girl.

A Tie Rack

NO MATTER how careless that man of yours, there is one thing that he is very apt to be careful of, and that is his necktie. He will actually take the trouble to string it on one of the many wooden and metal tie racks if one is placed conveniently near his bureau or chiffonier. The trouble that most women have to find with such racks is that they allow the ties to collect dust, and present an untidy appearance to the room. Here is an idea that both the man and his tidy womenfolks will appreciate: It is a small wooden tie rack, with a linen cover, which folds over the hanging ties and snaps into place. Any one can make one of these affairs, and can add embroidery or stenciling of a monogram to the cover, too, if she likes. Don't make it too hard to adjust, or you will find the lucky man railing against it rather than blessing it.

A Child's Apron

WHEN the child feels too grown-up to wear a bib, one can persuade it to cover its pretty frock with an apron, provided the apron is attractive. For this purpose a clever mother designed and made a very cunning model. She used blue-checked gingham for the apron, and cut it so that the apron had sleeves. By using the kimono idea, cutting the apron and sleeves in one, the pattern called for very little extra work or material. The neck line was bound with blue braid and the same trimmed the narrow cuffs into which the sleeves were gathered. Across the bottom of the apron was stitched a strip of white muslin on which figures of children were painted. The muslin forms a deep pocket, which liddie can use for any purpose she desires. The idea is no doubt taken from the pocket apron so much in favor with grown-ups who do fancywork.

How to Transfer

HERE are suggestions for transferring the embroidery design before you to any material.

Perhaps the easiest way is the "window-pane" method. This is successful when the material is thin, like linen, batiste, etc. Pin the sheet of paper and the material together and hold them up against the glass of a window. With a sharp pencil draw on the material the design, which can be easily seen thru the goods. If one-half of the design only is given, unpin the paper and turn the other side to the fabric.

If you have carbon paper you should place the sheet between the fabric and the newspaper. The latter is on top. With a sharp pencil go over the outlines of the design. The impression will be left in fine lines and will last until

Phases of the Popular Scarf Idea

The Cape Collar Tops the Coat Dress

IT IS an interesting thing to observe the manner in which one idea can be molded into many shapes and forms until the results are so unlike their mother idea that they can scarcely claim relationship. So it is with the scarf, that accessory of dress which has become such a very important affair.

The woolen scarf is a favorite with the girl who loves to give a "sporty" touch to her suit. It often proves the one way in which a dash of color can be introduced. The one shown is of popular brushed wool in a warm and cheerful shade of old rose.

Then coming from the severe type to the frivolous affair one finds the black net scarf brightened with metallic stitchery. Scarfs of this nature are very much in vogue for evening festivities, and are seen in many colors and in many varieties. A sister scarf is the white one beautifully decorated with pearl sequins. The edge is finished by a line of picoting. In many instances the ends of the scarfs are shirred into one tassel of silk or a beaded ornament. Or again, the ends are made into cuffs so that they may be worn over the wrists. It really matters not which style you choose, just so long as you display one of the charming accessories.

There are many days during the winter season when one can saunter forth uncoated, provided one is able to wear a coat dress. But to give a feeling of being protected against chance breezes the cape collar is called into service. The one shown is of gray crepe comfortably lined and fashionably trimmed with gray ostrich feathers. Similar ones are made of fur or of fur and velvet.

The feather ruff is a variation of the scarf idea which is used to take the place of fur when the vacillating feminine mind feels that a change is needed. A light blue or one like the model shown is just the thing to give one's coat suit a new lease of life, adding as it does a bright spot to one's general appearance.
